FEW PLAYERS ABLE TO QUALIFY IN GOLF PLAY

SKOKIE COUNTRY CLUB, Glencoe, Ill., July 10.—The big wheel of the qualifying rounds in the national open golf tournament turned one third of its course today as 108 players from all parts of the world fought through 36 holes for a chance in the final Thursday and Friday with only 27 reaching the goal.

The end of the day found all of the national and international stars shooting today within the coveted circle, although a few had narrow escapes, and a new record for two rounds of qualifying play made by Jock Hutchison, Chicago pro who held the British open championship last year.

Hutchison Makes New Mark. Jock turned in a card of 67-68-135, the lowest mark ever made in an American tournament. Mike Brady of Detroit, with 143; Jim Barnes of Pelham Manor, N. Y., present title holder, with 144;

Abe Mitchell of England with another 144, and Joe Kirkwood, the Australian champion, with 146, followed along behind Jock.

The other qualifiers ranged up to 162. The low 24 were to qualify, but they made it 27.

Evans Nearly Falls. "Chick" Evans of Chicago, who probably has held titles more often than any other amateur in the world, came within two strokes of failing to qualify when he went off his game in the first afternoon nine and took 73, eight over par. He pulled himself together in the final nine, shooting a 35 against par 36 and this with his morning 73, gave him 151 and placed him near the bottom of those in today's play who will go into the finals.

Tomorrow and Wednesday, new fields will go out with the low 24 and ties for 24th qualifying for the finals.

SENATORS WIN FROM AMITY

Visitors Unable to Hit Sage for Run—Fisk Touched Up for 13 Hits

The Salem Senators ran rings around Amity at Oxford park Sunday, with a score of 8 to 0; the goose-egg that the visitors won in the first inning, was repeated nine times, until the slaughter was over. It wasn't exactly a lop-sided game, but it did tilt a lot towards Salem. They had everything, including the pitcher, Sage, who moved 'em down like grass. The local sluggers landed heavily on Kirkwood and Fisk, the visiting slabbman, 13 hits in all being chalked up against them. Of these Adolph made three. There wasn't a home run in the game, however, and only four two-baggers, three of them for Salem.

MRS. MALLORY AGAIN BEATEN

Mike Lenglen and Partner Defeat U. S. Tennis Team in Mixed Doubles

WIMBLEDON, July 10.—(By The Associated Press.)—Mrs. Molla Mallory and Suzanne Lenglen met again on the tennis court today, this time in the mixed doubles. The French champion had as her partner the sterling Australian player, Pat O'Hara Wood, while Dean Mothey of the United States was on Mrs. Mallory's side of the net. The Lenglen-Wood combination won with comparative ease, the Americans being forced on the defensive from start to finish, the match ending 6-2, 6-4. This brings Mike Lenglen and her partner into the finals against Elizabeth Ryan of California and Randolph Lycett, which is almost certain to furnish a spectacular contest tomorrow.

Dean Mathey and G. C. Caner, the American players, defeated two teams in the men's doubles, coming through to the semi-final by their victory over Captain H. S. L. Barclay and R. C. Wertheim. It is like that the Americans will next meet J. O. Anderson and Randolph Lycett.

Gerald L. Patterson of Australia won the championship in the men's singles, overwhelming Randolph Lycett of England in straight sets.

Twelve strikers have been appointed deputy sheriffs here by Sheriff Ellis Jones, with the understanding that they will not go outside their ranks in exercise of their authority.

Adjutant General J. J. Borree today took occasion to deny reports that the California guard was being mobilized for strike duty. He could not account for the rumors, he said.

Cars Stopped

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., July 10.—Declaring the Pullman car in which they were traveling had been stoned on route and the windows broken, the first contingent of workers to take the place of Santa Fe strikers here arrived today from Chicago. Twenty-three men were included in the party. Three deserted at Victorville. A great throng met the train at Albuquerque, N. M., said the men, and rocks were hurled. Delegations of strikers met the train at various other terminal points. The car was cut out of the train here and switching within the shop enclosure without the men getting out.

SALEM VOICES TO BE SENT FAR AWAY

Who Will Be First to Broadcast from the Capital City of Oregon?

The broadcasting station of the Salem Electric company, in the Masonic building, is nearing completion, and it is attracting attention all up and down the coast, and in every town in the whole of the Willamette valley. Hundreds of inquiries are being made concerning it: when it will be ready; what it will accomplish, etc., etc.

Who Will Be First?

Who will be the first to send Salem's messages to the outside world, up and down the coast, and all over the Willamette valley? It may be the Salem Apollo club, or the Salem Symphony orchestra.

There are many propositions as to what will be the most appropriate thing to broadcast first as an introduction to the thousands of good things that will follow in music and song and news and entertainment in the years to come; linking the name of Salem with distant cities and near by farm and town and city homes.

Of the benefits of such a contact there can be no question. This will be a means of spreading the influence of Salem in many ways. The time is coming, and soon, when every home will have some kind of a receiving instrument.

