

DAIRY HERD TO BE SELECTED

New Attraction for State Fair Decided Upon—Interest Aroused

One of the new attractions at the state fair this fall is to be the contest for the "county dairy herd." to be made a regular annual event. It calls for the exhibition of 10 dairy cows from the counties competing. There is no restriction as to the breed, and it is not even announced publicly that they must all be of one breed—though uniformity might be expected to count heavily in the markings.

The animals entered for this county collective exhibit, are not barred from their class entries, though the nominees are to be named before the fair time and are not to be selected on the fair grounds from among the best available.

Already the interest in this class contest has brought entries from Clackamas, Polk, Marion, Linn, Lane, Washington, Yamhill, Coos and Tillamook counties. It promises to be the biggest single dairy event of the fair.

The Fisher flouring mills, of Portland, however, are expecting to get a great "kick" out of their sweepstakes cup offer for "the Best Dairy Cow of any Breed." The cup is a massive silver bowl, big enough to serve as a milk pail. It will become the personal property of the man who wins it three times, with the same or with different cows, and the years need not be consecutive. The bars are all down for every dairyman to drive in his pet theory and let it be judged—black-and-white, roan, brindle, fawn-and-white, brown, red, Jersey, any kind of a cow that has real type. It is expected that the rival breeds will make this event an even thrilling contest for supremacy.

The selection of a judge who can pass equally well on the best points and fairly on the prejudices for the various breeds, looks like a bigger task than to pick the cow herself. But the fair is going to stage the contest, and it is likely to be for blood.

Guardian at Pool Proves Worth When Girl Shouts

A person could drown in a pail of water, if he forgot the way out and he could get a genuine ducking up in the municipal playground pool if there wasn't a life guard at hand.

But Bill East, the regular guardian of the pool, is on the job, and he is making good in a fine way. Monday night, just as the officials of the ground were packing up to go home—the whistle would blow in five minutes—Miss Mildred Sloper, of Independence, who is visiting with Miss Della Carter of South Fourteenth street, got beyond her depth and her swimming control. Her two girl companions shouted for help, and East was there in a few seconds and had the young girl out on shore in the most approved, professional manner. East is a star swimmer, of good strength and of thoughtful manner, and the management of the playgrounds trusts him implicitly. So quickly was the girl brought to safety, that no artificial resuscitation was necessary.

It's safe to send the children to the municipal play ground and let them learn to swim. It never hurt anybody in the world to learn how to swim, under competent leadership. Thousands have drowned because they never learned—and there never was as fine a chance to learn as at the play park, under the present instruction.

The death toll was brought to 35 this afternoon with the death of Pearl Goff of Cadet, Mo.

Typhoon Death Toll Now Estimated at 28,000

HONG KONG, Aug. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The toll of the typhoon of August 2 at Swatow already has mounted to 28,000 dead.

Coffins are lacking to provide decent burial for many and the bodies are being interred in gunnysacks.

The new figures in lives lost, almost tripling previous estimates, were contained in a circular issued today by the Hong-kong branch of the Swatow Chamber of Commerce.

The circular stated that 28,000 bodies of victims of the Swatow disaster already had been recovered.

Benevolent societies attempting to care for the dead have been forced to use mattress covers and old bags as coffins for the myriad dead could not be provided. All charitable organizations of Hong-kong are combining to organize effectual measures for the relief of the stricken city.

SUGAR TARIFF ACTION HALTS

Senator Smoot Makes Impassioned Denial That He Made Cuban Proposal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The blocking of efforts to obtain immediate action on the Harrison sugar investigation resolution and an impassioned denial by Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, that he had proposed in a letter to Major General Crowder, American representative to Cuba, a reduction in the duty on sugar in return for the limitation of this year's Cuban sugar crop to 2,500,000 tons, marked senate consideration today of the sugar schedule of the tariff bill.

Senator Harrison twice sought to call up his resolution, but the first time objection was made by Senator Smoot who then was waiting to address the senate, and later by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican "whip."

Defer More Ruled Out

When Senator Smoot objected, Senator Nicholson, Republican, Colorado, moved to defer action on the sugar schedule until there had been an investigation of what were declared "serious charges" contained in newspaper clippings read to the senate Saturday by Senator Harrison. His motion, however, was ruled out of order.

Senator Smoot then proceeded with a detailed review of efforts which had been made, he said, to save the domestic sugar industry from destruction by American refiners and New York bankers, who he added, were faced with losses with the dropping of sugar prices after they had advanced 2 cents a pound on the prospective Cuban crop.

Proposal From Cuba

He asserted that the proposal to limit the Cuban crop had come from Cuba, and read a published statement by the president of Cuba denying that American government officials had proposed a reduction of the crop in return for lower tariff duties. The Harrison resolution proposes among other things, an inquiry into charges that such proposals had been made.

The Utah senator said his letter to General Crowder had been written after Senator Portuondo of Cuba and General Crowder had called on him at his office here on January 24 last and Senator Portuondo had proposed limitation of the Cuban crop and an increase in the tariff differential in favor of Cuba.

