

By MARGUERITE GLEESON

A PRETTY home wedding was solemnized Sunday, July 9, at the home of Mrs. Anna M. Jones at McMinnville when her daughter, Miss Vera Jones, became the bride of R. Elmo Shanahan of Salem. The Rev. Lyle H. Willard, pastor of the Salem Evangelical church, formerly of McMinnville and boyhood friend of the bridegroom, officiated. The ring ceremony was used. The home was beautifully decorated with pink rambler roses intermingled with greenery.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Virgil Fendall, sister of the bride, accompanied by Miss Hazel Lamar of Corvallis, sang "At Dawning" and "Until." The bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's Bridal Chorus played by Miss Lamar. They took their place beneath a gorgeous pink wedding veil overhanging a colonial altar of lattice work interwoven with roses and greenery.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin heavily beaded with pearls, with a full length veil crowned with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and swansonia. She was attended by her sister, Miss Luene Jones, who was daintily gowned in pink organdy and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas. Kenneth Fendall of Newberg, college fraternity brother of the groom, acted as best man and Little Charles Keith Fendall, nephew of the groom, acted as ring bearer.

After congratulations and the serving of dainty refreshments, the young couple left on a few weeks trip to the various beaches before returning to their friends.

The bride is a charming young woman well known in McMinnville. The groom is an O. A. C. graduate and a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He is employed at the Oregon Growers Co-operative association at Salem.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Shelly Sauerman, with Mrs. L. M. Sauerman of Philadelphia, Miss Myrtle Lawrence and Dwight Quisenberry, left yesterday for Grants Pass and Crater Lake. They plan to return by way of Bend and down the Columbia highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shields are receiving the congratulations of their friends on the birth of a son, Franklin Vance, born yesterday.

Mrs. W. A. Rutherford of Salem visited with friends in Albany this week on her way to Newport.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Thompson will be hosts Saturday evening at a dinner party honoring Dr. J. C. Bloodgood of Baltimore, Md. Dr. Bloodgood is to talk Saturday evening on cancer to local audiences. He is returning from the medical convention in Spokane and has been persuaded to stop in Salem. He is considered one of the greatest authorities on cancer in the United States. He is connected with John Hopkins university.

Mrs. E. A. Jacquins of Los Angeles, who has been visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Hall, for several months, returned yesterday to her home.

Mrs. W. F. Fargo has gone to Spokane, where with Miss Lucille Fargo she will spend several weeks in the mountains. Miss Fargo is well known in Salem, having visited here at different times.

Miss Lucille Crockett left yesterday for her home in Syracuse, N. Y. She will be gone for six weeks. Miss Crockett will return before the opening of the school to take up her new duties as school librarian. Miss Crockett has been children's librarian and will be succeeded by Miss Florence Pettit.

A quiet wedding occurred on Wednesday at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Shoemaker, North Church and Spruce streets, when Mrs. Shoemaker's daughter, Mrs.

Hattie Thompson, and Nate L. Wiley of Rex, Or., were married. Rev. R. G. Lee of the Friends church was the officiating clergyman, assisted by Mrs. Lee. The bride has made her home in Salem for a number of years. Following the ceremony, the bridal party left for their new home at Rex, near Newberg, where Mr. Wiley has a farm and a prosperous poultry ranch.

Mrs. Arthur Benson spent Wednesday in Albany in conference with Miss Katherine Ewing, Red Cross field officer from the Seattle office of the Red Cross.

SALEM LIBRARY GOOD IS VERDICT

Salem Librarian Returns from National Convention; Few from Oregon Attend

That Salem has a good library and lacks many of the handicaps and troubles of other libraries the country over was the conclusion reached by Miss Flora Case, local librarian, following her attendance at the national convention of the American Library association which just recently closed in Detroit.

Miss Case returned to Salem Tuesday following five weeks spent in the east during which time she visited her home in Illinois and attended the national convention.

More than 1600 persons attended the meeting which included besides the public library chiefs, those from hospital libraries, navy libraries, universities, schools, business and agricultural libraries with a small section for the trustees who attended.

The growth of the business library was one of the features noted by Miss Case. Many business houses employ librarians to take charge of their growing libraries which are being considered of more and more importance.

The dearth of librarians was particularly noted, Miss Case said. The employment department maintained during the convention had calls for 43 children's librarians with no visible means of supplying the needs. Low salaries is partly the reason, according to Miss Case, why there are so few available trained persons for such positions.

Miss Case visited the provincial library in Victoria, B. C., last week. Here in the historical collection are all varieties of relics from the "spear that killed Captain Cook to a cap worn by Queen Victoria."

Only a few from Oregon were in attendance at the convention. The next meeting place has not been decided but invitations have been extended by Dallas, Tex., and Vancouver, B. C. Miss Case said. George B. Utley of the Newberg library in Chicago is the new president of the association.

FOREST FIRE RUMOR UNTRUE

Silver Falls Timber Company Deny That Mill Is Threatened

SILVERTON, Ore., July 13.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The rumor that has become current at Silverton that the forest fires are gaining headway at Camp Six of the Silver Falls Timber company holdings is false, says M. C. Woodard, who visited the camps Tuesday. The fires which broke out fiercely some time ago are completely under control and the smoke which comes down from the north and east which probably caused the rumor that the fires were so bad that it would probably become necessary to close the camps and mill, is undoubtedly caused by the burning of slashings in camp eight an old deserted camp which contains nothing but slashed over timber. This, says Mr. Woodard, is about three miles from any green timber. At that, a strict fire patrol is maintained there.

The camps and mill are running at full capacity, perhaps heavier than before. Sixty-five carloads of timber were brought in from camp during Wednesday.

DRAGER PLANT IN CHERRY RUSH

75 Tons of Evaporated Berries Will Be Record Set for Season

They can all talk maraschino cherries, and fresh cherries in layers, and cherries in cans of all sizes, and cherries in barrels; but the Drager company is handling cherries in the good old-fashioned way—evaporation.

They are handling a lot of them, too. They have a system of dryers and evaporators, pretty well covering the valley, in most of the good fruit centers, and they will have close to 75 tons of evaporated cherries to show for their season's work, when the season closes. They evaporate only the black, or at least the dark varieties—the Republicans, Bings, Lamberts, Tartarian, and the various heavily-colored seedlings that are grown here. They take only the really ripe fruit; the class of green, firm fruit that is most in demand for maraschino purposes, would fall in the evaporators. Dead ripe black cherries, however, make a wonderfully appetizing and popular product when properly evaporated; the Drager company is making a specialty of these fruits that are not popular with the canners but work perfectly in this form of preservation.

The Drager company is also taking in 750 tons of loganberries, for evaporation at its various drying plants in the Willamette valley growing centers. The fruit will be graded and packed from the Salem plant after the drying season is over.
