THE last half of the chautauqua program yesterday afternoon was given by the children of the Junior chautauqua. The "Conquest of Peace" was presented by the children under the direction of Miss Lucille Tysling, Junior director. Miss Lucie Ross presided at the piano during the pageant.

The Vacation Bible school, the fourth of July together with Sunday, which this time came right in the midst of the seven days; did not help the director in presenting the affair but it was well presented, considering that so many rehearsals had been missed. Practices were held following the afternoon programs during the last week because of the Vacation Bible school, Miss Tysling said.

The pageant begins with a tiny page, Master Powell and the American boy, Arthur Fisher, and the American girl, Christine Aeverold, on the platform. William Penn, in the person of Robert Fisher enters and meets the Indian chief, Francis Lane. They shake hands and pledge friendship "as long as the sun and moon shall shine."

George and Martha Washington, Barbara Moburg and Catherine Mulvey, with representatives of the 13 colonies enter and dance the Virginia reel. Among those taking part in this episode were Greta Powell, Marclay Eisman, Glendive Eisman and Mary Hickman.

The beginnings of the 100 years of peace was enacted in an episode featuring Johnnie Bull, Russel Pratt, and Uncle Sam, Edward Potter, Japs and Russians were featured in the "Peace of Portsmouth." Those taking part were Mary Jane Law, Mildred Harms, Laura Easton and Marclay Eisman.

Dressed in the quaint costumes of the lands they represented trim little French maids, Italian girls and Japanese, English and American girls danced the Dance of the Nations. The French girls were Zenita Edwards and Eloise White; Italian, Rosalinda Van Winkle and Myrtle Page; English, Elizabeth Weachter and Thelma Flake, George and Martha Washington and the tiny Jap maids also danced with them.

Marguerite Priesting as the goddess of peace, was preceded to the throne by three attendants who scattered flowers in her path. They included Beverly Swartz, Robert Lane and Marian Tibbels.

The children united in singing the Star Spangled Banner and closed with the Junior song in which the home town is lauded and the children pledge themselves to be "proud of their town and make it proud of them."

Miss Tysling goes from Salem to Seattle. During her short stay here she has been living at the home of Mrs. H. J. Bean. She has made many friends during her short stay.

Mrs. Carl W. Butte entertained Saturday afternoon for her small son, Carl Junior, whose second birthday it was. The rooms were prettily decorated with sweet peas and lilies. The children played games until a late hour and refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Russel Patterson.

The guests invited to honor

Master Carl included Janette Fry, Rachel Gardner, Mary Frances Entrees, Sarah Frances Chamberlain, Ruth Edna O'Neill, Louise Schnieder, Maynard Schnieder, Leo Tappe, Jimmie Gantenbein, Dale Shepherd, Billie Butte, Barbara Kipper, and Eugene Cameron. Mrs. Butte entertained during the afternoon Mrs. Lloyd Gantenbein, Mrs. Frank Chamberlain, Mrs. M. L. Shepherd and Mrs. William O'Neill.

Mrs. Findley with Miss Mary and Miss Genevieve Findley will return from New York Saturday. Miss Mary Findley completed her work at Columbia university two weeks ago and Mrs. Findley and Miss Genevieve Findley went back for the commencement program.

Mr and Mrs. Horace Sykes and Jeannette, returned yesterday from Marshfield where they attended the fire chief's convention. Others going down to Marshfield at the same time for the occasion was Miss Fay Hendricks.

Mrs. Lois A. Greene of Bellingham, Wash., formerly a resident of Salem, is in the city for a few days' visit with her brother, Col. Carl Abrams, 104 Wilson street. She made a week-end drive with them in Southern Oregon, reaching Salem late Tuesday evening. The party found the weather in Southern Oregon intensely hot, night and day, the first relief being felt when entering the Willamette valley near Cottage Grove.

Judge P. H. D'Arcy and Miss Teresa D'Arcy attended the pioneers' picnic in Gladstone park yesterday. They drove down and Judge D'Arcy delivered an address on the pioneers and their trials as part of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Carter returned to Salem Monday. Mrs. Carter was formerly Miss Dorothy Veatch

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Adelle Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER NO. 65

WHAT MADGE FEARED AND RITA BROWN FOSTERED

Whether or not Rita Brown guessed the real ownership of the cloak over whose luxuriousness she exclaimed, I do not know. It would have been eminently characteristic of her malicious nature to affect the same pretense of Dicky's extravagance even if she had positively known that the beautiful wrap belonged to Maj. Grantland.

