

By MARGUERITE GLEESON

Society

Miss Mary Schultz, violinist, and Franklin Launer, pianist, will give a joint concert for the benefit of the Salem hospital early in September, according to an announcement made yesterday. It has not been decided where the concert will be given nor the exact date.

Miss Schultz who returned home last spring following five years study in New York will return to her work in New York during September. She gave a concert during May following her return to Salem and her many friends here and in Marion and Polk county will be glad to know that she is to play again in Salem before going east.

Mr. Launer has spent the summer studying with Percy Granger and will teach in the school of music at Willamette university the coming year. He has never given a concert in Salem before and although well known here his friends and admirers will have the first opportunity to hear him in such a concert it is anticipated that the concert will be well attended especially considering that it is a benefit for the hospital.

The American War Mothers will meet this afternoon to attend the funeral of Mrs. Anna Beier, a gold star War Mother, whose son, Paul Rich, was among the first Oregon men killed overseas. Mrs. Beier was said to have been one of the most faithful members of the local chapter. The funeral is at 2 o'clock from Rigdon's chapel.

Three musical numbers considered to be unusually good will be presented by the Salem Musical bureau during the coming year. It has been announced. Royal Dadnum, Victor artist and singer with the Metropolitan company will appear November 27; Marcelle Dupree, organist, pianist and composer from Paris on h/s first tour of the United States, will be presented November 27. Marguerite d'Alvarez, contralto, will be in Salem October 20.

Mrs. Mary Billings of West Salem returned Monday evening from a weeks visit in Portland.

The Aid society of West Salem will hold a cooked food sale late in the week for the benefit of the West Salem church.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Ellis have gone to the Tillamook beaches for a two weeks vacation.

Mrs. G. W. Dorrance of Lead, South Dakota, is a guest of Mrs. Ed Brock in West Salem. Mrs. Dorrance was supreme representative of the Pythian Sisters to the Supreme Temple meeting recently in San Francisco. She is returning home by the northern route and will go to Seattle, Vancouver and Victoria.

Mrs. Dorrance and Mrs. Brock are old time friends and have not seen each other for 20 years.

Miss Frances M. Richards and Miss Helen Pierce are home from a three weeks trip to Alaska. They went as far north as Kodiak.

Mrs. George Rodgers was hostess Wednesday afternoon for a number of old friends of Mrs. S. A. Wiggins, of Toppensish, Wash. The affair was informal, a number of friends coming to tea.

Miss Jeannette Olsen is visiting with her sister, Mrs. J. Hopkins in Portland.

Mrs. Lenora Kay Roberts of Hood River was a guest of her sister, Mrs. C. P. Bishop in Portland during the hospitalities for Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge early in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Baker left yesterday for Seal Rocks where they will remain for two weeks enjoying an annual vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald C. Glover left yesterday for Foley Springs on a vacation. Mrs. Glover's mother, Mrs. Byars, will go on to Roseburg for a visit with friends and relatives.

Miss Mary Schultz will appear in concert at the Monmouth Normal school, August 28. Many Salem friends of Miss Schultz are planning to attend the concert. The program will include some of the same numbers given by Miss Schultz at her Salem concert with a number of others not given before.

Miss Gladys Dimeler has gone to Newport for a two weeks vacation. She will be the house guest of Mrs. T. M. Barr while at the coast.

What on earth does this mean?" she wrathfully demanded when she had caught her breath. "I ordered no physician. You need a doctor about as much as a cat needs two tails. There's nothing the matter with you that rest and light diet won't cure."

She evidently scorned to lower her voice. Every word must have been distinctly audible on the other side of the door. And when in answer to my hasty, quavering "come in," the door opened, I saw by Dicky's indignant face that he and the physician had, indeed, heard every word.

There was no indignation, however, in the twinkling brown eyes of the giant who stepped over the doorsill in Dicky's wake, strode to the bedside, and looked down at me. He looked as if he were going to burst into a hearty laugh the next second, and I felt my nervous annoyance at my mother-in-law's rudeness slip away from me. The very appearance of the man—his stature, the width of his shoulders, his keen, humorous, kindly face—simply radiated strength and healing.

