Marriage to Viscount Lascelles Performed Amid Great Splendor

HUSBAND IS COMMONER

Tremendous Throng of Pageant-Loving People Gather for Occasion

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(By The Associated Press)—King George today gave his only daughter, Princess Mary, in marriage to Viscount Lascelles. It was a great national event which will live long in the memories of the vast throngs whose unrestrained plaudits greeted England's princess as she passed through festive streets to the altar in stately old Westminster Abbey to become the bride of an English commoner.

A bridal march within the walls rich in royal association, and a ritual witnessed by a grand assembly and attended by the traditional splendor of the more superfluous occasions were the more superficial of the day's proceedings. That which captivated an empire's imagination was the realization of a dream much older than empires—the marriage of a beautiful girl of exalted rank to a man of more humble station but of proven gallantry.

Romance Not Minimized

The testimony of genealogists that through King Henry VII, the bride and bridegroom are both descended from William the Conqueror in no way minimized the romantic aspect of the affair.

In the joyous faces of those crowding either side of the route from the palace to the sanctuary, and in their tumultuous and prolonged outbursts of cheering and applause, the good will and approval of a pageant-loving people, anxious to share in the happiness of this notable day, were vividly displayed.

Another source of the nation's felicitations was reflected in the daily press, which exulted that "this wedding does not link us with the foreign alliance that might prove in future years unpopular."

Labor Paper Speaks

This feeling was expressed in various other forms.

"Today our princess marries not a foreign prince, but an English gentleman," and here is an diplomatic alliance—the future of Europe involved in a union contracted for reasons of state."

The solitary exception to the editorial approval was the reminder of the laborite Daily Herald.

that "beneath the surface of life merry England today lies a mass of misery and suffering," and "England is not all like the streets of Westminster—there are slums under the very palace walls."

But it was from the slums, wherever they exist in London, that a large proportion of today's madly cheering throngs poured to acclaim the princess and her husband. Among the richly garbed wedding guests in the Abbey were half a dozen representatives of organized labor and their wives, hidden at the instance of the king.

Mr. Roseland is to be leaving.

Queens Wear Diamonds

The contrasting colorings of Prince George's uniform, the air service regalia of Prince Henry and the richly embroidered cloak-like vestments of the clergy, far outshone in brilliancy the cream and brocade of Queen Mary's gown and the more subdued shades of Alexandra's dress. Both queens were aglow with diamonds. Queen Mary wearing a great V-shaped corsage set with dozens of gems. The king and queens, the Duke of York and Viscount Lascelles each wore the blue sash of the Order of the Garter the bridegroom having received that honor from the king on Sunday.

Just before the bride and king reached the church railing, the Duke of York noticed that the carpet leading to the steps to the high altar was wrinkled. He arose from his seat beside Queen Mary, stopped and straightened the carpet, and resumed his seat.

But apparently he had not smoothed all the wrinkles for when the king hearing the bride on his arm reached the top step a moment later, he tripped, but quickly regained his poise by bracing his arm against the railing.

Bride Is Nervous

The bride swayed perceptibly and seemed quite nervous as the ceremony which scarcely exceeded 10 minutes began. The subdued light of the altar candles which mingled with the sun's rays filtering through the abbey's multi-colored windows, her face was pale as Dean Ryle moved forward and began the marriage service, Viscount Lascelles having reached his place on the bride's right.

For the first time on such an occasion, the princess was designated by the term "woman" by the clergy. The service employed was that set forth in the book of common prayer, with slight modifications by the dean to avoid some crudities.

One evening this week, a special dinner is to be given at the Oregon state prison, to the melody minstrel's who gave a delightful series of concerts in their January appearance. They gave their program for six evenings, to a crowded house on every appearance except the first and the last. The first was their dress rehearsal for the prison family, and the last was an extra, overflow meeting after most of the people had already seen it or given up hope and didn't really know it was coming again; and at that it had more than 500 people. It is a regular custom to have these workers such a banquet, where there will be toasts and boasts and roasts and almost everything that could go with a joyful gathering.

SYNDICALISM ACT UPHOLD BY COURT

Case of Joseph Laundry, However, is Remanded to Lower Court

The constitutionality of the Oregon criminal syndicalism law is upheld by the case of the state against Joseph Laundry, appellant, appealed from the Multnomah county is reversed and the case remanded for new trial in an opinion yesterday, written by Justice Harris. Justice Bean dissented.

