

WET AND DRY ISSUE AGAIN LOOMS UP

CHICAGO, July 21.—(By The Associated Press)—Well defined wet and dry issues have appeared in two middle western states in the campaign preceding the primaries, while Congressman Volstead has active opposition in Minnesota, although the prohibition issue has not been raised there.

The prohibition and anti-prohibition forces are waging warm campaigns in both Ohio and Wisconsin, open claims being made by both sides that they will control the next congressional delegation from these two states. The situation in the three states follows:

Ohio Faces Issue.
COLUMBUS, Ohio, voters will again face the wet and dry issue at the state-wide primaries on August 5, and the results are expected to be of national interest because Ohio is the home of the Anti Saloon league and several national wet organizations.

Because of the efforts of those opposed to prohibition to have Congress enact a law permitting the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, chief interest will attach to the nomination of congressmen.

Both the wets and drys are busy trying to obtain pledges from the candidates, who are more numerous than ever before in the history of the state. Congressmen are to be nominated in the twenty-two districts of the state, and in some districts there are more than a score of candidates.

Candidates Favor Wines, Beer.
Because of the drys efforts to maintain strict law enforcement laws on the statute books, considerable attention also is being paid to prospective members of the legislature.

Although there will be no direct wet and dry referendum at the August primaries, two of the candidates for the governorship nomination—both Republicans—have announced platforms favoring light wines and beer. They are C. Homer Rurand, Coshocton attorney formerly connected with the liberal forces in Ohio, and J. W. Durnell, of Columbus.

Both the wets and the drys already are claiming the next Ohio congressional delegation.

Dry Enforcement Important.
MADISON, Wis., Wisconsin is swinging into a campaign for the general election primaries September 5 with prohibition enforcement an issue of importance stressed by candidates for all parties.

In the Republican field, both factions, one headed by United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette, and the other headed by Dr. W. A. Ganfield, candidate for the United States senate, have declared for law enforcement without specifically mentioning prohibition.

The candidates themselves, however, have taken direct issue on the question, since Attorney General William J. Morgan, candidate for governor in opposition to Gov. J. J. Blaine, who is seeking re-election, declared specifically his opposition to return of wine and beer, asserting that promises of modification of the Volstead act were "fraudulent attempts at vote-getting."

This stand was officially endorsed by Dr. Ganfield and other candidates on the ticket endorsed by the Citizens Republican state conference which met at Milwaukee June 1. This faction of the party is opposed to Senator LaFollette.

Governor Doesn't Answer.
Governor Blaine has not yet answered his opponents on the wet and dry issue, nor have other members of the LaFollette faction.

R. P. Hutton, superintendent of the Wisconsin anti-saloon league, has publicly attacked the governor as a "wet" because of his veto of the league prohibition enforcement bill passed by the 1921 Wisconsin legislature. At that time Governor Blaine expressed himself as believing that persons should be permitted to manufacture wines and beer in their homes for home consumption.

Superintendent Hutton has said of the governor:

"Governor J. J. Blaine, once counted by the drys, seems to satisfy the wets, judging by the account given of his activities in the annual year book of the wet Camels."

The reference in this instance was to the governor's veto of the league enforcement bill, known as the Matheson bill. He substituted in its stead the Severson bill, which had it passed in its original form, would permit the manufacture of home brew, but which would have been in other ways in conformity with the Volstead act. The legislature, however, amended the measure as introduced, making it an enforcement law which conformed with the wishes of the Anti-Saloon league. The league supported it for passage with amendment and the governor signed the amended bill.

Morgan Opposes Blaine.
Indorsement of the candidacy of Attorney General Morgan for governor in opposition to Governor Blaine has been given by the Anti-Saloon league.

Mr. Hutton's announcement said that the old-time tested followers of both Governor Blaine and Senator LaFollette are drys, and that these drys hope for acceptance from these two leaders of "the majority verdict" for prohibition. Mr. Hutton said that while Senator LaFollette voted for the dry amendment he thought the senator had voted since then with the wets on "what we consider test bills."

Further complication has been injected into the Republican prohibition controversy with the announcement of Mayor A. C. McHenry of Oshkosh that he will be a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket, pledged to work for repeal of the Severson law. He expressed his stand for support of any plan that will bring a modification of the Volstead act and the manufacture and sale of beer and wine under government supervision. As a candidate for the United States senate in 1920, Mayor McHenry polled 40,000 votes.