The Smoot letter was dated January 30 and follows: "I hope you will lay before the president of Cuba my attitude towards the sugar industry both of Cuba and the United States."

"Mr. Babst of the American sugar refining company, is doing all he can to arrange matters so as to export at least 500,000 tons of sugar to Europe. I have agreed to do all in my power to secure the passage of a joint resolution authorizing Cuban sugar to come into the United States without a cent of duty, providing it is refined in bond and shipped to any country outside of the United States. This will do away with the financing of the sugar in bond and assist the refiners greatly in securing a foreign market for Cuban sugar."

Smoot Favored Limitation

"I am sure the limitation of the Cuban crop of sugar, for the present year, to 2,500,000 tons will be a solution of the problem, not only for Cuba, but for the United States as well. So sure am I of this that I think it would be wise to have incorporated in the pending tariff bill a rate of duty of 13-4 cents per pound, which would make the duty on Cuban sugar 1.4 cents per pound. I am sure that Hon. Eugene Meyer, of the war finance corporation is ready to assist in financing the sugar refiners on their exportation of sugar to foreign countries."

Hilfiker Busy Making Trayers and Washers

August Hilfiker, living at 824 South Commercial street is this year making a considerable number of his patented prune trayers and washers, that have proved very popular in the valley.

Three years ago, he made and sold four, near Dallas. They were so well received that he marketed 24 the following year. Last year, however, there were not enough prunes in this part of the valley to call for much new machinery; he made only three of the new inventions. This year, the market has come back, and he is working night and day in his little shop to fill the orders that have come in.

The machine is operated by a one and one-half horsepower gasoline motor, and delivers the prunes washed and trayed ready for running into the evaporators. Hand-picked prunes, that have not been down in the dust, can go through a one-tank machine though they are made with as many as three washing tanks, for fruit that has fallen in muddy ground. Mr. Hilfiker has stuck steadily to his manufacture, and is making a good business of his invention. The machine will handle about 50 bushels an hour.

BIG FIRE REPORTED

PORTLAND, Or., Aug. 7.—The largest fire that has burned in the Columbia national forest for some time was reported to the offices of the United States forest service today.

BREAD BILL IS ENACTED

Tremendous License Put on Outside Firms—Busy Session is Held

By actual count, more than 100 subjects were brought up and discussed at the Salem city council meeting last night. They ranged all the way from A toizzard, with extensions and appendices both ways.

Here are some of the things: Cutting weeds, electric signs, paving, paying taxes, an incinerator (a which? you could see it in many an aldermanic eye as the mayor rolled it off his tongue), rats at the city dump, flies, goats, spare the trees, water from broken hydrants, milk bill, plumbing inspector, salary grab, too-shady school houses, tile buildings, chimneys, moonshine, mud, band concerts, electric lights, sewers, tourists, "where do we get the money to pay the bills," and a lot of others.

Bread Ordinance Passes

The bread ordinance is now a reality. It passed without a single dissenting vote. It provides for a $600 license for firms that haul in bread by motor truck, to compete with local bakeries. City Attorney Smith is doubtful if it will stand the test of the courts.

The city plumbing inspector is not to have his salary raised at the present time. An ordinance to raise his pay from $1300 to $1200 a year, was voted down.

The council is now a woodland-spare-that-tree organization. Some time ago, it ruled against what was said last night to be the fearful pleas of various citizens to be allowed to preserve certain trees that stood in the way of the concrete walks. But last night the council voted to leave the Grant schoolhouse trees standing in the regular sidewalk line, and allow the new walk to be set several feet inside.

Protest is Heard

Some vehement talk of "treat 'em all alike" was put up, but the council held that a whole block of trees to shade a school playground, was different from a single interruption, and it was the whole public and not a private exception.

A chimney ordinance especially to compel the screening of large chimneys and stacks where shavings and sawdust are burned, was passed. It had been lost or mislaid since March.

Milk Bill Introduced

Sixteen pages of milk bill, following the provisions of the state dairy inspection code in practically everything save that it calls for the pasteurization of all milk sold by dairies in Salem, was introduced and given the first and second readings. It will come up for a hearing before the milk-interested public at an early date, before the council passes on it. The bill defines a "dairy" as one with two or more cows, selling milk, though Mr. Utter, the champion of the measure, announces his willingness to make it three cows instead of two.

It is estimated that under the schedule of licenses, about $1,000 a year would be collected, which should pay all expenses of the department, and assure a uniform, safe quality of milk. The bill is in for vigorous warfare, as it will have some militant friends and also warlike enemies. Alderman Vandevort wanted them to bring samples of milk to the hearing.

"I don't know whether it is a move to get somebody a big salary," declared Alderman Suter. "I am opposed to more boards, and high salaries. We've lived a good many years, seven of them in Salem, and we've always had good milk; and we are not dead yet. If we get bad milk we change."

Goat Milk Exempt

Alderman Patton wanted to know if goat milk was included in the ordinance. It wasn't, though he was informed that the general belief is that goat milk does not carry tuberculosis, and so is immune from the one reason for close inspection. Attorney John H. Carson, given the privilege of the floor, explained some of the provisions of the bill.