By coincidence Laundry arrived at Salem yesterday to begin the two-year sentence imposed upon him by the lower court following his conviction. Laundry had just reached the prison when he was informed that the case had been reversed, and he was allowed to return to Portland. It is said he will remain under bonds pending the next trial.

Reversal of the case is based on the fact that the indictment charged one crime and Laundry was tried for two crimes.

The opinion points out that a large number of other states have criminal syndicalism laws similar to that enacted in Oregon. It is held that the act is not an unlawful interference with personal liberty. Further it is held that the act is not class legislation, and that it is not an interference with the legitimate right of free speech.

"Freedom of speech," says the opinion, "does not mean unbridled license. No man can enter a crowded theater, falsely shout fire, and thus cause a panic resulting in the crushing, maiming and killing of enfeebled men, helpless women and innocent children, and then justify his conduct by brazenly proclaiming that he did no more than to exercise his constitutional right of free speech."

Further it is held that the right of search and seizure was not violated by the officers in the raid that resulted in the arrest of Laundry.

Other opinions handed down yesterday were:

Columbia Contract company, appellant; vs Estate of Robert Wakefield; appeal from Multnomah county; motion to dismiss appeal allowed in opinion by Justice Brown.

Robert E. Harbison, et al, vs City of Hillsboro, appellant; appeal from Washington county; action for damages caused by city depositing sewage in drainage ditch which drains plaintiff's land. Opinion by Justice Bean. Judge George R. Bagley affirmed.

OREGON REAL BOY COUNTRY

Returns at County Superintendent's Office Show Interesting Records

Oregon is a great country for boys, according to the returns to the county school superintendent's office, as attendance in rural schools during the month ending February 24.

The Kiverview school on rural route 3, Salem, had an enrollment of 26 boys and 20 girls. And at the Beama Crest school, the boys are largely in the majority with an enrollment of 33, compared to 26 girls attending the school.

At the Salem Heights school, it happens that girls are in the majority, as the returns show 30 boys and 41 girls enrolled for the month ending February 24.

But at the Clear Lake school, just north of Salem, the girls are pretty lonesome, as the returns for the month show that 43 boys were enrolled, while there were only 18 girls.

Mt. Angel has doubled its school attendance since the new high school building was erected. Compared to the size of the city, Mt. Angel has the largest attendance of all cities in the county. According to the returns for the month ending February 24, there were 360 pupils attending the Mt. Angel schools, of which 189 are boys and 171 girls.

In the Turner school the girls are one in the majority, as the attendance records show 60 boys and 61 girls for the past month.

In the Liberty school just south of Salem, there are 45 boys and 55 girls.

The Hazel Green district is going strong in boys as the enrollment last month was 29 boys and 18 girls.

And it is the same at West Station, where the enrollment is 36 boys and 19 girls for the month ending February 24.

At Pratum, the girls have a majority of three as the February attendance was 27 boys and 30 girls.

At St. Paul, the attendance was 65 boys and 48 girls.

At Brooks there were 36 boys and 33 girls, while at the Pringle school, the boys numbered 36 and girls 29 for February.

JOHN RANKIN IS CLUB'S SPEAKER

Salem Kiwanians Listen to Talk by Past President from Portland

"We are working with you on the Chemawa Indian school question and we will assist you in every way we can," declared John Rankin, past president of the Portland Kiwanis club, in addressing the Salem Kiwanis club yesterday at the Marion hotel luncheon.

After declaring that his club would work with the Salem Kiwanis club in urging an appropriation by congress by which the Indian school may be enlarged, Mr. Rankin complimented the Salem Kiwanians on their large attendance in proportion to the membership of the club.

Mr. Rankin suggested that the Salem club as well as all others should have an educational committee that would report at each meeting on welfare work. He also suggested that before new members were officially presented to the club they appear before a special committee and be fully informed as to what the Kiwanis club stands for.

In order to extend the work of Kiwanis clubs, Mr. Rankin said that the northwest had been divided into four regional districts and that each club would be asked to take an interest in surrounding towns, and to suggest an organization of Kiwanis clubs where conditions were favorable. "We want the state of Oregon covered with Kiwanis clubs," declared Mr. Rankin.

Dr. John L. Lynch, member of the Kiwanis club, reporting on his visit to the automobile department of the secretary of state's office, under Mr. Gabrielson's direction, were kept in such fine shape that there was a complete record of every car in the state and information as to the various owners of cars.

STATE RECEIVES MORE BIG TRUCKS

Huge Machines Held Over at Conclusion of War Used on Highways

The state highway department has been putting into service some of the big Liberty trucks that arrived in Salem in December, as the federal contribution.

