

By MARGUERITE GLEESON

DOUBLE wedding of unusual interest to Salem folks will be that of Miss Mable and Miss Mildred Garrett which will be this evening at the home of the brides' mother, Mrs. Ida Garrett. The service will be held at 6:30.

Miss Mildred Garrett will be married to Paul L. Day of Salem. Both Miss Garrett and Mr. Day were members of the class of 1921 at Willamette university and are popular young folks of Salem and among the university set.

Miss Mable Garrett will wed V. Everett Wagner of New York

Post. He is a brother of the two brides and is a graduate of Whitman college.

Miss Mary Schultz will give a violin concert in Silverton next Monday evening. The date was previously announced for Tuesday night which was an error.

Miss Marjory Edmond, who has been attending Willamette university, will leave in a few days for her home in Grand Rapids, Mich. Miss Edmonds is now a guest of Miss Ruth Ross.

Miss Helen Robert of Juneau, Alaska, is a guest of Mrs. Frank Spears. Miss Robert will be employed at the Salem City Library.

Miss Frances Richards, representing the Salem Women's club and Mrs. C. O. Wilson, representing the Daughters of the American Revolution, attended the reception given yesterday in Portland for Miss Alice M. Robertson, congresswoman from Oklahoma. Miss Robertson is a special representative of President Harding at the Rose Festival.

Miss Joy Turner will present her violin and piano pupils in two recitals soon. The Eastern Star chorus and Leon Dennison will be among those assisting. An ensemble of 45 violins and two cellos will be a feature of the program.

The Business and Professional Women's club met for their first noon luncheon yesterday. It has been decided to have a luncheon each week at the same time, between 12 and 1 o'clock Wednesdays. More than 25 women were present yesterday and expressions of approval for the luncheon innovation were general from those present, according to those in charge.

The members of the committee in charge of yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. W. W. Taylor, Dr. Mary Rowland, Mrs. Ora F. McIntyre, and Miss Mary Follich.

The Englewood Home circle will hold its annual picnic tomorrow afternoon at the Auto camp park. The organization is inviting all who live north of Center street and east of Twelfth street, who may care to do so, to join them. All are asked to bring dishes. Coffee will be served. The men are asked to come directly from work to the park. In case of rain the picnic will be held next Tuesday.

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Adole Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER 54
"I AM PROUD OF YOU, MY DEAR."

There was something elusive, indefinable, in my father's air which gave me a queer little feeling that I would like to terminate Maj. Grantland's call as soon as possible. I rose, therefore, when the men had exchanged a few commonplaces, and said cordially: "If you will pardon me, Maj. Grantland, I will get those pieces like our gowns which you wish. Has Dicky told you?" I turned to my father, "of Maj. Grantland's delightful plan to take samples of the gowns when ordering bouquets for the women of the wedding party."

I had purposely dragged Dicky's name in. Maj. Grantland

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching - Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up. Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good drugist and use it like cold cream.—Adv.

PEER'S DAUGHTER JUST RECONCILED TO FATHER.

Known as Poppy Wyndham on the London stage after her marriage five years ago to Capt. Denny Wyndham, an English actor, the daughter of Lord Incheape has had her marriage annulled, and a reconciliation with her family has resulted. Lord Incheape and his daughter recently made a week's visit in America.

struck into the conversation with hurried embarrassed explanation. "I must not take credit for the plan. It is really Mr. Graham's suggestion, kindly made when I asked his advice about the wedding bouquets which I wished to furnish."

My father's answer was inaudible to me, for I had left the room while Maj. Grantland was still speaking, hurried to my own and secured a piece of the gown I had planned for Lella's wedding. A figured crepe in pastel shades of pale blue and faint rose. Then I went to my mother-in-law's room, to find her standing in the middle of the floor, a look of stern disapproval upon her face.

"Well, it's about time you came after this," she said, holding out a piece of gray brocaded satin from one of the wonderful patterns which she had stored in her trunks for so many years. "That young jacksnape must have worn the chair through by this time."

