THE LIONS, THE YOUNGEST SERVICE ORDER

The Statesman of this morning contains a good deal of interesting matter concerning the youngest of the service orders, the International Association of Lions Clubs.

Rotary was started in 1907, the Kiwanis in 1911, and the Lions in 1917.

And 501 Lions Clubs were represented at the annual convention the latter part of June, at Hot Springs, Arkansas; and new clubs are being organized at the rate of one a day.

Thus it will be seen that the youngest service order is making a phenomenal growth, and its ambitions are to take in the whole wide English speaking world.

The Lions Club of Salem, starting only a few short weeks ago, has 50 charter members. The rapid growth of the Lions is explained partly by the fact that the appeal is largely to the younger business element in the cities where it is organized and organizing.

What is Lionism? The name stands for:

L-oyalty to country, community and home, I-ndividual integrity in thought, word and deed, O-ne flag, one language, N-ew ideals, new hopes, new ambitions in business and profession.

S-ervice that is founded on the Golden Rule. And the slogan is: L-iberty, I-ntelligence, O-ur N-ation's S-afety.

And Lions Clubs are non political, non sectarian organizations, composed of representative business and professional men who feel an interest in the welfare and progress of their city and community.

Promoting the principles of good government and good citizenship.

Taking an active interest in the civic, commercial, social and moral welfare of the community.

Uniting the members in the bonds of friendship, good fellowship and mutual understanding.

Helping to further education, enlarge social and civic opportunities, support the laws, direct public councils and in every way make the lives of men better and happier.

Like the Rotarians, only one active member is assigned to each classification by the Lions. The Kiwanis differ only in this respect by assigning two members to each classification.

Who is a Lion? Listen— He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he has; whose life was an inspiration, whose memory a benediction— HE IS A LION.

The Rotarians are well represented in Salem; so is the Kiwanis; and now comes the newest service order, to give its aid in every way for the good and the growth of the Capital City. It is one of the principles of the Lions that it shall work with all civic societies striving for the best things for country, state, city and home.

And recognizing this, all good people will wish the Lions Club of Salem long life and the widest possible scope of usefulness.

The fact is proved. Salem can be the Petaluma of Oregon if she will be. And a bigger and better Petaluma than the original in California.

Herbert Surr Defeated At Vancouver Yesterday VANCOUVER, B. C., July 27.—The defeat of Herbert Surr, crack California player, by B. Rhodes of Vancouver in straight sets was the feature of today's round in the mainland tennis championships play off here.

We cannot congratulate the famous Kansas editor on his last feat. As for Governor Allen, in upholding the authority of the Kansas industrial court, he took the only course possible.

It would pay the Salem Commercial club to advertise for poultry breeders. Such advertising was done in the old days, when Salem began to emerge from a village to the dignities of a town. Why not now? A few lines in a list of farm and poultry papers would help a lot, and the cost need not be large.

Senator Ladd of North Dakota says that the financial paucity of the present day can be relieved by the mere issue of fiat money, as he proposes to do in a bill he has introduced. That would be an easy way to provide plenty of currency, but the nation rejected that theory away back in the '70's when the greenback fad was rampant.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Long live the Lions! The cub of the service orders is a comer.

The tariff bill was introduced in the house a year ago last Friday; after months of work by the ways and means committee of that body. Procrastination, the thief of time, is in this case the filcher of public patience.

The Flathead Indians of Montana have adopted President Harding into the tribe. They think he is a good Indian. Prof. Horner of Oregon Agricultural college thinks the power of the Flatheads was due to flattening their heads so they could the better see their enemies without being seen; and that was an advantage in times past. Proving that their heads were not as flat as they looked.

The old-time Oregonian would have given the horse-lair to any one talking about irrigation in the Willamette valley. But times are changing, and this generation will not hear the last of the talk; nor any generation of the future. It is coming.

Governor Miller of New York has been acclaimed "the leading statesman of the day" by the New York Republican state committee without due consideration of another great New Yorker whom Mayor Hylan would be too modest to name.

Major S. Rowan, who carried the message to Garcia during the war in Cuba; has been rewarded 24 years after with the distinction ished service cross. It is a belated recognition also of the late Elbert Hubbard, whose literary talent made the mission famous.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Application of the Kansas Wheat Growers' association for an advance of not to exceed $2,500,000 to assist in financing the orderly marketing of wheat during the coming season, was announced today by the war finance corporation.

The corporation also announced that representatives of the Washington, Idaho, Montana and North Dakota wheat growers' association would appear before it August 9, pending applications from these organizations as follows:

The Pirates' Cave

When the Banshee Screams Most fellows never like to own up that they're afraid even though when they're saying "I'm not scared" their teeth are chattering. Last night when we were sitting around the campfire, Jim started telling a scary ghost story. It was sort of gloomy in the woods anyway; felt like it was going to storm any minute. We were glad there were seven of us together—or nine, because there was a John Clark, the older fellow we took with us, and a chum of his, who had just come out to spend a few days. "It's funny," John spoke up when Jim was through, "the way boys like to scare themselves. Isn't it? Bet none of you would like to go after water about now." Nobody said anything, and John laughed.

I've heard my father speak about. It's supposed to be haunted. A queer sort of echo, sounding like a woman's voice, is heard, and some times late travellers have seen a woman, all in white, standing in the mouth of the cave.

The five boys shivered and drew closer to the fire. The cave was at the foot of the big hill. Between this hill and the river was their camp. They sometimes stored things in the cave mouth. Several of them claimed that if you went in there in the evening and yelled "Halloo!" a faint, mocking sort of reply came back, not sounding at all like a regular echo.

One late afternoon all the boys were hunting. Jerry Pearson came back to camp early to find it deserted. He wandered about by himself and his wanderings brought him to the cave. A little frightened, but pushed by curiosity, he went in. He flashed his light about. The cave tapered off in darkness, but he could make out an opening in the wall at the back. He examined it and found it large enough to crawl through.

He got down on his knees and started crawling. On and on he went, flashing his light carefully ahead of him, afraid that any moment he might come to the bottomless pit. He was beginning to be afraid he must be in some endless passage, when he saw daylight ahead of him and came out into another opening on the other side of the hill. He blinked in the sunlight.

"Hello," said a merry voice. A girl of his own age was looking at him. "I s'pose you're from that bunch of boys camping over by the river. We're some girls from Asher City that just came here to camp. Sometimes we've heard you yelling in the cave and have yelled back. Wondered if you'd ever come over. Can't you stay for supper?"

"The fellows will think—the ghost of the cave has got me," Jerry replied grinning.

Obenchain Case Will Be in Jury's Hands Soon

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—The assertion that the evidence in the case warrants the "extreme penalty" was made by Deputy District Attorney Aea Keyes today in the closing argument in the second trial of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy. Mr. Keyes began his address to the jury this afternoon after Jud Rush had closed a

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Luster at Once. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold. Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.
