

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

Goodyear Shop Established—Sid Gentskow, who conducted the boot and shoe repair department in the old Bootery store, has given his place the name of the Goodyear Shoe Repair shop, and has contracted to continue it under that name with the new Bootery store. The Bootery itself is now conducted by John J. Rottle, and the Goodyear is in the same building, though a separate institution. Mr. Gentskow has installed all the latest shoe machinery, and is prepared to make over, alter, or repair any kind of shoes. "There aren't a quarter as many quarter-worn shoes thrown away now, as there used to be," says the sagacious repair man; "he's a community curse who wastes instead of wearing out any form of human industry. The man who wears out his shoes and saves his money for some helpful industry rather than burning it in the trash pile, is a public asset instead of a liability—and we've got the machines and the skill to make him enjoy his comfortable old shoes longer as well as turn his money into productive instead of wasteful channels."

SLASH BURNING SEASON CLOSED During Dry Months Written Permits Must be Obtained by Owners The closed season on the burning of slash in Oregon forests without written permit from a state-appointed fire warden began yesterday and will remain closed until October according to F. A. Elliott, state forester. Warm weather accompanied by dry northeast winds has made slash burning extremely hazardous in the state during the last week and several reports of damage have been received by the forestry department. "The state forester urges the disposal of all slash when burning can be done with safety and has already taken steps to provide ready means for slash owners to secure burning permits," says a statement from the department. "These permits may be procured without cost from any regularly appointed state fire warden. The state's district fire wardens are also now on duty in each of the timbered counties and will be found ready to cooperate in slash disposal work."

distinction from no less an authority than Max Rheinhart, the famous Continental producer, for whom Mr. Schildkraut played as a star. Later he went to Vienna, the emperor of Austria made him the favorite of that famous court, and his famed beauty became a matter of world-wide comment. His mother ascribes the beauty of Joseph Schildkraut to prenatal influence, as during the months before he was born she constantly surrounded herself with beautiful pieces of sculpture, paintings and kept in her thoughts constantly visions of manly beauty. She was confident her child would be a boy. "Orphans of the Storm" will be shown at the Oregon theater four days beginning Tuesday.

SLASH BURNING SEASON CLOSED During Dry Months Written Permits Must be Obtained by Owners The closed season on the burning of slash in Oregon forests without written permit from a state-appointed fire warden began yesterday and will remain closed until October according to F. A. Elliott, state forester. Warm weather accompanied by dry northeast winds has made slash burning extremely hazardous in the state during the last week and several reports of damage have been received by the forestry department. "The state forester urges the disposal of all slash when burning can be done with safety and has already taken steps to provide ready means for slash owners to secure burning permits," says a statement from the department. "These permits may be procured without cost from any regularly appointed state fire warden. The state's district fire wardens are also now on duty in each of the timbered counties and will be found ready to cooperate in slash disposal work."
