

BELFAST SHOWS MORE CASUALTIES

Collins Expects to Be in Position to Release Kidnaped Ulsterites

LONDON, Feb. 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Shooting continued throughout Tuesday in Belfast. Four persons were killed and many were wounded.

British troops were brought into Belfast today to restore order. They hardly assumed duties before one of the soldiers was shot and wounded.

In the political sphere the principal news of the day was an announcement by Michael Collins, head of the provisional government in Ireland, to Winston Spencer Churchill, the British secretary for the colonies, that Mr. Collins would be in a position immediately to secure the release of a number of kidnaped Ulsterites.

The general convention of the Sinn Fein has been set for February 21, and it is considered in political circles here that a majority vote in favor of the treaty between Ireland and Great Britain will result.

Another Examination to Be Given Mrs. Wurtzbarger

PORTLAND, Or., Feb. 14.—Attorney General Daugherty instructed United States Attorney Humphreys today by telegram to have two "impartial physicians" examine Mrs. Alma Louise Wurtzbarger and determine whether the climate at Canyon City, Colo., will impair her health.

Mrs. Wurtzbarger has been sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment at the Colorado state penitentiary for murdering her husband last September 4 on the Chemawa Indian reservation. The prisoner is suffering from asthma and claims the high altitude in Colorado will shorten her life.

Estate Increases in Value in Ten Years

An increase in value of $14,599.88 during the 10 years he handled the W. D. Claggett estate, was reported to the county court yesterday by F. A. Welch, executor, when he petitioned the court to set a date for the final hearing and closing of the estate.

During his later years, W. D. Claggett sold many tracts of land on contract, payable in installments, and his executor in handling the estate found it necessary to carry on the administration until all contracts were close and deeds given by the executor.

BIG SMOKESTACK IS COMPLETED

New Landmark at Chemawa 135 Feet High and Unique in This Section

One of the landmarks of this section of the country is the big new smokestack for the central heating plant at the Chemawa Indian school. It was finished a few days ago, and is now ready for the installation of the plant to smoke it up.

The stack is 135 feet in height with a six-foot opening at the top, and is built of radial brick throughout, making it one of the most symmetrical structures of its kind anywhere in the west.

The old heating plant, built on the level with the rest of the school buildings, never could quite handle all the heating required,

Mrs. Edgar F. Luckenbach, wife of the well known steamship magnate, "takes herself for a walk" at the Florida resort where she is sojourning during the winter months.

As soon as the examination is completed Humphreys has been ordered to forward the report immediately to Washington. A 10 day stay of execution granted Mrs. Wurtzbarger expires Wednesday. The attorney general suggested that the court be asked to extend the stay until the department of justice gives further advice as to the place of confinement.

As the condensation of the steam left the pipes full of water that had no way to flow by gravity back to the boilers—because they were higher instead of lower than the source of the condensation. The school had grown far beyond the original installation, and the congestion couldn't be helped.

The new central plant is built on lower ground, that will give ideal service for such a plant. The work of trenching and installing the pipes to serve all the buildings is to be done as rapidly as possible. Some of the buildings that have had only stove heat, are to have hot water and steam from the new central plant.

19,198 SOLDIERS SEEK BENEFITS

Some Regulations of Commission Explained for Ex-Service Men

Up to last night ex-service men in Oregon who are qualified to take advantage of the bonus law had sent in to the office of the bonus commission, 19,198 applications.

It is estimated that by May 25, the last day when records of service may be filed with the commission, that 25,000 or more ex-service men will have filed in Oregon. It is estimated that about 34,000 in the state are qualified to apply for the benefits of the law.

According to the rules and regulations governing the commission, an ex-service man may apply for the benefits of a loan on land, although he may not have title to any land at the time the application is filed.

However, before the transaction of a loan is completed, and first payment made, title must pass to the applicant. In such instances, the entire transaction will be handled through a bank or a trust company.

Among those interested in the welfare of soldiers who apply for the benefits of the law in taking out loans on real estate, there is the impression that land may be purchased at a lower figure this spring and summer than at any future time. There has during the past six months been a general depression in real estate values, and this condition, it is thought, will benefit the ex-service man who wants a home on the farm.