"So you're the young woman who doesn't need the extra cat's tail?" he drawled, looking me over keenly. "Well, ma'am," turning unexpectedly on my mother-in-law, "I agree with yob. She looks as if she could kill a ba-arr this mawnin'."

Mother Graham Outgeneraled.

My mother-in-law's face was a study. The big man had agreed with her so aptly and with such an inimitable air of deference that for once in her life she had nothing to say. I caught Dicky's eye over her shoulder, and I knew then that he had primed the physician before he brought him to my room as to my desire to get out into the air, and my mother-in-law's determination to keep me in bed.

"I beg everybody's pardon," Dicky put in smoothly. "I should have introduced Dr. Paige. Dr. Paige, my mother, Mrs. Graham, and my wife, who also answers to that name when she is in good humor."

The big physician gave a laugh that would have rattled the windows if they had been less securely set in their places.

"She doesn't look very cantankerous," he drawled, smiling down at me, "but you can never tell. Well, now, ma'am, I suppose I'd better earn my fee, anyway. Just put this under your tongue."

He had taken a clinical thermometer from his case and popped it into my mouth as he spoke. While he waited for its verdict he felt my pulse, and when he took the thermometer out of my mouth he scanned my tongue gravely. Then the twinkle came into his eyes again.

"When did you eat?"

My mother-in-law answered him in staccato accents. "About half an hour ago."

"What?"

She told him succinctly. The twinkle was more pronounced than ever as he listened. Then he straightened his face to a most professional mien.

"Now I wish my prescription followed exactly," he said. "Rest here an hour, then rise, take a cold shower—or sponge if there isn't a shower here—dress, eat a piece of thick, juicy broiled steak, a baked potato, a glass of milk, and top off with some lettuce or celery. Then run wild in those woods out there—only be careful not to get overtired."

(To be continued)

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Idelle Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER 100
THE DOCTOR'S VERDICT

"Oh, Madge!" Dicky's voice sounded cheerily through the door. "I've brought the doctor with me. May we come in?"

My mother-in-law turned from the bureau drawers into which she was putting the garments she had unpacked from the suitcases belonging to Dicky and me, and stiffened into wrathful, astonished protest.

She had fed me efficiently, and in the same manner as if I had been my own small son, on some appetizing but woefully attenuated delicacies, dubbed in hospital parlance, "light diet," and had combed my hair and put on a dressing sack over my night attire. But she had sternly forbidden me even to sit up in bed, save for the brief period of my breakfast. And I had rebelliously watched and resented her undeniable capability as she put the room in order.

An Embarrassing Reception.

It is torture to me to lie in bed unless I am really ill, and added to this discomfort was the fact that I was hungry. Ever since the grinning Mandy had carried away the tray of dishes my mother-in-law had ordered, I had been tormenting myself with culinary visions of thick steaks broiled to a turn, roasted chickens and all the rest of my favorite viands. Not that I disliked the broths and toast and gruels which my mother-in-law had planned for me. But I craved stronger food.

What on earth does this mean?" she wrathfully demanded when she had caught her breath. "I ordered no physician. You need a doctor about as much as a cat needs two tails. There's nothing the matter with you that rest and light diet won't cure."

She evidently scorned to lower her voice. Every word must have been distinctly audible on the other side of the door. And when in answer to my hasty, quavering "come in," the door opened, I saw by Dicky's indignant face that he and the physician had, indeed, heard every word.

There was no indignation, however, in the twinkling brown eyes of the giant who stepped over the doorsill in Dicky's wake, strode to the bedside, and looked down at me. He looked as if he were going to burst into a hearty laugh the next second, and I felt my nervous annoyance at my mother-in-law's rudeness slip away from me. The very appearance of the man—his stature, the width of his shoulders, his keen, humorous, kindly face—simply radiated strength and healing.

"So you're the young woman who doesn't need the extra cat's tail?" he drawled, looking me over keenly. "Well, ma'am," turning unexpectedly on my mother-in-law, "I agree with yob. She looks as if she could kill a ba-arr this mawnin'."

