

NORTHCLIFFE FUNERAL HELD

England's Leading Publicist Laid to Rest by Side of Father in Finchley

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(By Associated Press.)—Viscount Northcliffe, England's foremost publicist, was laid to rest today in St. Marybone cemetery in Finchley with services of surpassing simplicity, beauty and solemnity. The funeral ceremonies in Westminster Abbey were devoid of all the pomp usually associated with the last rites to the country's national figures. The ritual consisted of the recitation of Biblical verses and the psalms, the singing of Lord Northcliffe's favorite hymn and the playing of the "Dead March in Saul" and Chopin's "Funeral March."

In contrast to previous funerals of illustrious men, there was not a military, naval or other uniform visible. The vast interior of the church was a broad expanse of sombre black. Men high in the world of state, church, diplomacy and journalism, were present. Hundreds Pay Tribute. Several hundred British newspapermen marched to the cathedral to pay silent tribute to the man who had done so much to raise their status and add to their prestige. American journalists who had enjoyed Northcliffe's acquaintance filled the front rows in the cathedral and joined with their British comrades of the "fourth estate" in offering homage. There were no honorary pall bearers. The massive open coffin, covered with a pall of silk and gold, was borne into the edifice by eight attendants of the Abbey. The funeral cortege filed past the tomb of the unknown British soldier on its way to the catafalque while the celebrant of the service repeated the stately sentences of the burial ritual, "I am the resurrection and the life."

Premier Lloyd George. W. E. Stephen was present on behalf of Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for the colonies.

Lord Northcliffe was buried beside his father. Over the grave flowers were banked in profusion. One of the most prominent of the offerings came from Lord Northcliffe's mother. It was inscribed, "With Everlasting Love."

Lady Northcliffe, through Ambassador Harvey today, sent a message of grateful thanks to President Harding and Secretary Hughes for their condolences.

The casket was followed by Lord Northcliffe's widow, who, bowed with emotion, was supported by Lord Rothermere and Cecil Harmsworth, brothers of the journalist. Then came relatives and close friends. George Harvey, American ambassador, occupied a pew near the choir. Next to the widow the most pathetic figure in the cathedral was Lord Northcliffe's disabled brother, Vyvan Harmsworth, who was wheeled to the altar in an invalid's chair.

Nobility Represented. Sub-Deacon Canon Carnegie's words, "we bring our years to the end like a tale that is told," and "this mortal must put on immortality," seemed to impart prophetic significance to the obsequies. King George and Queen Mary were not represented, but the Prince of Wales sent General Cotter. Sir Edward Grigg attended the obsequies on behalf of

Famous Sailor is Camper At Salem Tourist Park

A camper at the Salem public automobile tourist park is Captain C. Johnson, who as quartermaster of the famous old battleship Oregon was the first man to hoist the stars and stripes on the ship that afterward came to be known as the "bulldog of the navy." Captain Johnson was with the Oregon at the battle of Santiago and was the first to sound the alarm to the American fleet when the Spanish fleet bolted from the harbor only to be destroyed by the guns of the American man of war.

Bits for Breakfast

Wanted, 100 women: They are wanted today at the Salem dehydration plant.

That plant has 250 women now but it is being "snowed under" with string beans, and 100 more are needed today. In a little while 200 more still will be needed, besides this extra 100, to take care of the evergreen blackberries and pears.

And they will all be needed clear up to the middle of January, to the finish of the apple crop.

When the prunes and hops begin to come on, pretty soon now, there is going to be a great cry for help in the Salem district. It will have to reach to and have response from far distant places, and the weather conditions must be favorable, or there is going to be a lot of waste.

The fruit industry is largely a matter of help—and more help. No wonder Salem is growing.

The Pacific highway will go through Salem on all paved streets, very soon. The strip leading to the Valley Packing company plant, from the Fair Grounds road, is now being curbed and it will be paved in plenty of time for the state fair. And this 20-foot roadway will be carried clear over the Southern Pacific track, and 75 feet down the Pacific highway, which will be widened for that distance. The state highway department is to stand the cost for the latter extension and widening. This 20-foot paving over and beyond the track will tend to make that crossing much safer than if the roadway narrowed down to 16 or 18 feet there. The Marion county paving plant is doing the work for both the city and the state. The North Summer street paving will be ready for use in eight or 10 days. So there you are. The Pacific highway will enter Salem from the north on all paved streets—and there will be a paved street clear to and into the state fair grounds. Salem has been a little slow out that way, in getting paving done. But the thing is about ready at last, with the cooperation of the property holders, the state of Oregon, Marion county, and the city of Salem, under the leadership of the street committee of the city council.

Shreeve Recovering from Recent Automobile Mishap

DALLAS, Ore., Aug. 17. (Special to The Statesman)—Varnum Shreeve, son of C. J. Shreeve of the Shreeve garage, who sustained a broken shoulder in a recent automobile accident on the Dallas-Salem highway when a machine in which he was riding with Ray Mitchell and A. M. Matlock overturned near the Moulson bridge, is reported to be recovering from his injuries satisfactorily.

Mitchell received a severe gash on the head which required several stitches, while Mr. Matlock escaped injury.

The accident occurred while their car was passing a load of hay, the rear wheels getting into the loose gravel on the roadside, causing the machine to overturn in attempting to get back to the pavement.

Falls City Triplets Live Only Short Time

DALLAS, Ore., Aug. 17. (Special to The Statesman)—The three baby girls born to Mr. and Mrs. Rev Oberman of Falls City the first of the week have died. One child lived but a few hours after its birth and the other two passed away the following day. The babies, while all perfectly developed, weighed but about three and one-half pounds each and were the first set of triplets to be born in this county for some years past. Mr. Oberman is an over seas veteran and was united in marriage to Miss Fay Mott at Falls City shortly after his return from Europe.
