street that the prospects of a partial solution of the coal and rail strikes were begun. The most significant feature of 'oday's operations was the absence of pool liquidation, such as marked yesterday's trading.

While buying of rails was relatively light, the demand embraced many of the roads most affected by labor troubles, including coalers and issues of the southwestern division. Equipments also were substantially better and independent steels idenoted short covering. Motors and oils, weakest features of recent days, also reflected the change of speculative sentiment, although additional cuts were announced in crude oils and reviews of trade conditions hinted at further curtailment in the automobile industry. The strength of coppers and allied metals was ascribed to an increase of exports, coupled with the firmer tone of prices for those products for fall delivery. Sugar owed increased strength to the buoyant market for raw commodities and chemicals and fertilizers made moderate response to better market conditions.

United States Steel was firm within a narrow radius, closing at a gain of a large fraction.
