BEAVERS AGREE THAT KAMM LOOKS LIKE MILLION DOLLAR MAJOR LEAGUE THIRD SACKER

PORTLAND, July 17. — Members of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league are agreed on the question of the value of Willie Kamm, San Francisco third baseman, who recently was sold to the Chicago White Sox for $100,000, the greatest price ever paid for a minor league player.

"I've been in baseball many years and I never saw such third-basing in my life as Kamm has shown here," declared "Rowdy" Elliott, Portland catcher, while the Seals were here recently.

"We gave him about every kind of a chance a third baseman ever gets and they all were hard ones. He'd gobble the ball from one angle one minute and from another angle the next. Boy, he's a wonder, and a fine young fellow on top of it all. Greatest major league prospect I ever saw."

Tom Turner, the Portland manager, overheard the last remark and promptly denied it.

"Major league prospect nothing," Turner said. "Not on my life or yours. I don't figure Kamm a major league prospect at all. All Kamm is, boys, is a major league star. Get that? He's a major league star right now, not a prospect."

"Take my word for it, he will go as fast and be as much of a sensation in the 'big leagues' as he is on the coast. After Kamm has been once around the circuit with the White Sox, I'm betting that the newspapers will be hailing him as the best fielding third baseman since Jimmy Collins."

HOOVER'S AIDE SHOWS NEED OF FOREIGN MART

"Only 20 years ago, I took a nest of kittens out of the cylinder of an old internal combustion engine, the forerunner of the first of the automobile engines that George B. Selden built, and from whose parents grew the whole automobile industry. The auto industry is only that old?"

Gordon Lee, head of the automotive division of the U. S. department of Commerce, gave that graphic introduction to his Commercial club dinner talk, Monday at the Marion hotel.

The specific work of Mr. Lee in his department is to look after transportation; he has more automobile statistics at his finger tips than most people ever believed there were in the world. But he comes as a general representative of the new-deal department of commerce, that is seeking to get the government down to the people as its chief, Herbert Hoover, got the war and the feeding of the starving world right into the homes of America. He is taking the message of help-yourself-and-help-everybody all over the west.

While the function of the department of Commerce as explained by Mr. Lee is legally, according to the appropriations, to look after foreign traffic, Secretary Hoover is taking the message of expansion principally to places that haven't yet gone heavily into foreign service, but might do so if they were shown why and how they could do so profitably.

"I could go to the exporting centers and get a splendid hurrah with the department's plans for trade expansion; but we must build up the interior, also, and give them the same chance and vision."

Mr. Hoover, as shown by Mr. Lee, has started in to weld the whole producing power of America into one vast, helpful organization for serving the business of the world. The department now has 14 of the major manufacturing industries of the country, represented in its service; there are 16 or so others that are to be served as rapidly as possible.

When the present department came into being, it found the whole consular and business-representatives-abroad service floundering in the slough of inefficiency. English, German, French, every sort of foreign agent, could go to the confidential service and get all its information, and beat the American manufacturer to by weeks or ages. Now, the department is aiming to sift the business news, and the business forms, doing business abroad, with a fine-tooth comb. The department has more than 1000 big foreign dealers and agents, whose interests are in American service; they are actually serving America in both news and business.

These men, and their information, will be made known to every American interested in any particular line of export or import major industries of America, that during the past few years have been running at reduced production because they had no foreign market, could and should be built up from their past 60 per cent to 100 per cent production if the foreign fields were carefully cultivated.

The speaker told of various instances; one of which is the Hupp motor car, that by having built up a large foreign trade never lost an hour of its full production during the last two years slump. A truck builder down in California landed an order for trucks for Bogota, Bolivia, that will keep his factory running for weeks. One "interior" factory at Wichita Falls, Texas, ships to 90 foreign countries.

"A good, steady foreign trade may keep us from the peaks of home stampedes, but it will also keep us from the gulfs of despair," said the speaker. "Our present 1000 trustworthy representatives in 114 countries all over the globe have the help that will give even the smallest American manufacturer or shipper the facts he needs to make a start in foreign trade. This is good trade—it is cash on the spot."

