HOP HARVEST COSTS MILLIONS

Flexible Tariff Scale Desired By Edge; Export Development is Sought

Salem authorities on hops declared here today, that no less than $3,000,000 will be spent this year in producing the annual hop crop of the Willamette valley.

This amount, they explained, does not include the profit to the producer. It will, they said, be largely distributed among hop workers.

According to experts, approximately 11,500 acres of land in the state is devoted to hop raising this year. Increased acreage over that of the last two years, has been impossible, due to domestic market conditions and the English embargo on American hops.

Fifty thousand bales of hops are expected to be taken from the vines this year. The dry weather, it was explained, has led growers to believe that the crop will be smaller than they originally expected.

The average market price of hops under contract is above 16 cents a pound. Fifteen cents is placed as a conservative estimate of the cost of producing a pound of hops and placing it in bales.

The price paid to pickers will be 50 cents a box, or one dollar a hundred pounds. Thus, it is believed, the pickers alone will receive approximately $100,000.

LUMBER MILLS RENEW ACTIVITY

Reduction in Freight Rates Helps to Revive Business

The 10 per cent reduction in freight rates which recently took effect, is already stimulating the lumber industry. The promise of a good crop in the east and the middle west has given impetus to the freight reduction demand for Oregon lumber. The sales had dwindled down to almost zero in many localities. The farmers had not bought enough in the past two years to keep the mill industry alive. But now, while their buildings are still generally adequate for ordinary farm use, there is need of more or less repairs, and some new building, and they are getting a crop that promises to pay for all they will buy.

This is calling into action practically all the little mills of the Willamette valley. Four or five small mills are now operating near Falls City; others are at work all through the mountains and forests. The general wage scale runs about $2.25 a day, though it is understood that a few are paying $3.40, and one or two in the valley pay as high as $3.60. No labor troubles are reported anywhere.

The increasing dryness has made fire a great menace, though at this time there are no really serious fires burning in the forests of Marion or Polk counties. Rains have come to check the flames in some of the forests east of the mountains, and the cool weather of the past few days has had some beneficial effect in the Cascade and coast range forests. Only heavy general rains will entirely allay the fire menace.

SILVERTON HOME RAZED BY FIRE

Residence of W. P. Wona-cott Destroyed With Loss of $3000

SILVERTON, Or., July 11.—(Special to The Statesman.)—Fire starting from an unknown cause completely razed the home of W. P. Wona-cott on Norway avenue here at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The house and furnishings were a complete loss, estimated at $3000, with $1000 insurance.

No one was at home at the time the fire started and the flames were making good headway when discovered by a passer-by. Men numbering nearly 100, employed by the Silver Falls Lumber company, gave valuable assistance in trying to overcome the flames.

make it a big booster day for business and for better American spirits.

The story that the speaker has to tell of American transportation going to every quarter of the globe, is a fascinating one, and it has to do with even the smallest farmer or chicken raiser here in the Willamette valley. Only 300 tickets can be sold, as that will fill the dining rooms of the Marlon to capacity—and there are 4000 men in Salem alone who ought to hear the story.
