SALEM AUTO RACERS TUNING UP CARS TO ENTER THIS SEASON

Salem may see a lot of genuine auto racing this summer, if there is such a thing as getting the fair grounds track for this use.

Last fall, there was some pretty fast going for a flat dirt track. Two of the most interesting entries, and the two that won most of the attention and the money, were locally-built cars, which added greatly to their popularity. Number 18, the long, black car built by Larry Hofer and Lee Eyerly, cleaned up a number of the northwestern dirt tracks, making some wonderfully fast time; at Centralia, on a half-mile dirt track, it made 10 miles in 11:32. That was much slower than the time made here in Salem, but as it was on a half mile instead of a mile circuit, it was really phenomenal going.

This car is still in storage, and will be raced this year, practically without change. It was built by Lee Eyerly from a Ford chassis, but it wouldn't have been recognized by Henry himself in most of its important features. It has balanced reciprocation and rotating parts. Wherever there is a cam or moving part, it is balanced to secure frictionless motion. Many of the moving parts were also lightened by boring or by machining. The engine was fitted with a 16-valve head that gives free entrance and exit for gases, a large carburetor was put on, and a high tension magneto, with special oiling device all through. It weighs about 1350 pounds.

The Year's Work Given
"It took more than a year's experimentation to make a car that we could count on doing a really good mile," said Eyerly, speaking of the car. "We started to build it as stock cars are built; but under high speed the parts would fall off, or fail to operate, or something would refuse to stand the pressure. But in the end we got a car that will run as fast on a dirt track as any man dares to drive it."

The other car, No. 19, the "Eyerly Midget," will also be ready for the race track. It is a real midget, for it is shortened down to an 84-inch wheel base—the other car has 100 inches—and it is brought down to a 48-inch head. It was cut and pared and filed and ground down to only about 900 pounds in weight. If any one wondered why it looks so small, he may be interested to

CHEMAWA ARMORY SMOKER SCENE

Salem High and Indian School Athletes to Put on Wrestling Bout

Salem high and Chemawa are to stage a smoker at the Chemawa armory Monday night that ought to set the high mark for the year in several athletics.

Seven wrestling contests and one boxing bout are on the card. The big interest, perhaps, is the contest between Ellis White of Salem and Percy Howatt of Chemawa. White is wrestling instructor of the Salem high and a powerful, resourceful grappler. He will go on the mat at about 185 pounds. If the Chemawa entry is as good, it will be a good match.

Ralph White and Alex Williams will meet at about the same weights, 185 pounds. The two Whites are the star heavyweights of the Salem team.

Howard Post of Salem and Caleb Smith of Chemawa will meet at about 150 pounds. Post was one of the Salem star football players of the past season, and is rated a good man. Arthur Blankinship of Salem and Moses Jackson go on at about 118 pounds; Carl Noske of Salem and Alex Eyle match up at 140 pounds; Bill Wright and Henry Jackson at 135, and Kenneth Purdy and Wilford Evans at 125 pounds.

One boxing bout will be staged between Lorenzo Perry of Salem and Roger Alexander of Chemawa, at 118 and 120 pounds. Perry, a colored boy, was about the only applicant from Salem who cared to take on the event.

Father Carey Has Plan To Curb Professionalism

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Fr. Father Carey asserted that the chief reason professionalism has gained a foothold is that high school and college lads realize it is "easy to get away with." He urged that it be made so "hard to

CHEMAWA BRAVES WIN GAME FROM PACIFIC UNIVERSITY

Chemawa braves scalped the Pacific university basketball team in a hard fast game at the Indian school gym Saturday afternoon. They lifted every individual top knot, and carried it out to float over at the council fire in honor of the victory.

Some game. Maybe the Pacific team had beaten them earlier in the season, and had recently walloped the Willamette Bearcats 25 to 20. It didn't stifle the hoops a single bit. They girded up their loins, glued their own hair back out of their eyes so they didn't have to fight from behind—and what they did to the invaders is what made Rome a chopping block for Alaric and his original Huns, and what put the Manhattan islanders off the map when they tried to trade with the canny Dutch traders. There wasn't a thing left of the invaders but their history and not very much of that, when the session ended.

Game Non-Conference
Pacific, which has been of the non-conference grade, has been playing a star game nevertheless. This game, indeed, is the first Pacific has lost this year.

First it nailed the Bearcats at football this season, after being beaten every year since they began making calendars. Next the Pacific walloped up their hoop machine, and were running on high and a foot on the gas, when they struck the Indian trail.

Another means of financing the bonus were advocated by Mr. Ramseyer, who said such taxes could not be passed on and would not be a penalty on individual enterprise.

He thought the present return of $15,000,000 from this source could be increased by $200,000,000 a year without imposing any hardship. Chairman Fordney and some other members of the committee apparently received this suggestion without approval, but other members indicated sympathy with it.

Checked Navy Source
Now that the arms conference has approved the naval limit on "treaty," some committee members are studying the subject of naval and army reduction as one means of providing revenue for the bonus.

Because of the cost of scrapping ships on the ways, they are not certain that the building appropriation can be greatly reduced in the next fiscal year, but it is thought that with many ships now afloat consigned to the scrap-heap the personnel can be cut down sharply, affecting a considerable saving.

BILL IS MISINTERPRETED

National Commander Asserts that Cash Clause is One of Five Items

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 1.—With Legion men speaking before every chamber of commerce in the country, Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, will attempt to obtain a decision favorable to adjusted compensation in the nationwide referendum which has been called for by the United States Chamber of Commerce at Washington.

Chamber Fights Bonus.
This body went on record against compensation at its last annual meeting and has since waged a bitter fight on the Legion's bill, a fight, however, in which many constituent chambers have not joined.

In such important cities as Cleveland, O., Seattle, Wash., Portland, Or., and which many constituent chambers of commerce have repudiated the position of the national organization and have come out strongly for compensation.

Features Outlined.
That a mistaken idea of the bill has been spread broadcast by the persistent attack on the "cash bonus" clause is charged in a letter from MacNider to the president of the Federal chamber.

MacNider points out that the cash payment is only one of five forms of adjustment that the bill provides, and the least valuable of all.

Cash, vocational training, paid-up 20-year endowment insurance, farm or home aid, and land settlement are the five optional forms. MacNider contends that the cash adjustment will not be seized upon by an unreasonable percentage of ex-service men, and that to assume so is to befool the issue.

Explanation of, and due emphasis upon, the remaining four means of adjustment is essential, the commander asserts, in order to have a fair referendum.
