Hot Weather and Crying Colic

Sunday Health Talk No. 60
By O. L. Scott, D. C.

Mothers suffer as keenly as babies when the little one becomes afflicted with colic. The cry is really a starvation cry, for the child with colic is getting little or no benefit from its food. The trouble may be with the food, but this is rarely true, as every mother knows, for the colic comes even when the utmost care in feeding is being observed.

The real trouble is weakness of the stomach caused by a spinal bone derangement which reduces the size of the spinal nerve opening and pinches the spinal nerves leading to the stomach. When the chiropractor makes the delicate adjustment necessary in such cases the child usually shows signs of improvement at once. In cases of chronic colic in children the child loses flesh and becomes run-down and irritable. Such cases in children are pitiable unless relief is obtained.

Baby Cried for Six Months

"We feel it our duty to say what chiropractic did for our baby. We doctored with her for six months and she kept getting worse. At seven months old she weighed but thirteen pounds and cried night and day. She was getting so thin we expected her to die. Then we heard of chiropractic spinal adjustments and in despair gave it a trial when to our wonder the child began to recover. Today she is well. Chiropractic saved our baby."—Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Marquis, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1335-W.

THE BANK'S SERVICE SETS THE PACE

IN times of business depression it is up to the bank to drive away the community gloom, and keep up the spirits of the public in general. And in times of prosperity the bank must keep people from going clear to the other extreme, and indulging in extravagances.

In other words, the bank sets the pace for the community, and regulates the business barometer. It must be neither pessimistic nor yet unduly optimistic, and it must be prepared to meet the financial needs of its patrons regardless of outside conditions.
