A Wonderful Age

The young people of today live in the most wonderful age that the world has ever known. Things are moving forward with almost incredible strides. In order to keep pace with events, young men and women must lose no opportunity to fit themselves to meet the demands of the future.

There is no general training that is more practical, more serviceable, and more easily obtained than is a thorough business course.

This school is especially successful in training young people for business careers. It will be in continuous session throughout the summer. Write or call for information about our courses.

DOG KNOWS 300 WORDS AND 50 OBJECTS BY NAME

Sherlock Holmes, the sagacious Dalmatian dog that plays an important part in the prologue of "Over the Hill," is educated to the extent that he knows 50 objects by name and understands 300 words. Sherlock is the property of F. M. Stone, of 252 West Thirty-eighth street, New York City, and before being placed in motion pictures appeared for three seasons in vaudeville.

The owner insists that Sherlock performs his long list of tricks and stunts guided only by mental telepathy. This theory was recently put to a test when the dog appeared before an interested audience at the Fox studios on West Fifty-fifth street. When asked to give—or bark—the total of any number on a calendar ranging from one to ten, the dog invariably looked at his questioner, and then barked the correct number. But when a finger was pointed at a cipher, Sherlock refused to bark.

There were those in the audience who remained skeptical as to the mental telepathy claim, but found themselves at a loss to account for the dog's unerring performance. Sherlock has many funny scenes in "Over the Hill."

Store Proprietor Here— W. H. Newcom of Miles City, Montana, was a Salem visitor Saturday, on a tour of the Willamette valley. He will visit other points south, to return to Salem some time next week for a further stay. Mr. Newcom is the proprietor of a big department store in the Montana "cow country." He may decide that the Willamette valley climate and greenery are a lot better than the 50-below Missouri river plains.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Yes, it is admitted... The Bits for Breakfast man will admit that he is not a good political prophet.

At least, not a good one when race and religion are mixed with politics.

It was a mistake of the majority of voters of Salem in defeating the charter amendment making the city marshal appointive. That was a move for efficiency.

What will be the result of the appeal from Philip drunk in May to Philip sober in November? Or will it take longer for the Oregon Philip of racial and religious prejudice to become sober?

What are the wild air waves saying? They are saying many things, no doubt, that human ears are not yet attuned to hear or human intelligence yet keen or enlightened enough to understand.

It is to be hoped that his brother members of congress who were fearful that the voters of the First congressional district were sleeping at the switch and might allow Mr. Hawley to be defeated for the nomination have heard the news from Oregon.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle says: "St. Paul taught the things I do concerning the spirit world." Ain't he the modest shrinking violet?

PREDICTION MADE OF OFFICIAL COUNT

out of 56 in Jackson county for governor give: Olcott 1224; Hall 1213. he same precincts give: Hawley 1505, Norblad 663. Fithian 1052; Williams 1356. Hoff 1214; Ryan 1417. Bean totals were 88; Lee 25; Patterson 297; White 126. For recall: Williams, yes 930; no 906; Buchtel, yes 838; no 813. Hall Issues Statement Claiming a lead of 1971 votes throughout the state for Hall, his Portland headquarters late last night issued a statement claiming complete returns from all but five counties in this state. These counties are Malheur, Gilliam, Harney, Jefferson and Grant, where it is reported many eastern Oregon precincts have been slow in making returns.

Hall's friends at the Portland office last night claimed that he would defeat Olcott by at least 500 votes. They conceded that the Coos Bay man would probably lose votes in each of the missing counties, but asserted that this would be protected by the 1971 plurality he had gained in other precincts.

$10,000 BOND PLACED ON FILM PLAYER

young actor passed the time in smoking cigarettes and conferring with Mr. Gilbert. He refused to talk to newspaper men or to pose for photographers during the interlude.

The bondsmen came to court with Frank James, attorney for the Famous Player-Lasky corporation. They were Miss June Mathis, scenario writer; Thomas Melghan, motion picture actor, and George Melford, a director at the Lasky studios. Several other persons connected with motion picture work, came to the court room, one of them being Douglas Gerard, a director, who told newspapermen he was the best man at the marriage at Mexicali.

Photographers Fought— When the bondsmen had qualified and the date for preliminary hearing had been set for June 1 next, Valentino walked from the court house surrounded by his friends, who shielded him from photographers. Outside of the building, however, the actor announced he would pose for a picture, and several were snapped in an alley running alongside the county hall of records.

The decision to issue the complaint against Valentino was reached by Mr. Woolwine after considerable deliberation, he said, and following several consultations with his staff. The situation is unusual, if not unique, in California criminal proceedings in that the prosecution has been instituted in a county where no overt act of the alleged felony took place.

CITIZENSHIP AND THRIFT THE best citizens are always thrifty—not stingy, not overly fond of money—but just good managers, getting the most in comfort and enjoyment out of what they make. And the more good citizens of that sort there are, the higher rises the level of prosperity in that town. Because thrift, like many other good things, is contagious. The United States National is making thrift contagious in this community.
