

SOCIETY

By MARGUERITE GLEESON

The Monday Bridge club entertained for the members' husbands last Saturday evening at the H. F. Poisal home. Guests of the club were Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Wain, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Eller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schaffer and Mr. and Mrs. O. O. McClelland.

Five hundred was played during the evening and high score Arthur Moore. Refreshments were served during the evening by the hostess, Mrs. Poisal.

The Saturday afternoon ball room dancing classes will be discontinued, according to those in charge. The first Saturday of the month will be the only time when these classes will be held until after the dance festival which will probably be given in April. Mrs. R. L. White who is in charge, plans to give "A Night in Fairyland."

The Pythian Sisters club met in the W. O. W. hall Tuesday afternoon for a social affair. The program was much appreciated and consisted of a solo by Mrs. George O'Neil, reading, Mrs. G. R. York, instrumental solo, Mrs. Earl Anderson, reading, Mrs. T. W. Davies, and a trio by Mrs. George O'Neil, Mrs. Irene St. Helens and Mrs. T. W. Davies. The contest enjoyed resulted in first place going to Mrs. C. E. Barber, the lowest place went to Mrs. Irene St. Helens. Guests of the club for the afternoon were Mrs. George O'Neil and Mrs. J. G. Taylor of Portland. Mrs. C. E. Barber and Mrs. Radcliff will be hostesses for the club at its next meeting, February 14.

CLUBS AND WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

CLUBWOMEN are anticipating the state federation luncheon to be held Saturday, February 11, in the Multnomah hotel in Portland. Mrs. Ida B. Callahan, state federation president, will welcome the club women and their guests. Mrs. Sadie Orr-Dunbar will preside. Dr. Richard Dillehunt will speak on child welfare and A. R. Gephart will tell of social and industrial conditions in Portland. It is anticipated that these speakers will have an important message and social workers as well as club members will be glad to attend and hear the addresses. The speakers will cover the scope of work of the department of which Mrs. Dunbar is chairman in the state federation. There are six departments in the state federation and the chairmen are Miss Vella Winner, Mrs. Sadie Orr-Dunbar, Mrs. Alexander Thompson, Mrs. Collins Elkins, Miss Ava B. Milam and Edith Knight Hill. Mrs. Dunbar's department is in charge of the February luncheon.

The Women's Progressive club of Salem Heights will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday afternoon, February 3, at the Salem Heights community hall. The sewing and millinery classes conducted by Mrs. Barber of Salem, will exhibit the work accomplished during the last class. All the women of the community are being invited to enjoy the program, to examine the work placed on exhibit and to enjoy the light refreshments to be served.

Never Wants Anything Else. "I tried many different kinds of cough medicine," writes Mrs. E. K. Olson, 1917 Ohio Ave., Superior, Wis., "but I never want anything else than Foley's Honey and Tar. I used it for all my children and also for my grandchild. It has always done fine work." Foley's is a pure, whole some and absolutely safe remedy for the relief of colds, croup and whooping cough. Children like it and it checks sneezing and sniffling. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

HOW HARRIET BRAITHWAITE DREW ATTENTION FROM MADGE.

Knowing Katherine's methodical nature I was not surprised to receive another letter from her upon Wednesday night, marked "special delivery." She had not named the hour of her arrival in the first letter, and, as I expected when I opened the envelope, I found that she had remedied the omission with her usual thoughtfulness.

"We shall be with you on the train reaching Marvyn at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon," the brief note ran. "I could not tell at the time I wrote before just what train we could get. Lovingly,"

"KATHERINE"

"That's a short letter for a special," Dicky remarked idly, as I slipped the sheet of notepaper in to the envelope again.

We were all gathered before the open fire in the living room. It was the first chilly evening we had had, and we were revelling in the comfort of the blazing logs. Katie had brought the letter and the book for my signature in such flamboyant fashion that the attention of every one in the room was unconsciously fixed upon the missive.

I shot a quick, furtive appeal at Harriet Braithwaite.

"Yes, isn't it?" I responded carelessly.

