Lewis Is Problem
SACRAMENTO, May 3.—Sam Lewis was a stumbling block to Colonel Pick's Senators today, while "Pinches" Kun failed to halt the murderous attack of the Salt Lake sluggers. Sacramento collected for a base knock and a run in the initial and thereafter went scoreless. In the meanwhile the Bees swung their war clubs for a total of four safe clicks, crowding them mostly into the first, fourth and sixth innings, during which three periods they piled up their runs, the final figures reading 9 to 1 for a second Salt Lake victory.

Error Aids Victory
OAKLAND, Cal., May 3.—Howard's miff of Brubaker's throw in the seventh inning paved the way for three Los Angeles runs and gave them a lead which proved too heavy for Oakland. The Angels won 9 to 5. The Oaks staged a batting rally in the ninth which gathered four runs, but it was too late to catch up with the visitors.

Long Will Smash Record. Prediction of Experts

NEW YORK, May 3.—Track experts expected the record of 30 2-5 seconds for 300-yard will be broken during the intercollegiate championship games at Cambridge May 26 and 27, if the governing officials permit Allen Woodring, the Syracuse university star to make a special attempt. Woodring is the athlete who snatched victory in the one mile championship race from Princeton at the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival last Saturday, overcoming a three-yard handicap that fell to him in the last quarter-mile. He made the distance in 45 2-5 seconds, which is but 4-5 short of the world record made by Laxey Long on a straight away quarter-mile stretch.

Large Sum is Paid in Salem by Espee Lines

According to figures just made public, the Southern Pacific railroad company paid out the sum of $203,984.20 in wages in Salem during 1921. This includes the street railway system, the freight handlers, the switching crews, and all the trainmen making their homes in Salem. It also covers the trackmen of every kind who live here. It represents a considerable payroll, for an industry that does not maintain a great, smoking factory or a noisy, clattering mill out of which the workmen pour in clouds at the end of the day's work. Most of these men go to their tasks, unobtrusively, in so widely separated channels that they make little impression. But a fifth of a million dollars spread abroad through one local paymaster, for wages alone, in a single year, makes a rather notable community asset.

When talking about Salem's resources, list this railroad payroll as one of the sure things that helps.

Of all sad words the tongue lets go the sharpest are these: "I told you so."

RICHES REWARD MINER'S QUEST

Canadian Prospector Spends Twenty Years in Search For Silver

FINDS HILL OF ORE

Louis Bouvette is Now One of Wealthiest Mine Owners of North

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, May 3.—Twenty years of search by Louis Bouvette, prospector and frontiersman, were rewarded recently by a rich silver strike on Keno hill in the valley of the McQuesten, Yukon territory. The entire hill is believed to abound in undiscovered silver lodes. The history of the McQuesten thus far is largely the biography of Bouvette. Following his arrival with the Klondike stampede of '98, Bouvette, a Canadian, prospected without success in various parts of the territory. He worked in the Silver King mine in that vicinity, which has produced approximately half a million dollars worth of silver, and he always felt confident that somewhere in that region other extensive silver deposits must exist.

Hunted in Yukon
Bouvette's earliest success on Keno hill, however, was not with his pick and shovel but with his rifle. Near the base of the hill he had bagged a mountain sheep and ptarmigan, but he was gradually led to believe that higher up on those steep rugged slopes silver also might be found.

So in September, 1918 he started out from the Silver King alone, save for his two dogs to help pack his prospecting outfit, and in two hours arrived at the hill. Climbing up the 35-degree slope he paused to examine a mass of broken rock in what is now Faro Gulch. "In a sort of a gut on the slope," Bouvette himself relates, "I got the first piece of galena that I found on Keno hill, directly above where the rich veins of the Gambler claim have since been located."

Driven back by the approaching winter, Bouvette took his samples to the little town of Mayo, 30 miles away, to be assayed. "The returns were so encouraging that I resolved to return the next season and try to find the vein from which the specimens came," he said.

Efforts rewarded. It was not until July of the following year, after Bouvette had made three more visits to Faro Gulch, before the snow had sufficiently disappeared to permit him to start actual digging. A short time later his efforts of 20 years were rewarded—he had struck the vein.

After hastening to stake his discovery claim, Bouvette staked several other places on Keno hill. Later he acquired extensive interests in company with Axel Erickson and Thomas McKay, other prospectors and together they form one of the wealthiest combinations of individual owners in the Yukon.

Possibly we should not have so many dark mornings if the hold-up men would use smokeless powder.—Los Angeles Times.

Homerun King and Wife Are Hospital Patients

NEW YORK, May 3.—Babe Ruth, the Yankee's home run swatter and Mrs. Ruth, will both undergo operations tomorrow. The homerun king took his wife to St. Vincent's hospital today to be prepared for an operation tomorrow morning. Attending physicians refused to give out details of the case, beyond saying they were unable to state "how serious her condition is."

"Babe" will return to the hospital tomorrow afternoon to have his tonsils removed.