I knew that her irritation was because of her impatience to get her sample of goods into Maj. Grantland's hands rather than disapproval of the length of his call, even though she dislikes him cordially. But she is exactly like a child when she has been promised any gift or pleasure, on netles until it reaches her. I hastened to offer a diversion.

A Tart Rejoinder.
"Father is entertaining the major," I said carelessly. "Do you know, I can't help thinking how lucky you are whenever I see this goods. You can't get quality or pattern like that now."

"Whoever imagined you could?" was her tart rejoinder. Anybody with any sense knows there isn't a piece like this to be had anywhere unless in the trunk of some old woman who has been forehanded enough to accumulate a stock of such fabrics in the face of ridicule from her family. Her face gleamed with grim satisfaction. I don't think there is anything which gives her such glee as the fact that her hoarding of years, so ridiculous at the time, has now in the topsy-turvy days which have come to merchants, made her fabrics rare and almost priceless.

But I had effectually diverted her mind from Maj. Grantland, and I hastened out of the room before she should remember him again. My nerves were already too taut to risk any straining of them by my mother-in-law's caustic comments.

Maj. Grantland and my father were both standing when I again reached the living room. I guessed that the young officer meant to depart immediately, and my guess was confirmed when he took the samples from my hand. "I must ask you to excuse me now," he said perfunctorily, then with a puzzled glance at the two samples: "Would you mind telling me which of these samples is yours and which your mother-in-law's?"

Conflicting Feelings.
I did not dare look at my father for fear I should betray my amusement at the question. I knew that he, experienced man of the world, must be smiling to himself at the naive sartorial ignorance of the young officer which could imagine my elderly mother-in-law garbed in the

JOINT HEARING FOR SEATTLE

Refrigeration Charges Of Northwest Railroads to Be Tested Out

A joint hearing of the interstate commerce commission, the Washington public service commission and the Oregon public service commission will be held in Seattle July 5 on the question of refrigeration charges of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company and other railroad companies operating in the northwest. The case arises through a complaint brought by Swift & Co.

On July 6 in Portland a hearing will be held on the question of freight rates on hay, an action brought by the Oregon Cooperative Hay Growers against the O. W. R. & N. Co., and other railroads.

On the following day in Portland will be held a hearing in which the Oregon commission will sit as arbiter on a case of demurrage charges between the O. W. R. & N. Co. and the George Palmer Lumber company. Demurrage claims involved a total of $6518.

A hearing will be held at Heppner July 12 on application of Morrow county for a crossing at Morgan. On the same day at Heppner will be a hearing on relocation of the highway south from its junction with the Columbia river highway and involving the proposed elimination of a number of grade crossings.

Crossing questions will be up at hearings held at Moro on July 13. The crossings involved are near Moro and on Honkland road.

Tuckers Turned Down at County Marriage Bureau

When Thomas W. Tucker of Woodburn appeared at the county clerk's office yesterday with Miss Ella Sloan, his prospective bride, he was compelled to give up his idea of being married in Marion county and had to seek a license in Portland, for he was not aware that a license could only be issued in the county resided in by the bride. Miss Sloan's home is in Portland.

Other marriage licenses issued yesterday were: A. J. McClintock, 23, Salem, and Edna Ackerman, 21, Salem; Chester Irving Bradley, 20, Portland, and Lela Lawrence, 18, Salem; C. Everett Wagner, 25, New York City, and Mabel Garrett, 27, Salem; Paul Day, 22, Salem, and Mildred Garrett, 20, Salem; L. C. Mitchell, 21, Aumsville, and Harriet Myer, 20, Aumsville.

400 Tons of Cherries Going to California

Four hundred tons of cherries for place fruit purposes will be shipped from here to California this season, according to A. E. Raas, who represents the Lyons Glace Fruits company of San Francisco. He has been in Salem making large purchases for several days. Barrelling of the fruit will begin within a few days, according to Mr. Raas. The Mason Ehrman warehouse will be used for this purpose, it is announced.