I was indulging myself mentally in the time-honored wish to "wing her neck"—for I feared her sally simply the match applied to the inflammable stuff of my husband's mood, and dreaded in inexplicit the scene which would inevitably follow—when I heard him say laughingly:

"Don't throw your wishes away on me, Rita. Grantland's the man for your money. He keeps a whole closet of those things just as an appurtenance to that car of his. If you ever drive with the major, Rita, in the winter time you'll be provoked with everything from fur boots and a hot water bottle to a chicken sandwich and a hot toddy. It's his way of apologizing for insisting upon an open car instead of a closed one."

"You mean it's his way of getting anybody to drive with him in that open car," Durkee chimed in. "I tried it once, and br-r"—he shivered exaggeratedly—"I went to bed with chills for a week."

We all laughed, for Alfred is irresistible when he talks nonsense, and I drew a quick breath of relief. The danger of a scene had been passed. But that Dicky was furiously angry beneath his laughter I knew, and dreaded our first moment alone together.

A Moment Postponed.

That it was a moment, however, which could be postponed for several days I was sure. For the first time I felt thankful that even Rita Brown, much as I disliked her, was to share the drawing-room my father had provided for me. She at least would insure me against any unpleasant interview with Dicky on the journey, and once arrived at Cedar Crest I knew that Lella's wedding would catch us up in a whirl of gaiety and keep us fully occupied for days.

I couldn't resist a furtive glance at both Dicky and Maj. Grantland, and I almost laughed hysterically at the elaborate manner in which they were avoiding even a casual glance at each other. That the little incident had intensified the antipathy between the two men I well knew, though I guessed that Maj. Grantland was as relieved as I that Rita Brown's banter had resulted in laughter instead of an angry scene.

Rita herself was watching Maj. Grantland furtively, a speculative look in her eyes. I knew from a careless reference of Lella's that she had met the young officer only once or twice before, but I was sure that her mercenary mind was fully aware of every worldly advantage that he possessed. Furthermore, I guessed that she was studying him with the purpose of determining the weakest points in the barrier he had built up between himself and the wiles of women.

I had to admit the cleverness of her first move. She looked laughingly at Alfred Durkee and spoke directly to him.

"I'd Love to!"

"Everybody knows you're a nohouse plant, Alf," she said tantalizingly. "I don't know of any place you'd be really comfortable except the one which my Puritan training forbids me to mention. You simply don't know enough to appreciate the major's car. I hope he doesn't think that all your friends are similarly afflicted."

She accompanied the little speech with a swift, provocative glance at the young officer, then dropped her eyelids with a simulated shyness that was as ridiculous to any one who knew her as her reference to her Puritan training. If ever there was a typical product of New York's melting pot, her race and birthplace sedulously shrouded but unmistakably alien, it was the girl, glowing, beautiful, almost exotic, but hard as polished steel, who had just given the subtle challenge to Maj. Grantland.

There was only one thing for him to say. Even a man unused to women could not help knowing that. He said it promptly, graciously.

"These chaps are slandering my car, Miss Brown, it is really quite comfortable. I hope you will try it some time."

"I'd love to!" she responded promptly with an exceedingly clever simulation of ingenuous frankness. "I'll hold you to that promise when we get back. But just look at that clock, will you, good people? It we don't want our elders and the baby to travel to the sunny South without us we'd better get busy with the cats."

She had spoken only the truth. For the next few minutes we all bolted our food, and our walk to the train was a hurried one. Dicky and Alfred took my bag and hat box, but the clock which had so nearly upset the tranquility of the occasion depended from Maj. Grantland's arm.

Search for Dandoy is Continued by Officers

The city police department and State Parole Officer P. M. Varney were yesterday continuing the search for Frank Dandoy, who was arrested Saturday night on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors. Dandoy was released on $350 bail which was set by Justice of the Peace Urub, despite the fact that the accused man was on parole from the Oregon Penitentiary. He is likewise wanted in Great Falls, Mont., on a charge similar to the one here.

Since his release under bail here he has not been seen, and officers have been issued to pick him up on sight and hold him for the Great Falls authorities. However, it is probable that he will be returned to the local penal institution to complete his three year sentence, should he be apprehended.

"Stiddy there, hon; take it easy," quavered the Irish zoo attendant in his most soothing and

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.—Adv.
