DAVE SHADE FAILS TO LIFT LAURELS FROM JACK BRITTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Jack Britton, 37, a veteran of 19 years in the ring, and David Shade, 19-year-old San Francisco lad, fought 15 rounds to a draw in Madison Square garden tonight.

Britton, the boxing master, appeared to have outpunched the challenger in all but two rounds and the verdict of a draw was hooted for several minutes by the crowd, as Shade was wild and landed few effective blows.

Britton, only half a pound under the present welterweight limit of 147 pounds at 2 p. m., was in excellent condition. Only in one round, the 11th, did he seem to tire.

His opponent, the youngest of the fighting Shade brothers, led the fighting at every opportunity. He staggered the champion once or twice with rights to the jaw, but his attacks following these blows were always smothered by Britton's defense.

Jack Britton entered the ring shortly after 10 o'clock tonight to defend his title as world's welterweight boxing champion. The weights were announced as Britton 146 1/2; Shade 144 1/2.

Vincent Pepper Martin, New York featherweight, received the judges' decision over Tommy Noble of England, after eight rounds.

Main event by rounds:

Round one: Shade led with a left to the jaw driving the champion to the ropes. They engaged in a light encounter at close quarters. Both were wild. They exchanged short rights to the jaw.

Round two: Britton shook Shade with a right hook to the jaw. Shade sent a straight left to Britton's nose. Britton sharply uprooted Shade with a right. Shade missed frequently.

Round six: Britton hooked a right to the stomach. Shade sent two hard lefts to the champion's jaw. Shade staggered the challenger with a right to the jaw. Britton came back, showering Shade with hard right and left hooks to the jaw. He swung a hard right to Shade's body.

Round seven: The champion sent a left to the jaw and two more to the stomach. Shade shot a right to the jaw and two hard lefts to the body in return. Britton sent a short left to the jaw.

Champ's Jaw Stops One Round eight: Britton sent rights and lefts to stomach. Shade landed several light blows on the champion's head. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade sent a hard left to Britton's jaw.

Round nine: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round ten: Shade sent hard lefts to the body, following with rights to the head. They exchanged hard rights and lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a hard right. The champion sent him away with a hard left hook to the chin.

Round eleven: Shade kept the champion going away following an effective assault to the body. Britton appeared tired. In an attempt to knock each other out they missed many punches, both swinging wildly.

Shade Aggressor Round twelve: Shade landed a hard left on the champion's jaw. Britton sent two rights to the jaw in return. They exchanged straight lefts to the head. Britton hooked the challenger with a sharp left to the jaw. Shade continued to be the aggressor, but Britton's blows in defense were more effective than those he received.

Round thirteen: Shade started chasing Britton around the ring and as the champion backed away he sent hard rights and lefts to Shade's head and body. Britton staggered Shade with right hooks to the jaw. Britton sent two staggering rights to the jaw at the bell.

Round fifteen: Britton sent a right to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round sixteen: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round seventeen: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round eighteen: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round nineteen: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round twenty: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

Round twenty-one: Britton sent a right hook to the jaw and followed it with a straight right to the chin. They exchanged lefts to the head. Shade caught Britton's jaw with a sharp left with straight lefts. They were the best blows landed by Shade so far.

SQUIRE EDGEGATE. Liquor, Like Murder, Will Leak Out

PRICE OF ARMS IS COMING DOWN

Before-the-War Levels Not Yet Reached, But Steady Approach Noted

Sportsmen, targeteers, gopher scalp-hunters, householders who wonder what they do if a tramp were to break in on them when they haven't a gun, will be glad to learn that gun prices are actually coming back down to where they used to be.

The Winchester small bores have taken the biggest tumble: the No. 90 22-caliber rifle, a standard the world over, has been reduced from $31.15 to $24.75, or a little more than 20 per cent.

The Remington arm is now quoted at $25.50. Time was when these arms brought $25 apiece before the World War. However, they are now quoted at a price fairly close to that of 1917, when the United States went into the war.

It needs to be remembered that the government still takes a 10 per cent war tax on all these sporting goods. That is one reason for the high price. As the arms are all sold with the tax already paid, the buyer sees only the lump sum, without knowing just why it is so large.

Congress has taken the tax off golf balls and face powder and many other articles of sport, but perhaps not many of the congressmen actually shoot guns, while they do peck away at golf and their wives tell 'em where to head in on the face powder tax.

Until the war tax is removed from both arms and ammunition, the shooters are likely to have to pay pretty high for their sports.

The old reliable Colt's arms have really and truly come down with a sweeping apology for delaying it so long. The Colt's series now go at the pre-war price or thereabouts.

Some of the other arms companies also have lowered the tariff, like the Savage and the Smith & Wesson, though not so much as the Colts.

The great boost in the price of arms practically took the single-barreled popular priced shotguns off the market. Guns that used to sell at from $6 to $9, went up to two or three times as much.

The trade wouldn't take them and there have been barely enough of them sold to keep the brood alive. Rather curiously the old black powder guns that a few years ago were abandoned for the later smokeless high-power guns, are selling today in the second-hand stores at fully twice the prices of three or even two years ago.

They will perhaps tumble utterly when really low prices once more prevail for the smokeless stuff.

CARE IS URGED IN BONUS LOAN

Governor Olcott Asks Appraisers and Attorneys to Protect Soldiers

PORTLAND, Or., Feb. 17.—The obligation of conservatism in dealing with each application for a soldiers' bonus loan was urged by Governor Ben W. Olcott today in his address before attorneys and appraisers from all parts of the state, in conference here to outline the state's plans and policies in the administration of the bonus for ex-service men.

"As a result of the loan feature it is possible for thousands of ex-service men to establish themselves on homes or farms, for millions of dollars to be added to the taxable resources of the state, in property and for business generally to be revived and stimulated throughout the state by the expenditure within it of approximately $20,000,000 in the next two years," said the governor.

"On the other hand, if the law is carelessly handled, thousands of ex-service men may be ruined financially by assuming obligations that they cannot meet, their faith in government and humanity impaired, their hopes and aspirations shattered and the state of Oregon may find itself with a vast amount of real estate of possible little saleable value on its hands."

position to any of the treaties. It was said there was no considerable show of reluctance by the Democrats to accede to the naval limitation of Far Eastern treaties, although they reserved final judgment on all of them.

White House officials revealed today that should the senate decide to adopt a reservation against use of armed forces under the four-power treaty, President Harding would not interpose serious opposition although he believes that no reservations are necessary. Mr. Harding was described as not desiring to be a stickler for the crossing of T's and the dotting of I's and as a feeling that he should not attempt to tell the senate what method of ratification it should adopt.

Harding Sees Lodge

In connection with his reply to the resolution requesting information as to the treaty negotiations, the president conferred today with Senator Lodge, who was a member of the American delegation and is understood also to have taken steps to seek the opinion of Secretary Hughes who is in Bermuda. At first it was indicated that he might await Mr. Hughes' return to Washington to receive from him personally his version of the negotiations, but it was said later at the White House that such a delay is not considered necessary.
