CORVALLIS BOXER DECIDES HE WILL NOT BOX IN SALEM

Three of the events that had been scheduled in the original card for the company F smoker Tuesday, March 14, have been laid on the shelf—at least in part.

Word was received yesterday from Earl Snyder, of Corvallis, the top liner with Fred Hall of Salem, that he cannot come. The illness of his wife, and a rush of work in his place of business, where he cannot be spared without losing his job, he claims, make it necessary to give up the match. Salem fans are not satisfied with the explanation.

Manager Overdorp at once wired to Portland, and secured the services of Art Richards, the middleweight boxer who recently went against Basanta Singh, the Hindoo wrestler, in a match of gloves against grapples. Richards will come to the middleweight limit, 158 pounds. Hall has weighed as low as 155, but will enter the ring fully up to the limit, so that it will be an even match. The public will be disappointed in not seeing Snyder, who was touted as having an impressive record of 16 knockouts in his last 16 matches. Richards, however, is known to be a slashing batter, and he and Hall ought to make a whirlwind match.

Ritchie of Portland was yesterday secured by wire, to take Svyerson's place against Krim. Svyerson had been substituted for Hayes, and now he too has to give it up, because of an injury received in training.

It is understood that Red Arm-down from Corvallis with Snyder, will also resign his honors. One or two other local matches will be substituted for this one which had been slated between Armstrong and Raymond of Salem.

Dan Healy, of Salem, who is to meet Joe Bittles of Chemawa in the semi-final six-round event has been working out for the past two weeks at Portland with the fast boys of the Rose City. He realizes that in the Indian he has a worthy opponent, a game, two-tisted lad who has the strength of a welterweight and a style that baffles any but a resourceful or dead-luck boxer. It hasn't been fully decided whether the Indian is phenomenally clever, or merely efficiently awkward in his own peculiar style. There is nothing else nearly like it, anywhere within the ken of a Salem ring fan. But that he is a bad actor with the gloves, all who have seen him agree, and it is conceded that Champ Healy is talking the only safe course, by getting as ready as a man can do for the clash.

Bittles and Krim are working steadily out at Chemawa, and there's no question of their being fit. Some of the lads out there have worked up on coal shoveling at the school heating plant. Some of the splendidly athletic wrestlers who did things to the West high and the Oregon City wrestlers, had practiced up mostly with coal shovels, and they appeared without an ounce of surplus weight and with figures like bronze Apollos.

BENT PROUD OF HIS RELAY TEAM

Chemawa Coach Counts on Making Good Showing in Meet at Eugene

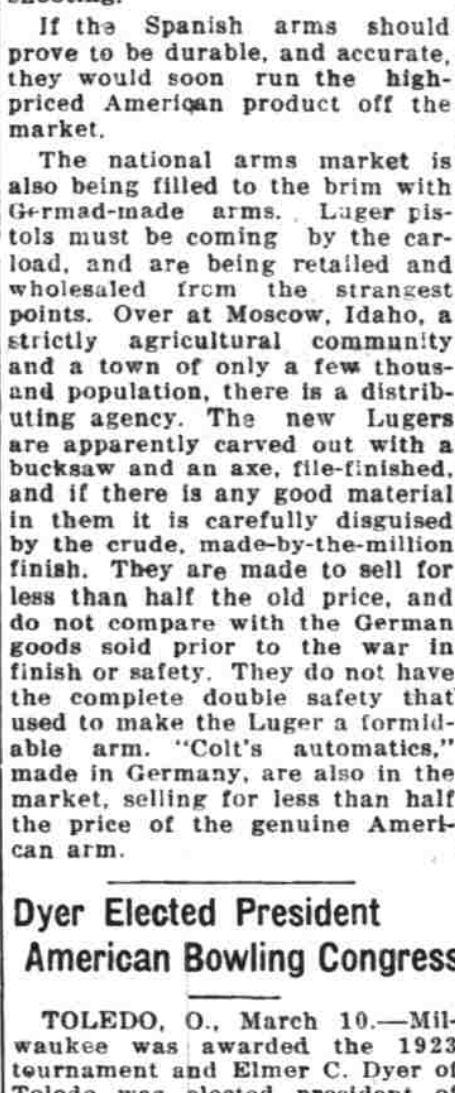

Coach George Bent of Chemawa counts on someone having to run a lot when the state relay track meet comes off at Eugene, next month. He is expecting to provide either the winners, or at least the runners-up for some of the speed events.

He will have Spearson, the full-blood Blackfoot Indian lad from Browning, Mont., who two years ago ran second in the mile event in the big track meet staged by the Multnomah club in Portland. Spearson also placed second in the five-mile event put on by the Portland News. Besides Spearson, Joe Racine, a fellow tribesman, is reckoned as a particularly good prospect for the distance runs. Both will go in for the mile, or anything longer. They are running three or four miles every day, rain or shine, getting ready for the spring tournaments.

