BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 28.—Cinders will be sent in a few weeks from a coal-burning section of the east to the University of California here where they will be used to give the cinder path a new dressing.

conference of 1907, of new agencies of warfare?

"(b) If not so, what changes in the existing rules ought to be adopted in consequence thereof as a part of the law of nations?

"Two—That notices of appointment of the members of the commission shall be transmitted to the government of the United States of America within three months after the adjournment of the present conference, which after consultation with the powers concerned will fix the day and place for the meeting of the commission.

"Three—That the commission shall be at liberty to request assistance and advice from experts in international law and in land and naval and aerial warfare.

"Four—That the commission shall report its conclusions to each of the powers represented in its membership.

"Those powers shall thereupon confer as to the acceptance of the report and the course to be followed to secure the consideration of its recommendations by other civilized powers."

Radio Reconsidered

Re-adoption of the radio resolution, reconsidered Tuesday, was also on the recommendation of a sub-committee, which had failed after a two-day effort to agree on the addition of any of a half dozen supplemental proposals. As it now stands the resolution is in exactly the same language as when adopted originally on December 7. It includes five paragraphs which make in substance the following stipulation regarding wireless stations in China:

"One—No station shall handle other than government messages except in emergency.

"Two—Foreign stations must conform strictly to the terms of the agreements under which they exist.

"Three—Any foreign station maintained without the authority of the Chinese government shall be turned over to Chinese officials for a fair compensation.

"Four—Questions affecting stations in the south Manchurian railway zone or the French concessions at Shanghai must be discussed by China directly with the governments concerned.

"Five—Owners of foreign stations must confer with Chinese officials to work out a wave length agreement.

Divergent Views

The divergent views of China and the other powers relative to the supplemental provisions it had been proposed to add to the resolution were expressed in separate statements spread on the records. The setting forth the positions of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Portugal, said:

"The powers, other than China declare that nothing in paragraphs three or four of the resolution of the seventh of December, 1921 is to be deemed to be an expression of opinion by the conference as to whether the stations referred to therein are or are not used by China.

"They further give notice that the result of any discussion arising under paragraph four must, if it is not to be subject to objection by them, conform with the principles of the open door, or equality of opportunity approved by the conference."

China Takes Stand

China's declaration was read by Minister Sze. The Chinese declaration entered on the record alongside that of the other eight nations, and was as follows:

"The Chinese delegation take this occasion formally to declare that the Chinese government does not recognize or concede the right of any foreign power or of the nationals thereof to install or operate, without its express consent, radio stations in legation grounds, settlements concessions leased territories, railway areas, or other similar area."

SAM GOMPERS IN FIGHT WITH FARMERS

Muscle Shoals, Ala., and urged that the government accept the offer of Henry Ford to lease them.

Reduction of freight rates on farm products, livestock and products of allied industries to the basis prior to the increase of August, 1920, also was urged as well as the restoration of certain rate-making powers to state railroad commissions. Readjustment of rates affecting other commodities should follow as quickly as posible, it was added. Legislation to prevent railroads from including the "land multiple" in making up their revaluations was further recommended.

Development Urged

Development of the Mississippi river as an artery of commerce was advocated with the adoption of a report which declared that "during and since the war there has been a great increase in navigation in the lower Mississippi river and on the Ohio river."

Development of navigation on the Missouri, Ohio and Red rivers, also was suggested in this report as well as joint water and rail rates and terminals.

The conference went on record as opposing repeal of the Panama canal tolls, saying "the people of the United States have invested a large sum of money in the Panama canal."

Water Power Demanded

The other recommendations included:

Development of hydro-electric power projects to make current available to the small consumers on the farm and in the village.

Closer cooperation of railway, waterway and highway transportation.

Appointment of a commission to work out a national land policy, including reclamation irrigation, grazing and colonization problems in cooperation with similar bodies in the various states.

Further Opening Opposed

Opposition to the opening of any more land for farming purposes pending readjustment of conditions in agriculture.

Stoppage of forest devastation, development of effective methods of fire prevention, increase in reserves and extension of research.