LaFollette Endorsed.
The Socialist state conference endorsed Senator LaFollette's candidacy. It also adopted a resolution favoring beer and light wines.

The Democratic state conference had a struggle between the very drys and those favoring modifications. Over the opposition of the very drys, a plank was included in the Democratic platform calling for submission of the prohibition question to the people of Wisconsin, should the legislature act favorably on the proposal, at the April election in 1923.

The conference also endorsed two candidates for governor, Carl Mathis of Wausau, representing the dry faction within the party, and Mayor A. A. Bentley of La Crosse, representing the moderate faction. Both candidates have declared themselves on the prohibition issue, which they say is regarded as paramount in the state branch of the party.

Woman Dry Leader.
Mrs. Ben C. Hooper, of Oshkosh, was selected as the Democratic candidate for U. S. senator. This selection was considered as in part an agreement with the dry wing, inasmuch as the feminine Democratic leaders were heading the dry forces. The party conference made it clear that it was not considering any issue as to repeal prohibition, but only as to methods of enforcement by adopting a resolution for strict enforcement of the prohibition amendment.

The Wisconsin congressional delegation now has six avowed proponents of light wines and beer, and five who oppose modification of the Volstead act. All have announced that they will seek renomination, except David G. Classon and John Kleczka, both considered as wets. The anti-saloon league has announced that it will support Congressmen A. P. Nelson, John M. Nelson, H. A. Cooper, E. E. Browne and James A. Frear.

Volstead Faces Contest.
ST. PAUL, Minn.—There are no surface indications that prohibition will be an issue in the congressional elections in Minnesota next fall, and it did not enter the party nomination contests determined in the primary election, June 19.

Congressman A. J. Volstead, father of the prohibition enforcement act, has a contest on his hands for re-election in the fall, but had no opponent for the Republican nomination in the primary.

Rev. O. J. Kvale of Benson, who opposed Mr. Volstead in the June primary and fall elections two years ago, has been endorsed for the congressional post by the Democratic and Farmer-Labor district conventions, and is expected to file as an independent.

Two years ago, Mr. Kvale obtained a majority in the primary over Congressman Volstead, contesting for the Republican nomination, but the clergyman was disqualified on the court's finding that he had violated the corrupt practices act. He ran as an independent in the fall election and was defeated by a narrow margin. Rev. Kvale announced at that time that he was "an ultra dry."

None of the congressional candidates has yet made an declaration on the prohibition issue, except in the cases where it has been declared a "dead" issue.

In the senatorial contests, Senator Frank B. Kellogg's stand is known as "dry." Mrs. Anna D. Olesen of Cloquet, sensational nominee of the Democrats, is avowedly "dry."

CONTRACT BASIS OF NEW SUIT
Poultry Association Complains Against Polk Farmer for Violation

DALLAS, Or., July 21.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The Pacific Cooperative Poultry Producers' association instituted another suit in Polk county this week against a poultry raiser of this district, similar to the one filed some weeks ago against P. P. Bahler, on the grounds of non-fulfillment of contract.

According to papers filed, J. A. Hanson agreed to sell all his eggs during the years of 1921, 1922 and 1923 to the plaintiffs, and the complaint alleges that the defendant has failed to do so, and has been selling poultry produce to other dealers. In addition to asking that the contract be carried out by the defendant the plaintiffs asks for $500 for court costs.

Circuit Judge H. H. Belt issued a restraining order against Hanson, and he is ordered to appear before the circuit court on Saturday, August 12, to show cause why the restraining order should not be made effective during the pending of the suit.

Bonus Commission Alters Meeting Day
Hereafter the state bonus commission will hold its regular official meetings on Mondays, instead of on Tuesdays as has been the custom for a number of months past. There will be only the one big regular meeting a week, as it has been for some time past.

Through a better organization of the work, it is being found possible to pass upon a larger number of claims at each meeting than was the case some months ago. The last two meetings, including the one on Tuesday of this week, provided for a full million dollars in cash and loan claims against the bonus funds; the two biggest days in the history of the commission.
