

By MARGUERITE GLEESON

THE third annual dinner for the governor and the state superintendent of schools was given by the junior girls of the Salem Indian school at Chems-wa last night. The annual affair preceded the commencement program when Governor Ben W. Olcott presented diplomas to 23 men and women who had completed the work at the local school. Mr. Churchill delivering the address of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Hall were hosts for the charming dinner at which covers for 10 were placed. The guests included Governor and Mrs. Ben W. Olcott, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Churchill, Mr. and Mrs. Kuser, Mrs. E. A. Jaquins and Mrs. Louise Brickell. Mrs. Brickell is head of the home economics department of the Indian school.

The dinner table was centered with sweet peas and pink roses while silver sticks held pink candles. Great art baskets filled with spring blossoms in pastel shades were used on the white pedestals about the dining room. Corage bouquets for the women and buttonholes for the men of lovely spring blossoms were provided by the junior class.

The junior girls serving the seven course dinner were Carrie Anderson, Josephine Corbett and Rebecca Carpenter. Those preparing the dinner were Addie Merrill, Minnie Patawa, Josie Nozer, Cecilia Smith, Oka Pauline and Irma Laclaire.

Among those who enjoyed the week-end at the beaches were a group of Salem folks who left Friday evening, returning Tuesday evening. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Rahn, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Cross, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fry Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Connel Dyer and Frank Spears.

The party went to Rockaway where the time was pleasantly spent over the week end holiday.

Miss Joy Turner gave several piano and violin numbers last night at the Woodburn high school commencement. Three violin students of Miss Turner's, Miss Grace Stevens, Harold Rupert and Ross Harris assisted Miss Turner.

Mrs. George H. Burnett is leaving today for Pacific City where she will be the guest of her nephew, Judge H. H. Belt, who with his family are at their summer home in Pacific City. Mrs. Burnett will be gone a week.

INDEPENDENCE, Ore., May 31.—Mrs. O. A. Kreamer, May 31.—Mrs. W. H. Hanna, assisted by Miss Gretchen Kreamer were joint hostesses at a luncheon and shower on Saturday, May 27, honoring Miss Margaret Hodge of Salem whose marriage will be an event of this month.

The rooms were decorated in yellow and the table decorations were of yellow snapdragons and yellow shaded candles. Dainty bride place cards marked the places for Mrs. Margaret Hodge, Mrs. D. A. Hodge, Frances Hodge, Mrs. O. D. Butler, Mrs. G. W. Conkey, Mrs. J. E. Hubbard, Miss W.

E. Craven, Mrs. C. W. Henkle, Mrs. A. O. Robinson, Mrs. H. H. Hanna, Mrs. C. G. Skinner, Mrs. O. A. Kreamer, Mrs. W. H. Hanna and Miss Gretchen Kreamer.

CLUBS AND WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

TILLAMOOK, Ore., May 31.—Nearly 200 club women from every part of Oregon attended the opening session last night of the 22nd annual state convention of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Ida B. Callahan discussed new fields open to women and the good which they might accomplish by organized effort.

Many of the delegates arrived Wednesday, not wishing to travel on Memorial day. A special train yesterday brought in 130 and a long stream of automobiles running between Portland and Tillamook brought many others.

Large delegations are present from Portland, Corvallis, Prineville, Pendleton and the other larger towns of Oregon, while dozens of the smaller towns are represented by one of two delegates.

On their arrival in Tillamook, the women were met by C. J. Edwards who assigned places for them to stay and made assignments for their comfort.

This morning the business session opens and the afternoon will be spent at Lake Lyle.

Salem women registering were Mrs. W. E. Anderson, Mrs. Seymour Jones, Mrs. A. F. Marcus and Mrs. J. Barrett. Dallas club women registering were Mrs. Eugene Hayter, Mrs. Oscar Hayter.

The Nancy Hanks Lincoln Mothers' club will elect officers at the meeting of the organization

CHAPTER 37

WHAT MADGE TRIED TO EXPRESS TO HER FATHER.

My father spoke no word save the conventional adieu to Lillian until our taxi was half-way to the station. I guessed from the tenseness of his attitude, as with arms folded across his chest he leaned forward, gazing at the boulevard outside, that he was putting an iron hand upon himself, repressing the emotion that my decision to return home and give him the promised evening with my mother's momentoes had caused him. Like most men, he abhors the process slantly described by Dicky as "spilling over." I surmised that he was perilously near it, so tremendous was the feeling aroused by the prospect of facing the reminders of a past long buried, bitterly regretted, passionately atoned for.

Finally, with a deep drawing of breath he turned to me, and

Mrs. Blake's Favorite Recipe
Carnation Ice Cream

I have found this simple recipe makes a delicious and wholesome ice cream—economical, too.
1 cup water, 1 tsp. vanilla, ½ cup sugar, 2 cups Carnation Milk.
Add the sugar to the milk and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the vanilla and freeze. Use three parts ice and one part salt in freezing. This recipe makes one quart.

clashed my hands warmly, impulsively in his own. I knew that it hadn't been for the lights and the crowded streets he would have taken me into a fatherly embrace. So I nestled closer to him that he might know how deeply I shared his feeling.

"My darling," he said, and his voice was husky, uneven. "I shall not soon forget what you have done for me tonight."

"Can't you guess, father, dear?" I queried softly, knowing what would please him best. "that I would have done it for myself, too, that I would rather have this evening with you and—and my mother than anything else in the world?"

The last words rushed from my lips almost without my own volition. I had begun the sentence with the primary idea of pleasing my father, but even as I was speaking there had come to me the curious, uncanny conviction that somewhere, somehow, my little mother knew and approved. And, suddenly, I longed for the hour of revelation and reminiscence so soon to come. It was as if I were summoned to a precious tryst.

An Hour to Spare.

The clasp of my father's hands tightened swiftly, unconsciously, until they hurt me, then relaxed as quickly.

"Do—do—do you—feel that, too?" he asked unsteadily, then his natural reserve laying a restraining hand upon him, he quickly changed his tone.

"Here we are," he said in a matter-of-fact way as the taxi drew up to the Long Island entrance of the Pennsylvania station. "Now for that 'hasty bite of which you spoke so convincingly to Mrs. Underwood.'"

"We'll have time for more than that," I returned, trying to make my own voice light and careless. "I think we were both anxious to keep beneath the surface the new, strange feeling which was almost subconsciously swaying us—our train doesn't leave for over an hour."

He flashed a startled glance at me, but the necessity of paying the driver kept him from speech. And as soon as we had dodged across the taxi concourse and had directed our steps toward the dining room I explained:

"If Lillian had dreamed of this time margin her hospitable soul would have taken no refusal of her invitation to dinner. And once ensconced at her table with Lillian launched upon a conversational sea, the prospects of getting away in any sort of time for the train would have faded utterly. I might have managed adroitly to hurry without appearing to do so through Betty's courses. But I know from experience that when Lillian is in even ordinary little she forgets to stop talking, and her guests—"

A Strange Conviction.

"Would pass up everything else to listen to her," my father interrupted, smiling faintly. "I, too, have been one of Mrs. Under-

Young James was disturbed by the almost incessant yells of his baby brother. "What is the baby crying for?" asked a kind-faced motherly woman, bending over the go-cart.
"Oh, I dunno; he's always crying. I never knew anyone who looks on the dark side of things as he does," rejoined James, bitterly.