Mother Graham Outgeneraled.

My mother-in-law's face was a study. The big man had agreed with her so aptly and with such an inimitable air of deference that for once in her life she had nothing to say. I caught Dicky's eye over her shoulder, and I knew then that he had primed the physician before he brought him to my room as to my desire to get out into the air, and my mother-in-law's determination to keep me in bed.

"I beg everybody's pardon," Dicky put in smoothly. "I should have introduced Dr. Paige. Dr. Paige, my mother, Mrs. Graham, and my wife, who also answers to that name when she is in good humor."

The big physician gave a laugh that would have rattled the windows if they had been less securely set in their places.

"She doesn't look very cantankerous," he drawled, smiling down at me, "but you can never tell. Well, now, ma'am, I suppose I'd better earn my fee, anyway. Just put this under your tongue."

He had taken a clinical thermometer from his case and popped it into my mouth as he spoke. While he waited for its verdict he felt my pulse, and when he took the thermometer out of my mouth he scanned my tongue gravely. Then the twinkle came into his eyes again.

"When did you eat?"

My mother-in-law answered him in staccato accents. "About half an hour ago."

"What?"

She told him succinctly. The twinkle was more pronounced than ever as he listened. Then

SILVERTON NEWS

SILVERTON, Or., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Statesman)—Rev. and Mrs. George Henriksen motored to Canby Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Tingstad left Wednesday for Hood River where Mr. Tingstad will teach during the coming year in the high school.

Miss Florence Wallasee of Sheridan, Wyo., has been secured to take charge of the Silvertown hospital. Miss Wallasee comes highly recommended.

Miss Adeline Ness, who has been visiting here from South Dakota, has secured a position to teach in the blind school at Salem. Miss Ness taught in a reform school in the east.

NORTH HOWELL

V. L. Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Dunn were Salem visitors Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire and two children, Jamie and Mary Jane returned Saturday from a week's visit on the Siletz. While en route home their car ran off the grade, plunging down a steep embankment and almost demolishing it. Fortunately no one was injured in the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Woelke and daughter of Hazel Green were Sunday visitors with the former's brother, Joseph Woelke.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding Kaughman and father, J. H. Kaughman, visited Monday at the George Vinton home.

Threshing was resumed Tuesday after a few days lay off on account of the rain.

NEW CORPORATIONS

Articles of incorporation were filed with the state corporation department yesterday by the Circle Theater company of Portland, capitalized at $80,000. The incorporators are G. T. Woodlaw, F. W. Norman and F. M. Ham-burger. Other articles filed yesterday were:

Everfresh Market, Portland;

INCORPORATORS

Victoria Greco, Michael Ray, Pete Penny, Joseph A. Greco, capitalization, $1000.

Home Chemicals Products company, Portland; incorporators, F. J. Pobs, August Hochschild, Mary Pobs; capitalization, $2500.

A permit to operate in Oregon was issued to the North Pacific Mortgage company, a Washington concern with headquarters in the city of Seattle.

Delicious! Appetizing!

KRAFT CHEESE

IN TINS IN LOAVES

ASK YOUR GROCER

Better Than a Mustard Plaster

For Coughs and Colds, Head-ache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and All Aches and Pains

ALL DRUGGISTS

35c and 65c, jars and tubes

Hospital size, $3.00

Everfresh Market, Portland;

PEOPLE'S CASH STORE-- Salem and Eugene

A Lucky Purchase Sale

217 NEW STYLE Fall Coats

In a sensational selling that will unearth handsome savings to those who are fortunate enough to take part in the

Great Selling of Women's Fall Wearables

Here is the Story in Brief:

The Coats represent a manufacturer's line and were offered to us at great price concessions in lieu of spot cash. Seeing an opportunity to benefit our patrons, we accepted the proposition and here they are, spick and span as they had just left the hands of the examiner. Here are short and full length coats in:

Plush, Velour, Polo Cloth and Many Other Styles of All-Wool Coats and Fur Coats

Here is how the prices will range:

