

Service is the keynote of Lionism. It believes in subordinating personal praise and glory to the largeness of the work there is to do.

The Oregon Statesman

Lionism is synonymous with civic progress. It isn't concerned about blowing its own horn. It is interested in doing things for the community.

SEVENTY-SECOND YEAR

SALEM, OREGON, FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 28, 1922

PRICE 5 CENTS

ALL OF SALEM WELCOMES LIONS CLUB

Dr. Chalmers Lee George
3rd Vice President

The Lions club just naturally had to have a dentist as Lions' teeth are liable to need considerable attention after chewing tough raw meat and gnawing bones, so Lion George was taken into membership with the understanding that he is to keep the clubs' fangs sharp and in prime condition. Doc is another Salem high school graduate and received his education in dentistry at the university of Pennsylvania. After completing his dental studies he began the practice of his profession in New York City, but after two years he returned to the home of his boyhood and now enjoys a large and growing patronage with the firm of George & Springer with offices in the Masonic temple.

Rev. H. D. Chambers
1st Vice President

Vice president and official parson of the Salem Lion club, well known throughout the northwest, a true and worthy citizen and a man's man. Having recently taken over the pastorate of St. Pauls Episcopal church in Salem Lion Chambers immediately got busy on his new job and at present there is a brand new church building under construction. The Rev. Chambers is a graduate of Seabury Divinity school, Fairbault, Minn., and prior to his religious work he was a building contractor and a shoe merchant.

Edmund R. Chastain
President

The Salem Lions club president, chosen for his lion-like qualities, is one of Salem's younger business men. Some time ago Ed Chastain opened an upstairs clothing and haberdashery store and through his individual methods of merchandising he has gained a large patronage. Emphasizing the personal touch, with a genial smile for all who enter his place of business, and with the motto "Use My Stairs; It Pays," Ed has accumulated the "Lion's share" of his class of business. Before coming to Salem this popular Lion was a traveling salesman for the Love company of Tacoma. He hails originally from Kansas City, Mo.

Dr. Carl D. Wonner
Director

"Doc" is an optometrist, vice president of the Bow Optical company. With the exception of one year in France Lion Wonner has followed his present vocation for the past 10 years. He is a graduate of the De Keyser Institute of Ophthalmology and was at one time instructor of mechanical optics in his alma mater. Prior to coming to Salem Dr. Wonner was superintendent of the lens grinding factory of the Riggs Optical company, Portland. He is a ready mixer and a mighty pleasant fellow.

Lloyd T. Reynolds
2nd Vice President

Lion Reynolds' main occupation is fruit growing, having been engaged in this line for the past 25 years. He is president of the Producers Canning & Packing company, was a member of the state board of horticulture for six years member of the state legislature for three terms and has been nominated for the next session. A member of a pioneer Salem family, graduate of Willamette university and a sterling citizen of the community.

Merrill D. Ohling
Secretary-Treasurer

This introduces Lion "Hike" Ohling, the longest Lion in captivity in the Salem jungle, measuring slightly under seven feet from tip to tip. Occupying the position of secretary-treasurer of the Salem Lions club, member of the firm of the Homer H. Smith Insurance agency and various other business and social activities keeps Ohling as busy as the proverbial cat. Hike managed to graduate from Willamette university with the class of 1920, served in the army during the war as a "high" private and for the past three years has talked, dreamed and sold insurance.

Lee Abbe
Director

Lion Abbe is a fruit packer and canner. He has been that for 25 years. At the present time he keeps things moving at the Hunt Brothers Packing company plant. It makes no difference to Abbe what particular variety of fruit or vegetable he is called upon to can, he cans it. Twenty-five years of canning and he has never been "canned"—that's a real record.

W. W. Rosebrough
Director

For the past 11 years Lion Rosebrough has devoted his efforts to the upbuilding of his manufacturing plant, the W. W. Rosebrough company, manufacturers of furnaces, fruit packing equipment, fruit stoves and other products. A few weeks ago Mr. Rosebrough stood by and looked upon the flames as they completely destroyed his plant. Not daunted by such a tremendous loss, he drew a long breath and started immediately the erection of a new and larger establishment. Within a few weeks the Rosebrough company will be turning out its product as though nothing out of the ordinary had occurred. Before entering his present business Mr. Rosebrough was a United Brethren minister. He is a graduate of Westfield college, Illinois.

Arthur J. Copeland
Field Director

Dr. Wm. S. Cole
Director

"Old King Cole was a jolly old soul" and so is Doc. Cole although he is not very old. Doc is a dentist on the staff at the Oregon state hospital, a graduate of O. A. C. and North Pacific Dental college. He is a Lion through and through, being able to roar in a manner most sonorous. Everybody likes Doc and Doc likes everybody.

Ross C. Miles
Tail Twister

This, friends, is the Lions club tail twister. That's his title, and he is busy at his tail-twisting job most of the time during club meetings. Outside of his well known ability to twist the lions' tails, Ross finds time to look after the management of the Oregon Gravel company, which is one of the well known large and growing business concerns of the city. He has been at the gravel crushing business (making little ones out of big ones) for the past three years. Prior to his entry into his present business Mr. Miles was engaged in educational work. He is a graduate of Willamette university.

Allen Kafoury
Lion Tamer

One of the most enthusiastic new Lion cubs to be captured in the Salem jungle is Lion Kafoury. He has already been promoted to the position of Lion Tamer, and although he is yet somewhat wild himself, he manages to keep the rest of the cubs properly subdued. During working hours Allen can be found presiding over the ribbon counter at the Kafoury Brothers' drygoods store. He is a former student of Salem high school, and during the war served in France with the United States army.
