

OREGON APPLE CROP PLEASES

Light Yield of Potatoes Is Reported in Latest Crop Bulletin

OCTOBER BANNER MONTH

Weather Conditions Held as Ideal for Heavy Production of Fall Grains

PORTLAND, Or., Heavy marketing of a comparatively light crop of potatoes is an outstanding feature of the November crop report of the United States bureau of markets and crop estimates issued by F. L. Kent, Oregon statistician.

The Oregon potato crop estimate declined during the month of October, and the 1921 production is now placed at an average yield of 90 bushels per acre on 42,000 acres or a total of 3,870,000 bushels. The final state estimate for the 1920 crop was about 6,000,000 bushels. The United States potato prospect improved somewhat during October, and November 1 indications are for a crop of 356,000,000 bushels compared with 428,000,000 bushels in 1920.

While the prospective United States potato production for 1921 is only about 83 per cent of that of 1920, carload shipments reported from July 1 to October 29, 1921, are 126 per cent of the shipments for the same period in 1920. Shipments from all sections of the United States, up to October 29, 1920, amounted to about 48 per cent of the total for the season. The shipments for present season already equal about 73.5 per cent of the estimated total. In other words, shipment of the 1920 crop to October 29, 1920, amounted to practically one-half of the total shipments of the 1920 crop. But the shipments of the 1921 crop up to October 29, 1921, equal about three-fourths of the probable total shipments of the 1921 crop. Oregon shipments, while much larger to-date this year than last, do not constitute a very large part of the total crop. Shipments this year (1921) to October 29 are reported at 212 carloads. Last year the shipments to October 29 were only 39 carloads. Total carload shipments of the 1920 crop are reported at 1873. Digging was considerably earlier this year than last and this fact together with a favorable price induced an earlier movement of the crop. This matter of a favorable price is considered to be the main factor in the heavy movement over the country as a whole.

Apples: Present indications are that the October estimates of 3,900,000 boxes of commercial apples this year in the state is conservative. The United States commercial crop prospect as a whole declined about 3,000,000 bushels during October, and is now estimated at about 56,000,000 bushels (18,600,000 barrels) compared with a final 1920 estimate of 111,717,000 bushels, 37,239,000 barrels.

Total carload shipments from July 1st to October 29th, 1921, from Oregon as well as other "boxed apple" states have been nearly double the shipments for the corresponding period last year. The figures are, 28,593 carloads in 1921, and 15,702 in 1920. Of this number Oregon is credited with 2,319 cars in 1921 and 936 cars in 1920. Shipments from the eight boxed apple states of the 1920 crop amounted to 36,287 carloads, of which Oregon is credited with 3,173 cars. The 1921 boxed shipments are expected to exceed those of 1920 by about 30 per cent.

Grains: Weight per measured bushel for Oregon is reported as follows: Winter wheat, 59; spring wheat, 59; oats, 35.5; barley, 44.4.

Corn of the 1920 crop still on farm in the United States is estimated 8.7 per cent of the crop, or 281,472,000 bushels. The 1921 corn crop prospect declined somewhat during October and is now estimated at 3,151,698,000 bushels.

Weather conditions: October weather was very favorable for farm operations. Rather heavy rainfall occurred on the 25th of the month, prior to which time the soil had been rather too dry for plowing. Total precipitation for the month was somewhat below normal, and temperatures were somewhat above normal. Much seeding was done during the month and is now completed in most of the wheat belt. In the western part of the state fall seeding operations are well advanced and another week or ten days of favorable weather should enable the farmers to practically complete their fall seeding. The early frosts (September) materially reduced the potato yield but allowed early digging which largely accounts for the much larger movement of potatoes to-date this year, as compared with last year. These early frosts also made an early corn harvest, and potato and corn fields were thus made available for early seeding to grain.

PREFERRED HARD WORK

Peabody Willoughby, the Boston philanthropist, was making an appeal for the Children's Country Week association of Massachusetts.

"There is a funny side, too," he said, "about the poor slum child's ignorance of the country's beauties and joys. I said one August day to a ragged urchin of seven or eight:

"You've got a rare treat coming. We're going to send you to the country for a week."

"Nix," said the urchin, as he took a cigarette stub out of his pocket and examined it carefully. "Nix on that, gran'pop."

"Why," I said, "what's your objection to the country?"

"They got thrashin' machines there, ain't they," said the boy. "Well, it's bad enough here, where it's done by hand, begosh! And he lit his cigarette stub and lounged off."—Exchange.

COUGARS HOLD OREGON SQUAD

Washington State Wins in Hard Fought Battle, Score 7 to 3

LONG KICK IS FEATURE

Victors Increase Chances of Winning Northwest Championship

CORVALLIS, Or., Nov. 11.—The Battling Cougars from Pullman came here today and annexed a victory which will help materially in the race for the northwestern conference championship. The score: Washington State college 7; Oregon Agricultural college 3.

As the figures indicate it was a hard battle, the victors getting one touchdown and the vanquished a field goal. Sax made the touchdown after a forward pass from McIvor. Hickey kicked goal.

Sensational line plunges by Moran, who came into the game as a substitute for Sandberg, led up to the Cougars' score and only by a desperate rally by the home team were the Washington men kept from adding to their figure. Sandberg, early in the game also did some hard bucking.

Jenne was the star of the Cougar aggregation, until Moran came in and eclipsed him. In the first half Jenne's punting and running featured the Cougars' playing. Miller, halfback of the Aggies, rivalled Jenne in punting. Crowell made the kick which brought the Aggies their score.