$35.00 values	$19.95	$25.00 values	$12.50
$30.00 values	$16.95	$20.00 values	$10.95
$27.50 values	$14.95	$17.50 values	$ 8.75

Satisfaction Guaranteed Or Money Back

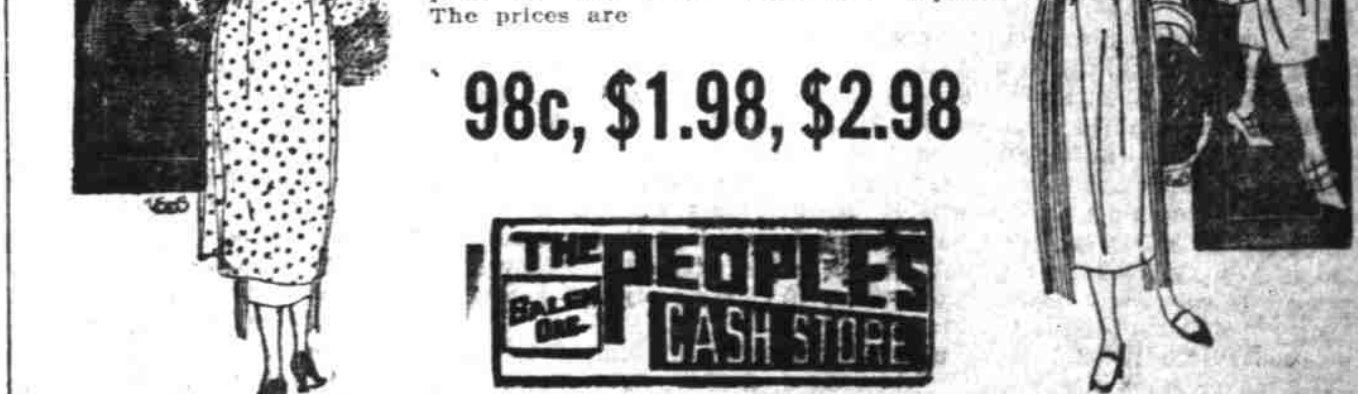

All Wool Jersey SPORT Jackets	Ladies' Silk Camisoles
A quality that is being sold every day at $5.50. Our stock consists of red, brown, copenhagen, blue, black and lavender.	Light and dark colors, made of washable silk messaline. Special at
And OUR price is ONLY $2.98	$1.50 Pure Silk Hose
	In all sizes and colors. Famous Paramount and Notaseme make. Special at 89c

Charming Blouses

Now offered at half of their real worth

Great variety of fine Georgette, Crepe de Chine, Pongee, Minnonette and the new Royal Shirt Waists ranging from the simplest to the most elaborate styles. The prices are

98c, $1.98, $2.98

Let Us Redeem Your Hop Checks

200 Women Wanted

for work in our canning department.

Report Monday morning, August 21, at 7 a. m.

Kings Food Products Co.

NANOOK?

AT LAST

The H. W. Gossard Co.
makers of the world-famed

GOSSARD FRONT LACING CORSETS

have been persuaded to make a GOSSARD QUALITY corset to sell at $2.00

Model 200
A truly remarkable corset for the average to stout figures. The comfortable top graduates to a slightly higher back to care for excess flesh at the shoulder blades. The medium length skirt has ample fullness to insure comfort through hips and thighs and is characterized by those very flat back lines every fashionable woman seeks today. Made of pink or white coutil.

GOSSARD quality guarantees you what you have never before been able to buy; a $2 corset guaranteed by a name and reputation that must be safeguarded.

If you have never worn a Gossard, $2 is surely a small sum to find out a becoming style and graceful comfort such as you have never known before.

If you have thought this gentlewoman's corset cost more than you cared to pay, you now are offered the opportunity to know its refinements at a price heretofore unthought of for garments of such superior quality.

MILLER'S GOOD GOODS

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Gradmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known down town druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning, the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—Adv.

Just Right

To win the approval of a community requires unfailing quality