Small Ones Cheap

The radio receiving outfits that take broadcast messages for 25 miles or thereabouts, or for any shorter distance, are very simple and inexpensive. These are the kinds that will prevail in the homes, at least at first. Within a radius of 25 miles of Salem there are at least 100,000 people. All these people will be able to connect up with the Salem broadcasting outfit with very small outlays of money.

Sings Him to Sleep. A visitor in Salem from Seattle says his 15 year old boy fixed up a radio receiving apparatus for himself, using his mother's

PASTORS COME TO SUMMER SCHOOL

Two Dozen Ministers and Wives Attend Sessions at Kimball College

The Town and Rural Pastors' summer school now being carried on at Kimball School of Theology has an attendance of about two dozen pastors and pastors' wives. Most of these visitors from out over Oregon have brought their wives for a vacation.

All the sessions of the school are open to the general public, though as a rule only the evening lectures, of a more popular character as distinguished from strict class room studies, would attract the public. Monday night Rev. Mr. Throne, a missionary who has spent a number of years as a high school instructor in Malaysia is to give an illustrated, stereoscopic lecture on his work in the orient. Everybody is invited to attend free of charge.

Mrs. Albert S. Mann of St. Paul is to conduct some studies on "The Pastors' Relations to Women's Auxiliaries," that promises to be of especial interest. Dr. Mann, who is a professor in the department of sociology in Hamline university, St. Paul, is conducting two series of studies on Church Methods, and social and religious surveys, that are said to be especially fine.

Last year the registration was larger but it included also the city pastors, of whom there were a considerable number.

NEW FLAX MAN AT TURNER PLANT

Arthur DeMytt Trained in Belgium and Comes Highly Recommended

Arthur DeMytt, lately of Port Huron, but born and trained in the flax industry of Belgium, has been selected as manager of the Turner plant of the Willamette Valley Flax and Hemp Growers association. He comes through the recommendation of the United States department of agriculture as a man of marked ability for promoting the flax industry. He will serve as a sort of general adviser for the whole flax growing industry of the valley.

The lack of rain this summer has affected the flax yield very materially. Some of the crop has had no rain since sowing, though this lateness was due partly to indecision about putting out the crop, that might have been sown earlier and succeeded better. It is announced by President George W. Eyre and Secretary A. C. Bohmstedt, that this temporary setback promises to have almost no effect on the acreage for another year; many of the growers already plan to increase their 1922 sowings, confident that flax growing is a good business venture.

Police Ask Help in Running Down Reckless Auto Drivers

By CHARLES J. LISLE.

Some months ago, there was an atrocious accident to a pedestrian on the streets of Salem. The injured person could tell nothing of the assailant, for it was after dark, and there was no possible way of identifying the driver of the car that dashed upon the helpless victim and scamped away like a ghoul.

The police hadn't a sign of a clue; there are more than 100,000 cars in Oregon and many thousands from other states—it might have been any one of these, and there was no description.

But a few weeks afterwards, a voice called into the police station:

"If you will go to such and such a place, you will find the driver of that murder car."

"Who's this speaking?" demanded the chief. "Who shall I find? And how do you know?"

But the informant had hung up!

The chief acted, however. He made out a warrant, and drove to the house. He found a man.

"I have a warrant for your arrest, for running over that woman," he said, breaking the news mildly.

The man turned white as a sheet. "Wh-wh-wh" was about all he could say. But the judge gave him a plenty to say, when he came up for a hearing.

The driver of the car that ran over the aged woman on the Salem streets, the other night, and then escaped in the darkness, will be found. It is one thing to drive recklessly, even insanely, and still retain one's humanity enough to assist the helpless victim; it is murderous to run over a person, and leave the victim there helpless, to die, perhaps, while the driver slinks away in the darkness.

The people who hope for the laws to protect them, to punish the robbers and the thugs and the slanders and the other crooks that would assail them, are urged to make this and all similar cases, their own business. There are seven police in Salem; here are 20,000 other people, every one of whom is interested in protecting life and property. If the 20,000 will help the police, this reckless driver and all others like him will be apprehended.

The police number is 39. Tell them what you know—and just imagine that it was you, or your wife or mother, or your little daughter, that was assaulted by a careless driver who trampled over the bleeding body and slunk away in the darkness, to likewise run down the rest of your family or friends. The law belongs to everybody!

CHICKENS PAY TACOMAN SAYS

E. W. Rau Sees no Reason For Failure to Make Money in This Section

A Salem business man who was brought up on the farm and knows the stock business like a book, owns an 80-acre farm in the Willamette valley. There is not a waste acre on the place. It has good buildings, is well stocked with blooded dairy cows, and will be given yet more and better stock if necessary. It can have a 1000-hen chicken house and the hens to fill it; it can have almost anything that could usually make money on a Willamette valley farm. But the renter says that "farming doesn't pay," and is leaving.

E. W. Rau, living nine miles south of Tacoma, is visiting in Salem this week. He is a poultry raiser. He has a two and a half acre farm, with about 700 hens—he plans to make it 1000 hens for next winter. From these 700 hens he made $300 net, last March; taken the year through, his hens pay him a clear gain over all farm expenses of about $2 apiece. A neighbor of his, C. H. Mann, made $3125 net from a 600-hen flock one year; but that
