COMPANY B YOUTHS HAVE SLIGHT LEAD IN ATHLETIC MEET

Company F of Salem and Company B of Portland, both of the 162nd infantry, O. N. G., broke fairly even in the number of events in their dual athletic meet Saturday.

Counting all the meets that were announced, they exactly tie. This, however, would be to allow the two forfeitures, Ronning of Portland to Ringle of Salem, boxing, and Daniels of Portland to Blankenship of Salem, wrestling; and the rather poorly substantiated claim of Portland to a forfeiture for Wolfstone over Healey of Salem. The decision events go 6 to 5, for Portland which took the following events:

Lake vs. Frazier, boxing, 137 and 139 pounds.
Hughes, 131 1-2, vs. Mason 136 pounds.
Baseball, 22 to 2.
Pistol shooting, 198 to 189, each out of a possible 200.
Company drill.

Salem Wins Events
Salem won the basketball game 16 to 9; the rifle match, 156 to 129 out of a possible 200; Perry vs. Keller, boxing, 118 and 121 pounds; White vs. Jackson, heavyweight wrestling; Crossan vs. Cooper, 150 to 145 pounds.

In the Healy forfeiture, Healy appeared at 5 o'clock and the visitors said they had no one to meet him at weight. After he had gone home and taken on a heavy dinner at 7 o'clock, on which no fighter in the world could ever fight, a B company champion appeared, and the visitors claimed the match. It is a poor claim, though it was not publicly disputed. Healy has challenged Wolfstone to meet him in the next convention.

White Easy Winner
Ella White took on Jackson, one of the fattest, with great heavyweights one would wish to see. He hardly had time to show how much better he was than the visitor, for it took only a little more than a minute each to win two falls. Portland had a real top-notch, Os Day, who appeared in the Pacific coast amateur championship series in Portland two weeks ago, but he disappeared in Salem.

Ferry gave away three pounds to Keller, and then beat him by a fair decision, after a fast, clever bout, though a draw decision would not have offended seriously most of the crowd. But the decision in favor of Lake of Portland over Frazier was blood and razed by three-quarters of the audience. Lake is the more seasoned, resourceful boxer, but the rugged Frazier put him down once, was the aggressor most of the time, and won a good half of the count for points. Nobody questioned the honesty of the judges' belief, but their judgment was clearly ragged in this event.

Crossan Wins Handily
Crossan won handily over Cooper, a rugged but not over-gifted lad from the Rose City. Cooper looked good at the start, but Crossan had it on him from the go-off. Hughes, a skinny lad from Portland, took Mason of Salem to a draw in three rounds, and then earned the fourth round for a decision. Mason was clearly not in the best of condition for a real match.

Weldon Wing of Portland, and Dick Farley of San Francisco, professionals went six rounds to a draw. Wing is the heavier, and much the more experienced but he is not the gamest, or much the luckiest, for the southerner gave him a race all the way. There were some, perhaps, who wondered if Wing couldn't have ended it, and there are many others who say that he couldn't, and would have been foolish to try it by rushing, for Farley has a snaky left that is too dangerous to monkey with. Those who have seen Wing often, say that only his lack of aggressive tactics keeps him from going a long way in the game. George Burns was to have met Wing, but developed a case of blood poisoning in his hand, and the Portland captain refused to let him come, though he offered to keep his engagement, injury or no.

Spectators Pleased
About 500 spectators saw the program last night. It wasn't all professional calibre, but it showed every mark of honest effort and while it dragged rather slowly between events, it was all interesting, except the bout between two of the Portland boxers, put on to fill up a hole left by a Portland forfeiture, which was a hippodrome that even the referee could see with his own eyes, and he shooed it off the stage before the second round was over.

Frisco 8, Oakland 7.
OAKLAND, Cal., April 15.—San Francisco defeated Oakland 8 to 7 today after a hard fought, 10-inning game, during and after which Umpire "Lord" William Byron was a target for pop bottles and threats from fans who disagreed with a decision he made.

The intervention of a patrolman after the game probably saved the umpire from serious injury at the hands of the crowds that surged from the bleachers down into the diamond. Several blows were exchanged in the melee, the police reported.

In the tenth inning Walsh of the San Francisco team was called "safe" at third which, it was said, angered the Oakland fans. Brubaker, the Oakland shortstop protested and was ruled out of the game, which further aggravated the misunderstanding in the bleachers.

Basketball Foul Rule is Changed by Board
NEW YORK, April 15.—Alteration of the foul rule of basketball, including the extension of the foul line across the playing court and allowing two tries for a basket to victims of personal fouls in a designated foul zone, was adopted today by the national board of approved basketball officials.

It was the first radical change of the rule to be made by a governing basketball organization in 20 years.

The board ruled that personal fouls should be declared in event of deliberate pulling, pushing, charging or tripping, delaying the game, coaching from the sidelines and unsportsmanlike conduct.

For minor offenses, such as violations of running with the ball, hand behind back and dribbling rules, the ball will be given to the opposing team out of bound. When the ball is held within the foul area, it will be tossed upon the foul line.

In connection with dribbling the board ruled that a player may take one step and must get rid of the ball before the back foot leaves the floor.

Salem High Baseball Team Plays Columbia Tuesday

Salem high school baseball team is to meet Columbia university of Portland, Tuesday afternoon, at Oxford park. The local team is getting into good condition, as good as the weather will allow. Coach Reinhart has had his men out whenever possible, for practice, and they already make a good showing, considering the lack of outdoor practice. Columbia university won the state interscholastic championship last year, cleaning up on all the other high schools and academies of Oregon. No accurate estimate has as yet been possible as to the strength of either of these teams for this season, though the fact that Salem has several of her last year's stars in the team this year ought to make for a good, steady game at this end.

AGGIES DEFEAT OREGON TRACKMEN

In Class B Events Willamette is Third, Pacific Winning First

EUGENE, Ore., April 15.—Oregon Agricultural college won a 53 to 47 victory over the University of Oregon by annexing the last two events in the second day of the first annual Oregon state relay meet on Hayward field this afternoon. O.A.C. took first and second in the former event and in the latter Dodge, O.A.C., nosed out Peitler, Oregon, by a scant three yards in the final 880 lap.
