FORREST BROWN AGAIN HELD, FAILS TO OUT-RUN OFFICER

After a sincere but futile effort to escape the clutches of the law, Forrest Brown is in the city jail this morning on a charge of resisting an officer. Brown was recently released under bond after having been arrested several weeks ago in company with his father, J. M. Brown, following a clash with prohibition officers. Brown was arrested by Officer W. W. Birchett after an exciting chase of several blocks when the patrolman suspected him as a handler of intoxicating liquor. A quart bottle, said by officers to have contained moonshine or its equivalent, was dashed to the pavement by Brown when Birchett attempted to arrest him. The incident occurred yesterday afternoon in front of a pool room on South Commercial street when the officer accosted Brown and a second man who has not been located. After smashing the bottle, Brown is said to have made a hurried dash in the general direction of the Willamette river but was outdistanced by Officer Birchett, who overtook him near the Spaulding company's yards. When booked at the city jail, Brown was unable to furnish bail in the sum of $100 and was locked up.

Homage of Praise and Applause Paid Winifred Byrd in Concert at Grand Theatre Friday Night

Charming to hushed expectancy, inspiring with a fiery dash of genius, and finally playing so sweetly and so simply that hardly a dry eye remained in the audience, Winifred Byrd, world famous pianist played to the home folks of Salem last night. Salem music lovers, Salem musicians and Salem people in general were present last night for the first appearance of Miss Byrd in her home town while on her present northwest tour. The Hungarian Rhapsody given with such finish and beauty brought forth generous applause and was graciously responded to by Miss Byrd with "Campanella" also by Liszt. Responding to the instant demands, the dainty pianist played with rare feeling "Home Sweet Home," and not a few of the quiet audience, hushed in reverence, filed out with tear-dimmed eyes. Responding to an encore following the "Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes," the artist gave "The Butterfly" by Olsen. "The pianist's grandmother, Mrs. Martha C. Byrd of Salem, hearing her granddaughter in concert for the first time, was among those in the audience. A number of Portland people were present who had been unable to attend her concert in Portland. Miss Byrd is a daughter of Dr. W. H. Byrd of Salem and received her early musical training here, later going to New York and Europe for training. The program as given was as follows: piano—Carnival's Jest

NARCOTIC RAID NETS OPIUM PIPES; KEE LEARNS ENGLISH

Jung Kee, 65, and Lem Lin, 30, were arrested in a raid on Chinatown last night when Officer D. F. Victor and W. E. Shaffer and R. H. Burdick, the two latter members of the Portland police department, descended upon the celestials housed in a building on Ferry street. The two Chinese were arrested upon a charge of having opium in their possession, three make-shift opium pipes, two lamps, three incense burners and a pair of chopsticks. An extensive confab took place at the police station between two sets of interpreters, one interpreting what the prisoners said and a second Chinese interpreting the first man's efforts into something approaching the English language. The Chinese explained that the difficulty was due to provincial dialects. "Tell them that they can get bond for $25," said Night Sergeant Ralph Davis. After ten minutes of second story sing-songing, the deputy interpreter said: "What say you make 'em ten dollars?" "Twenty-five dollars!" reiterated Davis. The prisoner, Jung Kee, had sat stolidly through the bargaining between the police officer and two interpreters. Finally if he became evident to all the orientals that when Sergeant Davis said "Twenty-five dollars," he meant just that.

SOUTH TWELFTH STREET HAS OFFICIAL ATTENTION AGAIN

Now that the city council has appointed a committee to look into the matter of non-payment of taxes on city property, and the fact that this committee is urging the city treasurer to issue certificates of delinquency, it is probable that attention will once again be drawn to conditions on South Twelfth street. It will be remembered that due to an error in advertising the improvements on South Twelfth from Mission to the south city limits, it was necessary to re-assess. And in order to secure legal right to re-assess, it was necessary to call an election to amend the city charter. This was all legally done and the cost of the paving on South Twelfth was then legally assessed against the property. This was more than three years ago. Suit Withdrawn The Clark-Henry Construction company, which brought suit against the city of Salem for the payment of about $23,000 claimed to be due the company, has recently withdrawn its suit. In the original contract, it was provided that the firm should be paid from money received by the city from taxes imposed against property on South Twelfth. As owners of a large proportion of property on the street did not pay their taxes, the city had no money for the improvement, and warrants were issued for only a part of the original cost of paving, $29,132.93.

PLAIN WORDS MARK PRESIDENT'S TALK AT SOLDIER'S BIER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The text of President Harding's address at the burial of an unknown American soldier at Arlington cemetery follows: Mr. Secretary of War and Ladies and Gentlemen: We are met today to pay the impersonal tribute. The name of him whose body lies before us took flight with his imperishable soul. We know not whence he came, but only that his death marks him with the everlasting glory of an American dying for his country. He might have come from any one of millions of American homes. Some mother gave him in her love and tenderness and her most cherished hopes. Hundreds of mothers are wondering today finding a touch of solace in the possibility that the nation bows in grief over the body of one she bore to live and die, if need be, for the republic. If we give rein to fancy, a score of sympathetic chords are touched in this body there once glowed the soul of an American with the aspirations and ambitions of a citizen who cherished life and its opportunities. Identity Not Known He may have been a native or