They are huge machines, about the biggest of their kind, and they will carry all the load that any truck ever ought to handle on a public road. They are being fitted with 14-inch tread tires, to replace the dual tires of the original equipment.

These big tires come in solid tread except for the lateral cuts that give them their grip and give them also a better expansion than a solid rim tire. But they are being grooved with a one-inch groove two inches deep all the way around the center of the circumference of the tire. This cut in the tire gives an air space that allows the rubber to cool, and a tire so treated, even though it has lost a considerable quantity of rubber, will actually outwear the giant tire that overheats and burns itself out.

The state received 11 of these huge trucks in one shipment, and they will be of vast service in the state road program. They had never seen service, other than to wait out in the weather for some one to come and get them after the war was over.

In addition to the 3200 checks that will be placed in the mails Thursday, another 1500 checks have been put through final processes for payment within the next day. It was stated by Secretary Brumbaugh and a corresponding number of checks will be sent out as rapidly as the audit is completed and checks drawn by Secretary of State Kozler.

While no loan payments will be made this week, the loan machinery is in operation over the state and the first appraisals have been received back by the commission from several counties. Experts of long experience in the loan game will assist in this work. It was stated by members of the commission that there is no conceivable machinery under which the loan payments could be paid as rapidly as the cash bonus claims, although it will be their policy to make loan payments just as rapidly as possible.

Two Are Accused

According to the police, Mrs. Rupp directly charged two of the men with the murder of Taylor.

The officers quoted her as declaring Kirby and Calvert had made threats against Taylor in her presence, asserting the director had "injured their business." She declared they showed nervousness the night of February 1, when Taylor was murdered in his bungalow court apartments, were away from her house for a time early that night and returning "stayed up all night."

The police stated Kirby and Calvert were no strangers to them and that they believed some of the six, if not all, were wanted in Chicago, where fingerprints would be sent for identification.

Alibi is Claimed

Mrs. Rupp, who is 40 years old, formerly resided in Canada, but has made Los Angeles her home "for some time," according to what the police said she told them.

The police stated "East said he was a laborer," Kirby, a property man at a motion picture studio; Herkey a sheet metal worker; Lynch and Calvert gas-fitters, and Amornheim a chauffeur.

Each man declared he was prepared to offer an alibi the night Taylor was murdered, the officers said.

Mrs. Rupp, who is said to be ill and in bed, is guarded by the police at her home. The detective said they had previous acquaintance with her, Sergeant Baldrige declaring she was "an eccentric" and had once attempted suicide

REBUILDING MEN IS DESCRIBED

Book on Physical and Vocational Rehabilitation Issued by Board

Operation of the physical and vocational rehabilitation department of the state industrial accident commission is described in a booklet which the department has just received from the printer. Illustrations are published to show what has been done to rebuild workmen who have been disabled while employed in Oregon industries. Many have learned new vocations, and have become independent operators of business establishments of their own. Others have learned bookkeeping and other office or clerical work. One man who suffered a broken back is taking a course in mechanical drawing and drafting under a special tutor.

All of this assistance is from funds of the industrial accident commission. A significant paragraph in the booklet says: "It is impossible to compute in dollars and cents the saving that is being made by this work, but it can be safely said that the saving which results from cutting down time loss and reducing the amount of awards for permanent partial disability far exceeds all the expense that is attached to the department. But of far greater importance is the personal benefit received by the individuals who are restored to a condition of health and usefulness. There is also untold satisfaction in providing the means of saving many victims of industrial accidents from being seriously crippled for life."

BUILDING BOOM IS ON AT DALLAS

Prediction Made That Fifteen Homes Will Be Constructed by Autumn

DALLAS, Or., Feb. 28.—(Special to The Statesman)—Dallas is just beginning on one of the biggest building booms that has hit the city for many years. The scarcity of houses for rent has been so acute in this city for the past few years that moneyed people are beginning to realize there is money to be made in building houses to rent and as a consequence many new structures are to rise in Dallas this year.

Two new houses are already under construction, the home of J. J. Clements on East Court street and the E. F. Sperry house on Clay street. Both are in desirable parts of the city with concrete sidewalks and improved streets.

Among the citizens who are planning new homes the coming summer are H. H. Welch and F. E. Kersey. Mr. Rich last week purchased a building site on West Court street and will erect a modern home. Kersey plans to build another modern residence on his property on Oak street.

