Stormy Weather Has Bad Effect on Turkey Market

It is the unexpected that always happens and now it is the flood that will have much to do with determining the turkey market.

In Portland, ready for shipment east and north, were many carloads of dressed turkeys. But the silver thaw along the Columbia river and the worst traveling conditions known in years have prevented the moving out of the refrigerator cars loaded with turkeys.

If these are not moved within a day or two, the conditions looked bad Monday, these turkeys will be thrown back on the Portland market.

The Portland market controls the Salem market and things yesterday afternoon were rather shaky. However, the market was paying 36 cents for dressed and 30 and 31 cents for live turkeys.

BOYS' SERVICE IS EMPHASIZED Y. M. C. A. Lads Organize Basketball League—College Men Assist

An intensive "service campaign" for boys between the ages of 8 and 15 years, is being carried on by the Salem Y.M.C.A., along new and novel lines.

The recent financial campaign assures support of the "Y" for the coming year. The "Y" however, is only incidentally interested, as the money as a means to an end; the end being service to every boy and young man in Salem.

The present move is aimed to interest not only the boy but the parents of every boy in Salem.

The "Y" has the name of every boy with his address. Thirty-six young men, students of Willamette aid leaders in sports and social and religious work are starting and to interview the boys and their parents, asking for the boys to come and accept the "Y" benefits; paying some kind of a price if possible but allowing no boy to lose out because he has no money to pay.

The plan is to secure the cooperation of the parents, Sunday school teachers and all who have any control of influence over the boys, in a regular "Y" attendance.

The full gymnasium, swimming pool and social and religious equipment of the "Y" is open for every boy. He is asked to earn at least a little money as an incentive to self respect, where it is possible for him to do so, and pay a part of the actual cost of such a service; but the boy himself is

RURAL DISTRICTS PROVING LOYAL

Teachers in Country Schools Are Big Help in Red Cross Roll Call

Rural districts are responding nobly to the fifth annual Red Cross roll call, according to Dr. D. M. Fields, general chairman for the county.

With very few exceptions, the roll call has been in charge of the teachers in the various school districts. In the smaller town there has been appointed chairmen in charge, and these are all reported to be working on the roll call.

Dr. Fields compliments the rural districts on their appreciation of the great work of the Red Cross and the kindly spirit shown by those who have volunteered to assist in the fifth annual roll call.

The Broadacres school district was one of the first to respond, sending in $10. From the Brush Creek district there has been remitted to headquarters $24.50 and from the Cloverdale district $8.50.

Turner has responded nobly Dr. Fields said, sending in $24. Hayesville workers put on a good campaign and remitted $20.80 while the Swegle school district sent in $32, considered a very favorable showing.

With the good spirit that has been shown in almost every community and almost every school district in Polk and Marion counties, those in charge feel assured that the great work of the Red Cross has been appreciated.

It is hoped that by Wednesday evening all work in the fifth annual roll call may be closed, in order that remittances may be made within a few days following Thanksgiving.

Timber Men Alarmed at Appearance of Disease

Timber men of the west are alarmed, according to F. A. Elliott, state forester by the appearance on Vancouver island of the white pine blister rust, a dangerous timber disease which never before has appeared west of the Rocky Mountains.

Mr. Elliott was yesterday informed of the appearance of the disease on Vancouver island in a telegram from Roy G. Pierce, pathologist at Washington, in charge of blister rust control. On Vancouver island the disease has appeared on cultivated black currant bushes.

TOW GROWN HERE IS IN DEMAND

Representative of Furniture Company Offers $100 Ton For Product

A representative of a prominent wholesale furniture house, while in Portland a few days ago, offered a representative of the newly organized Willamette Valley Flax and Hemp Growers Cooperative association, $100 a ton for all the tow the association could produce next year.

He did this upon examining samples of the tow that have been produced here the past year, saying it was of such fine quality that the big upholstering houses of the country would be glad to buy.

One advantage of selling tow, it is explained, is the fact that no retting is necessary, and that it can be manufactured from the straw as soon as threshed. No processing is necessary.

Tow is generally manufactured from the inferior grade of flax and its sale shortly after harvest affords a quick cash return to the grower.

The appropriations committee of the house yesterday reported favorably in congress as part of the emergency deficit bill a proposed appropriation of $150,000 to fight the beetle menace in the national forests of Oregon and
