

Evangelical Conference Will Come to Close Today

DALLAS, Ore., April 14.—(Special to The Statesman)—Following the preliminary meetings on Tuesday evening and Wednesday day, the Annual conference of the United Evangelical church officially opened here Friday morning. Practically a full representation of ministers and lay delegates were present, Bishop W. F. Heil, D. D., of Allentown, Penn., being the presiding officer.

The conference opened at 9 o'clock with an address by the bishop, followed by communion service, and later by a business session.

At 2:30 o'clock Bishop Heil gave a lecture upon the subject, "A Fruitful Congregation." In this very practical message, the Bishop depicted an ideal congregation. Rev. G. E. Erskine of Quincy Park, preached in the evening.

The conference will continue the remainder of this week and will close Sunday evening. Following is the Sunday program.

Sunday, 9:45 a. m., Sunday school, Mrs. G. W. Cefarthy, superintendent; 11 a. m., sermon, Bishop Heil; 2:30 p. m., ordination service; 6:30 p. m., Christian endeavor, address by Rev. C. A. Hoyt; 7:30 p. m., sermon, Bishop Heil.

OREGON PEARS BEST QUALITY

Liverpool Man Tells of Erroneous Impression That Fruit is Soft

J. W. Dart, from Liverpool, England, a business visitor in Salem on Friday, brings a curious confirmation of the state's need for national and international advertising and cooperation.

Speaking of the cablegram received Thursday by the Oregon Growers, asking for the English delivery of 1,000 cases of canned pears without the word "Oregon" on the labels, Mr. Dart said that in some places the idea prevailed that the Oregon pears were "soft" whereas the reverse is actually true, the soft fruit coming from California and the strong, virile fruit coming from the Oregon orchards.

"It shows that we need standardization and advertising," said one of the Oregon Growers' officials, yesterday. "That is what our organization has always preached; for the producers to get together and put out uniform products, and put out names on them, always. There have been some ill-advised canning ventures, where they did not quite know the game; and they did not know standard requirements. Even a small quantity of 'off' fruits, where there is no counteracting advertising campaign to smother it, leaves a lasting bad impression. What Oregon needs is to get together and make the state name a guarantee against misrepresentation and failure. We ought to make the name 'Oregon' a trademark of quality like the government stamp on currency or postage stamp or coin—the best there is in the world."

The Oregon Growers are not even considering shipping their products anywhere, to England or anywhere else, without the "Missouri" label that spells quality and standardization. Their campaign for the enforced use of the name "Oregon" both as a moral and as a financial boost to the state where the stuff is grown, is going on with renewed impetus.

Committee Appointed to Revise Course of Study

A committee on revision of the course of study for the high schools of the state has been named by J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of schools. English teachers of the state some time ago were invited to make constructive criticism relative to the rebuilding of the new course and numerous suggestions have been received from the departments of English in Oregon high schools.

Goodall, University of Oregon; Miss Mingus, head of English department, Oregon Normal school; Miss Florence Mitchell, High School of Commerce Portland; Miss Rosa B. Parrott, head of the English department, Roseburg high school; Miss Edith Leely, head of the English department, Pendleton high school; Miss Mabel Bay, head of the English department, Ashland high school; Miss Lucile Marshall, head of English department, Medford high school; Miss Shirlee Swallow, head of the English department, Marshfield high school; Miss Jean M. Whitney, head of English department, La Grande high school; W. B. Kempthorne, head of English department, Astoria high school.

After the demonstration of ability and capability the student body voted. Donald Lockwood was given first place, Donald Rhebeck second position and Leland Chapin the third place. The Central High School of Washington, D. C., set a precedent among the high schools of the country when they started the first radio class. Will E. Purdy for the nomination of Governor of Oregon.

Mr. Purdy is 50 years old the father of 10 children and has lived in Oregon for a quarter of a century.

His platform is if elected will be a Democratic Governor in every sense of the word and will transact the business of the Governor's office in such a manner as to make the Democrat party popular in Oregon.

We must help the farmers and others by reducing taxes.

We must help the man and woman that earn their bread by the sweat of their brow by protecting them.

We must take the Kick out of Moonshine.

We must knock hell out of those who draw state money without earning it.

All this I promise if elected, and I promise to make the editor of the Capital Journal feel like two cents for his editorial on Saturday last.
