Dry weather complaints from the west and southwest led at times to considerable covering by shorts. but the ensuing rallies were mainly of transient character. Some export gusiness was announced but the bulk of purchasing for Europe continued to be restricted to wheat grown in Canada. Corn and oats were weakened by the slowness of domestic call for corn. Exporters were after corn here, however, and rural offerings of corn to arrive were light.

Provisions, although dull, held fairly steady owing to strength in the hog market.