In addition to the residence contemplated and under construction a new business building is to be built on Mill street. J. W. Crider who owns the property now occupied by Phil Begin with a cleaning and pressing parlor will tear down the old wooden structure, which is one of the old business houses in the city and was erected before the days of brick and concrete buildings, and will next Monday begin the erection of a new concrete store building 20 by 70 feet. The new building when completed will be reoccupied by Mr. Begin who intends to install one of the most modern and up-to-date cleaning and pressing establishments in the state.

A number of ex-soldiers who are taking advantage of the bonus law are also contemplating the erection of new homes in Dallas this summer and it is safe to say that before fall no less than 15 homes will have been built.

BOOTLEGGERS MENTIONED

Mrs. Rupp was said to have given the police the name of an alleged bootlegger from whom the six men are reported to have obtained the liquor they were charged with having sold. The officers were said to be searching for this man.

The arrests today revives the theory, brought forward several times and as often said to have been discarded, that Taylor was slain because of his alleged activities against a narcotic ring. It was even declared the officers had practically proved the director once engaged in a physical encounter with a drug peddler he caught negotiating with an actress friend of Taylor's.

Two Are Accused

According to the police, Mrs. Rupp directly charged two of the men with the murder of Taylor.

The officers quoted her as declaring Kirby and Calvert had made threats against Taylor in her presence, asserting the director had "injured their business." She declared they showed nervousness the night of February 1, when Taylor was murdered in his bungalow court apartments, were away from her house for a time early that night and returning "stayed up all night."

The police stated Kirby and Calvert were no strangers to them and that they believed some of the six, if not all, were wanted in Chicago, where fingerprints would be sent for identification.

Alibi is Claimed

Mrs. Rupp, who is 40 years old, formerly resided in Canada, but has made Los Angeles her home "for some time," according to what the police said she told them.

The police stated "East said he was a laborer," Kirby, a property man at a motion picture studio; Herkey a sheet metal worker; Lynch and Calvert gas-fitters, and Amornheim a chauffeur.

Each man declared he was prepared to offer an alibi the night Taylor was murdered, the officers said.

Mrs. Rupp, who is said to be ill and in bed, is guarded by the police at her home. The detective said they had previous acquaintance with her, Sergeant Baldrige declaring she was "an eccentric" and had once attempted suicide

Prediction Made That Fifteen Homes Will Be Constructed by Autumn

DALLAS, Or., Feb. 28.—(Special to The Statesman)—Dallas is just beginning on one of the biggest building booms that has hit the city for many years. The scarcity of houses for rent has been so acute in this city for the past few years that moneyed people are beginning to realize there is money to be made in building houses to rent and as a consequence many new structures are to rise in Dallas this year.

Two new houses are already under construction, the home of J. J. Clements on East Court street and the E. F. Sperry house on Clay street. Both are in desirable parts of the city with concrete sidewalks and improved streets.

Among the citizens who are planning new homes the coming summer are H. H. Welch and F. E. Kersey. Mr. Rich last week purchased a building site on West Court street and will erect a modern home. Kersey plans to build another modern residence on his property on Oak street.

In addition to the residence contemplated and under construction a new business building is to be built on Mill street. J. W. Crider who owns the property now occupied by Phil Begin with a cleaning and pressing parlor will tear down the old wooden structure, which is one of the old business houses in the city and was erected before the days of brick and concrete buildings, and will next Monday begin the erection of a new concrete store building 20 by 70 feet. The new building when completed will be reoccupied by Mr. Begin who intends to install one of the most modern and up-to-date cleaning and pressing establishments in the state.

A number of ex-soldiers who are taking advantage of the bonus law are also contemplating the erection of new homes in Dallas this summer and it is safe to say that before fall no less than 15 homes will have been built.

BOOTLEGGERS MENTIONED

Mrs. Rupp was said to have given the police the name of an alleged bootlegger from whom the six men are reported to have obtained the liquor they were charged with having sold. The officers were said to be searching for this man.

The arrests today revives the theory, brought forward several times and as often said to have been discarded, that Taylor was slain because of his alleged activities against a narcotic ring. It was even declared the officers had practically proved the director once engaged in a physical encounter with a drug peddler he caught negotiating with an actress friend of Taylor's.

STATE RECEIVES MORE BIG TRUCKS

Huge Machines Held Over at Conclusion of War Used on Highways

The state highway department has been putting into service some of the big Liberty trucks that arrived in Salem in December, as the federal contribution.

They are huge machines, about the biggest of their kind, and they will carry all the load that any truck ever ought to handle on a public road. They are being fitted with 14-inch tread tires,