Before there was a chance either for me to volunteer an explanation concerning the letter or for any one else to comment upon it, Harriet crumpled toward the side of her chair, apparently in pain.

"Oh, Edwin!" she exclaimed faintly.

We all sprang toward her chair, but I did not share the alarm of the others, for I had a shrewd suspicion that she was simply feigning pain in order to divert the attention of every one from the letter which she must have guessed was from Katherine.

Instant Attention.

Her big husband was the first to reach her side.

"What is it, dear?" he asked with anxious tenderness. "The old pain again? Water, please!" He spoke over his shoulder with the authoritative brevity of a man accustomed to the military-like obedience of everybody under him.

Dicky had a glass filled with water at his elbow in record-breaking time. Dr. Braithwaite, one arm around his wife, had drawn a little vial from his pocket with the other hand.

"Open it," he said to me.

I did so, and from the vial he took a tablet and held it toward his wife. I noticed her hesitate just an instant and was surer than before that her illness was but a subterfuge. Then she swallowed the tablet obediently and drank the water her husband held to her lips.

"It— isn't a bad attack," she said in a minute or two. "I shall be perfectly all right as soon as I have lain down a little while."

I was bending over her solicitously, and I caught her cue and acted upon it at once.

"Do let me go up with you, Harriet," I said.

"Thank you. You are most kind, and I shall be very glad to have you with me," she responded with her usual formal courtesy.

Alone Together.

Dr. Braithwaite bent over her, took her hands and lifted her to her feet.

"Are you sure you are all right to get upstairs?"

"Positively," she returned, smiling at him.

He half-led, half-carried her up the stairs, through the upper hall to her room, put her upon the bed, removed her shoes and pulled the coverlets over her deftly.

"Do go back to the others, now, Edwin," she said. "You know that all I need is a little rest, and Margaret will take care of me beautifully. I do hope mother didn't hear us."

My father had gone to bed early with a slight headache. I think if she had been in the group by the fire her daughter would not have dared to alarm her by pretending illness.

"I'm sure she didn't," the big physician said, "and if you're sure you're all right I would like to hear more of Spencer's yarns."

My father had been telling them of some of his adventures in South America, and Dicky's brother-in-law had been his most attentive listener.

"I'm absolutely all right, dear," she said, and her husband bent and kissed her tenderly.

"See that you take good care of her," he admonished me with a playfully lifted forefinger.

"I feel like a beast," his wife said when he had closed the door. "Of course, you know that there is absolutely nothing the matter with me unless that unneeded dose of heart tonic should stimulate that organ a little too much, but I thought that letter was from Katherine, and was afraid some one might find it out."

"It was," I said quietly, wishing I might edit the assurance I felt that as far as testing Dr. Braithwaite was concerned, this projected meeting might never have been planned.

COUNTY UNIT IS FAVORED HERE

Marion County Principals Go on Record at Session Held Saturday

Principals of public schools in Marion county in session Saturday went on record as favoring the county unit law passed by the 1921 legislature.

The law, which is optional with each county, provides that the entire county shall be one district, and that all teachers, excepting those in districts of the first class, shall be engaged by a board of five elected at large, and that this board shall purchase all supplies for the schools.

Directors of each district are to serve in their usual capacity, except in the engaging of teachers and buying of school supplies. Directors of each district have the right to refuse to accept any teacher that the county board might assign them.

With the county unit plan favored by the leading educators of the county, the county board would select a county superintendent, who would select teachers, place them, fix their salaries, build school houses where necessary and procure needed apparatus.

A blanket tax would be levied upon all that part of the county contained in the rural school district, and all teachers in the sub-districts would receive the same pay for the same work.

One of the arguments in favor of the county unit plan, advanced at the principals' meeting was that two districts of equal wealth, one might have a railroad running through it, and this would enable the district to get off with a lower tax than the district without a railroad. The district without a railroad might have to vote a 25-cent mill tax, while the one with a railroad would vote nothing. A county blanket tax would equalize things.

The plan is for the benefit and reorganization of the elementary schools only. Ten states in the union have the county unit plan as a whole and others have it in part. The proposed plan does in no way affect the present organization for high schools.