The two Evans brothers, from the interior of Alaska, will go in for the quarter-mile runs. The two lads appeared as wrestlers in the recent Oregon City-Chemawa indoor meet, and acquitted themselves most creditably. They certainly have the muscle to carry them.

Six men in all are already on the track squad, working out daily, and the Indian team expects to make a worthy showing in all the events.

POLK COUNTY TO HAVE PHEASANTS

State Game Farm to Extend Distribution Middle of Present Month

Following the distribution of China pheasants from the Corvallis state game farm about March 15, another lot of birds will be liberated over in Polk county.

The state farm birds did well last year, so well that there is a considerable number of the birds liberated on large farms, where the owners take a personal interest in protecting them during the closed season, and make the farm a real home where they can live in peace and safety. It is the general belief that the shortage of birds comes even more through poaching out of season, than from the hunting during the brief open season.

One of the places that is to have birds from the Salem distribution is the E. M. Savage farm near Wacounda, where they will have 772 acres of open and brush land for their own home. There will be 300 acres of grain there this year for them to feed on, without going off the place.

When liberated, the pheasants usually fly almost straight up-

Kinsella is already making preparations for the series of tilts which will commence on May 16.

FOREIGN GUNS ARE ON MARKET

Spanish and German Makes Found in Local Stores—Cost is Small

Considerable numbers of the Spanish and German revolvers and automatic pistols have been sold, even in Salem, enough to make it an interesting topic for gun men to discuss.

Revolvers made by Orbea Brothers, at Elbar, Spain, are now sold here, patterned so closely after the Smith & Wesson arms that only an expert can tell the difference—save for the name. The Castilians have a gold monogram set into the walnut grip, the same in position though different in design from the genuine American arm, and the name is stamped ever so lightly on the under side of the grip frame, instead of on the barrel as the real S. & W. arms would have. The newcomer is made in several of the big, standard belt-gun calibers. It is not so well finished, it is not so well blued, but it sells for two-thirds the price, and it is having a great vogue with banks, stores and for general guard purposes.

GIRLS WHO WERE ASSAULTED DECLARE LACEY IS NOT MAN WHO ATTACKED THEM

Lacey of the tel nearly talked himself into serious trouble yesterday while being interrogated by Sheriff Ocar Bower and Deputy Sam Burkhart.

Lacey had been taken into custody by Burkhart, following a declaration by a Salem girl that Lacey had recently made efforts to entice her into a motion picture show. The little girl is said to have affirmed Lacey's identity in this case which is said to have occurred prior to a pervert's attack Sunday upon two little girls in Bush's pasture here.

"Yes, I was near Bush's pasture about noon, Sunday, and some little girls were there, but I did them no harm," Lacey is said to have exclaimed.

Acting upon this statement, Deputy Sheriff Burkhart questioned Lacey as to his movements last Sunday, as the two victims of an unidentified degenerate's attack were assaulted about noon of that day.

Lacey was taken to the homes of the girls, but each in the children is said to have stated positively that he was not the man who lured them away and assaulted them. A woman who is said to have seen the guilty man, near the scene of the attack, viewed Lacey last night and said that she was certain Lacey was not the man whom she had seen Sunday.

When searched by Deputy Sheriff Burkhart, Lacey was

TWO BOYS MAKE AWAY WITH SHIRTS FROM CHINESE STORE

Two youngsters each about 16 years old yesterday turned a trick that puzzled the Chinese proprietor of a store at 264 North Commercial street. Strolling into the store, one of the lads occupied the clerk's time by purchasing a collar.

The other lad continued strolling about the store. According to the proprietor, this second lad strolled off with four shirts. Two of the shirts were of white silk, the other two garments were of brown pongee.

Patrolman Walter Thompson responded to the proprietor's call but the two youthful shoppers had the advantage too good a getaway.

James Brooks of West Salem, was yesterday lodged in the Marion county jail following his arrest by Sheriff Bower and Deputy Sheriff Burkhart. Brooks' arrest also followed investigations concerning alleged perverts.

Although it has been established by officers that Brooks is not guilty of Sunday's crime, he is said to be as great a menace to society as the perpetrator of the recent attacks. He is held upon evidence pertaining to his alleged enticing two West Salem lads, 11 and 12 years, to his cabin.

Officers said yesterday that Brooks had made a confession as to his actions toward the two boys. He is said to have given small amounts of money to the youngsters in an effort to bribe them to secrecy. Brooks will probably be placed in the custody of Polk county officers today.

In addition to the activities of the sheriff's office, the Salem police department is devoting much time to efforts to apprehend the degenerate who has been operating here.