Enactment by congress of laws providing immediate credits for farmers through commodity financing, continuation of the war finance corporation pending such action, amendment of the federal reserve and farm loan acts, congressional investigation of the subject of crop insurance, a constitutional amendment prohibiting issuance of tax free securities except bonds and other obligations of federal farm loan banks, reenactment of an excess profits tax and equal consideration for agriculture with other industries in any tariff policy, were recommended by the conference tonight with adoption of the report of its committee on agricultural credit.

European Meeting Favored

The report also protested against enactment of any consumption, sales or manufacturer's tax and urged representation by the United States in a conference for economical and financial reconstruction in Europe to ascertain what this country can do toward re-establishment of international credit.

With respect to establishment of an intermediate agricultural credit system, the committee proposed that congress set up an agency to discount loans on livestock paper and on other agricultural commodities secured by warehouse receipts for terms of six months to three years. This agency would be given the right to issue debentures, salable in the open market against paper on which loans had been advanced and to have it rediscounted by the federal reserve banks.

Loans Increased

Amendment of the federal reserve act to give the reserve banks power to buy and sell, without indorsement by member banks, notes secured by warehouse receipts for readily marketable non-perishable agricultural staples and livestock was recommended. The amendment urged for the farm land bank act would increase the amount one individual is permitted to borrow from $10,000 to $25,000 and would permit joint stock land banks to issue bonds in an amount up to 20 times their capacity. Restoration of representations by cooperative organizations on the directorate of federal farm banks also was urged.

The states were asked by the conference to pass uniform laws regulating dairy products and by-products and inspection of meat animals and meat products and federal and state cooperation in control of plant disease and crop pests was recommended with adoption of a committee report dealing with this subject.

Cooperation Needed

The report also requested the states to pass legislation permitting agricultural cooperation and organization of farmers' cooperative associations and to cooperate with the federal government in gathering and distributing crop and market information. Creation of a national agricultural advisory council as a permanent body also was considered.

The conference in adopting this report expressed disapproval of appropriation of funds by congress for distribution of free seed and went on record as opposed to removal from the department of agriculture of the bureaus of forestry, roads, states relations, weather, soils or markets and crop estimates.

SIGN NAMES, REQUESTS MAYOR HALVORSEN condition exists that needs to be corrected, especially when same is for the benefit to the community at large.

"To enforce the laws of this city or any other city it is necessary to have the cooperation of all the citizens, and by this cooperation I do not mean only the giving of information through the medium of a letter of this sort without the signature of the person sending the letter, or anonymously sent.

"It is to be regretted that there are so many citizens who can find a great deal of fault and criticism with the way the law is enforced and perhaps justly; still, when any of the same citizens are asked to produce the necessary evidence or to swear out a warrant, or even to uphold the officer who is doing his best to enforce the law, it has been very noticeable that these same people are very hesitant about doing their duty as taxpayers should.

"Then, as all citizens know, there are two council meetings a month where all are welcome, and I can see no reason why any one wishing to communicate any information or complaint in this manner cannot do so in person, either at our office, or at the council chambers.

"Consequently upon due consideration have decided in the future to dispose of any such communication in the waste basket where they belong."

"G. E. Halvorsen, Mayor."

have the testimony of Mrs. Brennan stricken out on the ground that she was adjudged insane in 1909 and the judgment still stands against her. A motion earlier in the day to have Mrs. Brennan's testimony impeached was denied, with the understanding that it might be renewed on new grounds.

Teacers Who Sing Are Wanted by School Boards

Here is an idea for school teachers. Cultivate your voice.

According to Mary L. Fulkerson county superintendent of schools, the teacher who can sing enough to lead in singing and teach the students songs, has a much better chance of landing a desirable school.

In fact, directors are becoming quite interested in the singing ability of their teacher, Mrs. Fulkerson said. Not that a really trained voice or high musical education is necessary, but just the ability to lead in singing. The singing teacher is in demand.

Within the past year or two, there has been a revival of the old time idea that singing is good for all, and especially for school children. There is also a feeling that the ability to sing and know many old time songs, and especially patriotic songs, is really part of a child's education.