The department gives the names and nationalities, and every essential fact, of foreign banks and agencies through an American exporter might wish to deal. One can sue the confidential department reports, as an almost infallible guide. It is almost like going in person to do business with these far-away people. So accurate are the department reports being made, that they are the basis and oftentimes almost the only source of information for various private business agencies that ask a fee of $100 as a retainer in giving foreign business counsel. But the department of commerce sends its full service, in its weekly publication for only $3 a year. Mr. Lee himself has been in 26 countries, on his automobile sales campaigns before entering the federal service. His chief assistant has two university diplomas, and speaks 9 languages—on $2400 a year. The department is working on a financial shoestring, but it is making a heroic justification of its existence, as shown by Mr. Lee, and its service to the American business world will be beyond price if the potential exporters will only use its services.

The luncheon crowd filled the main dining room of the Marion, Mayor Halvorsen presided. Brief talks were made by Seymour Jones, Herbert Nunn, Thomas Kay; William McGilchrist and Hal Patton. The matter of a Salem business vacation to help the farmers pick loganberries, was discussed, and a vote taken to take three half-holidays, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, for this purpose. The berry-picking, however, was taken up by a later, more effective Business Men's league meeting, later in the day.

Mr. Lee drove back to Albany, Monday afternoon, for a visit; from there, he was to go on to Portland, for his third scheduled engagement in Oregon. He is a pleasing speaker, a mine of information on statistics and business, and altogether a delightful guest.

SALE PRICE OF VALLA CAUSE OF WONDER

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—Baseball fans here already are wondering what the sale price will be when Gene Valla is sent up to the major leagues by the San Francisco Pacific coast league baseball club, which broke all records this year when it sold two other players, Jimmy O'Connell and William Kamm for $175,000.

Valla, who is described by many as a second Ty Cobb, is bound to go up to the major leagues, his admirers say. He has been described as the baseball "find" of the year and it is said he is progressing in the game faster than either Kamm or O'Connell progressed.

Speed is Valla's asset. He gets down to first base faster than most players and he has Cobb's trick of hitting high bounding balls that cannot be fielded successfully until he is roosting successfully on the bag.

The San Francisco club is not looking for buyers for Valla yet for it wants to keep him to strengthen the club next year when Kamm and O'Connell are gone.

STEEL TENNIS BAT JINX FOR HARVARD STAR

SEATTLE, July 17.—Favorites entered in the Washington state tennis tournament today came through the first round with reputations unscathed until just before the close of the matches, when Lucio Villegas, the fourth ranking player in the Seattle club, dropped his match with Ralph Miller, the first real upset of the 1922 state tournament.

The other five, Marshall Allen, H. V. D. Jones, Leon De Turenne, Wybert Mansel-Smith, Herbert Suhr, Armand Marion, Don Waller, Crawford Anderson, Dick Vanderlans, Grant Laisure and R. Burr advanced easily to the second round of play in the men's singles, Leon De Turenne, former Harvard star, had close competition in Bruce Hesketh, who took the first set 6-2 before De Turenne got going. In that set the Harvard man used a steel racquet. Changing to the old racquet in the next frame, De Turenne made it set all and pulled out of the third.

Herbert Suhr, the California junior champion, advanced by default and was not called upon to show his stuff.

JOHN HENRY NOSES OUT GRACE DIRECT

Fast Pace Feature of Opening Day's Program at Kalamazoo's Circuit

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 17.—The defeat of Grace Direct, the favorite by John Henry, in the 2:05 pace was the feature of the opening day's program at Kalamazoo's grand circuit meet this afternoon. The Earing entry took the first heat in 2:03 1-2, but Cox put over the next two in easy fashion. Grace Direct fought it out with John Henry in the second heat but finished fourth in the finals.

Pop Geers put over a long shot when he sent Jack H., out ahead in the second and third heats of the 2:16 trot after finishing behind Peter Alatin and General Bing in the opener. Bobbin, an added starter, drew fourth money. Lee, worthy, favorite, had no trouble in disposing of the field in the Ricman Hotel purse for three-year-old trotters in the 2:12 class. The Lee Axworthy colt was never in danger and the finish looked like a procession with Alma May Worth second and Baron Etawah trailing down the stretch.

The celery city purse in the 2:18 trots, of $2,000 was put over until tomorrow.
