THE masterpieces of the world's art galleries will be the subject of a talk tomorrow by Mrs. Alice H. Dodd before the Salem Woman's club. Mrs. Dodd will dwell at length she says on "How to Appreciate a Picture" and also treat of the methods of the painter in producing a picture. Stereopticon views will be used to illustrate the second part of the talk.

Charles Cone, local soloist will sing "The Horn" and "Dawn." Miss Ada Miller will be accompanist. The social committee who are in charge of the hour to follow the program is under the leadership of Mrs. Clifford Brown. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Alice H. Dodd, Mrs. Chester Cox, Mrs. W. H. Burghardt, Mrs. H. B. Thielson, Mrs. R. K. Pace and Miss Mable Robertson.

The second and third chapters of the Intermediate league of the First Methodist church met for a social evening Wednesday. The second chapter, composed of students from Junior High school, enjoyed a pleasant evening in the church parsonage.

More than 25 boys and girls enjoyed the delightful social evening at each party. The decorations in the church parlors were of first with numberless red hearts intermingled. Cooke Patton entertained the young folks with a number of magical tricks.

Decorations in the parsonage were of red candles and hearts and games of various kinds were played by all. Refreshments reflected the season of St. Valentine.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bishop were guests Wednesday at the marriage of Mr. Bishop's niece, Miss Myrtle Muir in Portland. Miss Muir became the bride of Leigh Barber at a pretty home wedding. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir of Portland and is well known in Salem, having visited here several times. Mr. and Mrs. Barber will make their home in San Francisco.

Mrs. William Burghardt Jr. was among those from Salem attending the Dean Mowery recital in Portland this week.

Mrs. Charles Gray of Salem is a guest for a few days at the Hotel Portland. She has just returned from a trip to California.

Mrs. Guy Harris will entertain this afternoon for the Friday afternoon Bridge club.

Miss Jessie Miller will become the bride of Sprague Carter of

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER 293
WHAT HAPPENED WHEN THEY ALL REACHED HOME.

My savage mood did not serve me long. It changed to sheer panic as we turned into the driveway and I glimpsed the group on the veranda. With Jack Bickett in the mood he had shown on the way home, this little scene of Harriet Braithwaite's setting had most unpleasant possibilities.

Marion, in the seat beside me, looked up at me eagerly, but didn't speak the desire in her eyes to be the stage manager of the surprise of which she knew only the surface. I snatched at the chance her childish enthusiasm might have in giving the thing an air of just happening.

"Go ahead, Marion," I said smiling at her.

She jumped up in the seat just as I drew the car to the steps of the veranda, and had thrown open the door of the tonneau before I had fairly stopped.

"Surprise! Surprise!" she called "Grandma, Uncle Dicky! Everybody! See what I've brought you!"

Dicky, with his usual delightful air of welcoming guests, had dashed down the steps as he caught sight of Jack and Katherine, and was helping Katherine out of the car as he talked volubly.

Dr. Braithwaite's Welcome.

"Well! What do you know about this?" he demanded. "Madge, you certainly put me over on us this time. Jack, old man, welcome to the ancestral seat of Richard Graham Jr. Katherine, I'm mighty glad to see you. Come up to the mater. How glad she'll be to see you again!"

Thanks to Marion and Dicky the guests had been swept to the center of the veranda before they had a chance to see the Braithwaite. I shot a swift, frightened, guilt-sharing glance at Harriet Braithwaite, and was relieved to see that she was magnificent in her control of any showing of emotion. Her manner was perfect as she rose with the others when we reached the veranda.

There was no need to look to see the effect of the unexpected guests had upon Dr. Braithwaite. As he caught sight of Katherine his face lit up, his eyes fairly danced with pleasure, and he strode toward her, both hands outstretched, showing Dicky to one side with one movement of his mighty shoulders.

"Katherine Sonnet!" he exclaimed. "Well! Well!" The expletives boomed out like the explosions of small artillery. He had seized Katherine's small hands in his own big ones, and was shaking them up and down vigorously, gazing down at her the while as if Dicky declared afterward, "she were something off the Christmas tree that Ed had wanted a long time."

A Dark Frown.

"Harriet!" He turned toward his wife, who, indeed, was at his elbow, smiling with just the right air of welcome. "Do you see who's here? Our own little girl, who helped us out so royally! I suppose I don't dare to kiss her now she's a staid old Benedictess, or whatever they call the feminine of Benedict, but you can make up for me."

"I'll do my best, Edwin," she laughed back, and then her arms went round Katherine in a close embrace, and I knew that the kiss she gave her was one of genuine affection.

For Harriet Braithwaite nor

Capotes for sports wear have never been any too sane, with their tricks of catching every breeze that blows and with their hampering of the arms, but here is a sports cape that seems really sensible, and bids fair to be the forerunner of a very liberal crop.

It is short, reaching only a little below the elbow, circularly cut, making it full and loose, without cumbersome shirring. Additional practicality is given in the deep slits for the arms. These slits and the exaggerated Buster Brown collar are serviceably piped with black kid.

This cape takes the place of a jacket or sports coat, with a plain skirt and belt of the same material.

The material, by the way, is a startling feature of the suit, startling enough to make its severe plainness satisfactory. A checker board pattern of green and blue is plaided with a huge, bright green stripe.

If these cape suits have the vogue which they seem to be beginning, it will be reasonably safe to predict a renewed interest in the tailored silk blouse.

In their wake will come the sports oxford of white brick, tan leather, or white, combined with patches of brilliant color.

Newest among the woolen hats is the little, round affair, with a knitted brim, neither particularly shapely nor becoming, but very smart, indeed.

any other woman of average mentality and common sense could have mistaken the greeting which big Dr. Braithwaite had given Katherine Bickett for anything else than what it was—genuine fatherly pleasure in once more seeing a girl who had worked shoulder to shoulder with him through the greatest cataclysm the world had ever known, and who had nursed both himself and his wife through dangerous illnesses. There had not been a single trace of self-consciousness in the greeting. It had been a genuine outburst of the big physician's real feelings.

I knew that for Harriet Braithwaite the question of the nature of her husband's affection for Katherine which had made a hell of her life for so many months was forever settled.

But what did Jack Bickett think of it?

I looked at him furtively, fearfully. I had caught one glimpse of his ugly mood, and I knew only too well his old jealousy of Dr. Braithwaite, the misery he had caused Katherine on account of it, both before her marriage and after it. I had not dared to look at him when Dr. Braithwaite had made that jocular reference to a kiss, and hoped that he had not heard it, but when I saw his icy eyes and dark frown I knew that we were in for an explosion. (To be continued).

Exemptions Possible in Liability Insurance Cost

In a letter addressed to Miss Susanne W. Homes, Jackson county school superintendent, Fred A. Williams, chairman of the public service commission, explains the conditions under which school districts employing busses to transport pupils to and from school may be exempted from taking out indemnity bonds or liability insurance under the transportation act of the last special session. It is explained that on proper showing districts may be exempted, but that they still must operate under the law and will be required to report to the commission as provided in the act.

Goes Farther

A can of Calumet Baking Powder will make more pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, etc. than a can of most other brands.

It lasts longer — goes farther because it contains more than the ordinary leavening strength — therefore you use less.

When a recipe calls for two teaspoons of baking powder, use two level teaspoons of Calumet, the results will always be the same—perfectly raised bakings—remember this when you buy baking powder and don't forget that Calumet is the economic buy because it goes farther.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound can when you want it.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked. Just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold!

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.
