Some fancy shooting was done by members of the Salem Rifle Club at the armory indoor range last night.

Hally Doe made one score of 99 out of a possible 100, Jake Richardson and Don Wiggins made it 98 out of a possible 100. But Ray Betzer established the high mark with a string of 22 straight bulls, and then he quit because, what's the use.

Some fine arms are being developed by the club shooters. Two of the guns used last night were remodeled, refined arms, one a Stevens and the other a Winchester single-shot. The Stevens with which Betzer did his star shooting has a V-M globe front sight, of an individual pattern made up and tested by Don Wiggins, and found to be peculiarly effective.

Several other members are planning special guns for target use. One is a 10-pound Winchester single-shot, a heavy, 32-inch barreled 38-55 single-shot to be