The anti-dance-advertising bill, aimed especially to curtail the privileges that have heretofore gone to the users of weird instruments, was read and referred to the ordinance committee. The measure prohibits the use of the methods of advertising for dances. It prescribes a $100 fine and 20 days imprisonment for violation.

Weed Conditions Explained

Street Commissioner Walter Low was called to the floor to explain something of the weed conditions. He was directed to proceed with the extermination of the weeds that devastate the tourists' eyes. "We've had a paint-up, clean-up campaign," said Alderman Moore, "and now the weeds are having their grow-up season. They're six feet high up in my part of the city."

Alderman Ralph Thompson offered to match him for weeds down south. Alderman Patton thought the city ought to take its bootleggers and speed hounds, and make them cut the municipal weeds.

"That's what they used to do from the jail, when I was a boy," he said.

Alderman Vandevort objected: "Most of them are cigarette fiends and they'd just as like as not set fire to and burn up our town," he said.

invoke local pride, and if necessary the iron arm of the law to require the cutting of noxious weeds in the city.

Garbage Dump Hit

The council hopes that the band will hold at least one concert at Marion park, this summer, though it was stated that the contract calls only for concerts at Willson park, the old stand.

Mayor Halvorsen, speaking briefly, on the condition of the city garbage dump, said that it is a menace to public health, and not to be endured. He favored an incinerator that would care for the garbage of the city for 20 years to come, and appointed a committee, Aldermen Glesy, Patton, Utter and Schunke, to investigate.

A request for a permit to build a warehouse, 90 by 150 feet, on the block just south of the Arch and implement house, on Front street, was referred to the fire and water and building committees. The building, for the Spaulding company, would be of iron construction; but as it is within the fire limits, the council refused to sanction anything less than legally fireproof construction.

Petitions Referred

Contracts were approved for the sale of three lots in the Oaks addition, the property taken over by the city for non-payment of assessments. The city pays commission on these sales, through the Marion-Polk County Realtors. The council voted to pay taxes on two other of these lots that had been assessed together, and to refer the payment of all the taxes to the ways and means committee. They may pay the whole lot at once.

Three petitions for electric sign permits were presented, and passed on to the streets committee. A number of small sidewalk petitions were brought in, and petitions for alleys and for short sections for paving. All were referred.

ELEPHANT TAKES BATH EVERY TIME HE DRINKS

One of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Elephants Receiving a Shower Bath

Elephants are funny animals. Every time they take a drink they take a bath along with it. They stick the ends of their long trunks in a tank and draw a deep breath. The fills the trunk. Then they top the tip of their trunks over their backs and blow. On a hot day they throw water much as you do when your father lets you use the garden hose. It's not half so economical as the tub method. But the circus people could hardly be expected to carry bath tubs large enough to accommodate an elephant. So to conserve water the keepers do the next best thing—they attach a hose to a hydrant and wash them off as you see them doing in the picture. There are so many elephants traveling with the great Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined shows that all are not bathed in one town. They are given turns. Some have a bath in one city and the rest in the next. And so on. No such number of elephants were ever toured before. There is one act in which, standing on their hind legs and with the fore legs of each ponderous fellow resting on the back of the elephant in front of him—the formation extends along one entire side of the great hippodrome track. And these are only the performing elephants. They are many more besides.

Everything about the circus is of gigantic proportions. The arena program lasts almost three hours. Hundreds of performers take part in it. There are three steel girded arenas filled with trained lions, tigers, leopards and polar bears; and three entire troupes of acting barbery stations form entirely new features. Exhibitions are to be given here Saturday, August 26.

"IT'S GOOD"

I was using a well-known household article when my friend came in.

"Why did you buy that kind?" she asked.

"Because it's good," I told her.

She asked me why. Without realizing what I was doing I gave her several technical reasons for the superiority of that machine. I listed a number of its mechanical advantages and one or more very special conveniences that I felt meant a great deal to me.

My reply surprised even myself. I had not realized I knew so much about it. After I had recited my reasons to her I analyzed my first answer, "It's good," and I found that answer typified all of the specific things I was able to recite about the machine which I had as a matter of fact recently purchased.

It had been widely advertised and I, as a large buyer for a household, always felt that any woman may be guided to safe and satisfactory investments for her own needs and the needs of her family if she will but use the messages which the manufacturers send to her in her newspaper or in her magazine.

Until I had said, "it's good," I did not realize that I had been reading so much about the advantages of the machine which I subsequently purchased. One after the other those messages had gotten into my mind until when asked to do so I was capable of repeating them almost as if I had been a salesman for the company making that article.

However, I realized that the printed message had not really meant so much to me as the repeated appearance. Seeing that article over and over again meant to me that many other women had reached the point where they could purchase it sooner than I and were well satisfied with it.

Almost instinctly the thought took hold of me that when I saw the name of a product appearing again and again I could feel sure that that product was living up to its promise. I could feel secure in buying it.

If only all women would realize that in whatever they buy—machines or furniture—clothing or food—dress goods or hats—jewelry or toys—they may save themselves unwise expenditures by seeking the produce which through its advertising and behavior after purchase compels its thousands of customers to say, "it's good."
