BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Cooler here—
Hotter in the east.

The senate is to finish the tariff bill today. Next it will have to go to the conference committee of the two houses. A big stick and a steam roller might get it through yet, in a few weeks.

President Harding is frank and open and plain spoken concerning the necessity for congressional action in making the law creating the railroad labor board enforceable; putting teeth in it. The country cannot be safe without this. The great majority of the American people are behind President Harding in this demand, and hope that he may force congress to act, and not bicker and dally.

He is also right in demanding measures of relief in the coal situation. It is the duty of congress to straighten out the affairs of the coal mining industry, and to do it thoroughly and on a basis of permanency, and to do it promptly, with justice to both sides and to the general public.

They are saying one or two prominent men want to run for governor of Oregon on an independent ticket. Such a candidate would have as much chance as a gutta percha cat in hell, the way things are lined up now.

There is a powerful movement for prohibition in Germany. Of all things! Will wonders never cease?

J. P. Morgan's check was refused by Italian customs officials on the Austrian frontier the other day; but perhaps they weren't sure that it was Mr. Morgan who offered it.

Charles M. Schwab's appearance in the automobile field, through his purchase of an interest in the Stutz Motor company, links up a great steel industry very much in line with Mr. Ford's plan of development—only Ford and Schwab began at opposite ends.

made by President Harding today in his message on the industrial situation. Their efforts for the most part, although not in all, were seconded by Democratic members.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican house leader, within an hour after the president concluded delivery of his address, had telegrams on the wires to absent members of the house interstate commerce committee requesting them to return to Washington at once to begin work on bills to carry out the president's recommendations for authorization to set up an agency, to purchase, sell and distribute coal and for creation of a commission to ascertain the facts in the coal industry.

The Republican leader, accompanied by Speaker Gillett, later visited the White House and personally assured the president that legislation creating the fact finding commission would be introduced within a few days and probably passed by the house next week. Senate leaders also promised speedy action on this piece of legislation.

House and senate leaders alike, however, expressed the opinion that the recommendation for a coal distribution and price control agency could not be so speedily carried out. Some senators declared federal distribution and price control during the war had not been successful and they were not prepared to try the experiment again.

Other recommendations of the president, such as legislation as to put teeth in decisions of the railroad labor board and to accord federal protection to aliens, leaders said, could go over until the next session of congress. The determination of the president to "use all the powers of the government to maintain protection, and to protect the right of men working," was almost universally approved by members of congress. The two Republican leaders had this to say:

Representative Mondell: "The president performed a real service in reiterating the determination to assist in all lawful ways the maintenance of order and the preservation of the people's rights, under the laws."

Senator Lodge: "In the enforcement of the law the protection of all men who wish to work and of the rights of the American people, he will certainly have my most earnest support, and in my opinion the hearty support of congress and of the American people."

Representative Garrett, Democratic house leader, said the president's message was "so complicated and involved that it is impossible to understand precisely what he means."

Senator Underwood, the Democratic leader of the senate, had no comment to make, but senator Robison of Arkansas, Democratic member of the interstate commerce committee, said that while the announcement of general principles "might very well have been deferred," he endorsed "the doctrine that both the railroad executives and the employees must be brought to a full understanding of the necessities for peaceful composition of railroad controversies."

SILVERTON HOTEL LOST BY FLAMES

Building Burns to Ground—Small Amount of Insurance Covers

SILVERTON, Or. Aug. 18.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The Silverton hotel, belonging to Jim Hunter and leased to M. Hayward, was burned to the ground this morning between 4 and 5 o'clock. The fire started from an unknown cause.

The hotel which was a 20-room building, was valued at $6000 and covered with an insurance of $2,500. The hotel furnishings were valued at $2,800 with no insurance covering.

The hotel, it is said, was filled to capacity. All escaped injury with the exception of few minor burns. J. Slaughter, it is reported, received some painful burns on one hand.

The building was built about 15 years ago and was of frame construction, though it was situated in the center block of town and other buildings were damaged.

Myer—I wonder why Brown added the "e" to his name after inheriting a fortune?
Gyer—He probably figured out to his own satisfaction that rich people are entitled to more ease than poor people.

the congress and the country that no body of men, whether limited in numbers and responsibility for railway management or powerful in numbers, and the necessary forces in railway operation shall be permitted to choose a course which imperils public welfare. Neither organizations of employers or workmen's unions may escape responsibility.

"If free men cannot toll, according to their own lawful choosing, all our constitutional guarantees born of democracy are surrendered to mobocracy and the freedom of a hundred millions is surrendered to the small minority which would have no law."

Must Recognize Labor

At this time the president called attention to another element which he said he believed, was responsible to some degree for strikes and for the difficulties of restoring industrial peace.

"I refer," said he, "to the warfare on the unions of labor. The government has no sympathy or approval for the element of discord in the ranks of industry. We recognize these organizations in the law and we must accredit them with incalculable contribution to labor's uplift."

Discussing the coal strike specifically, Mr. Harding warned congress that although the skies now appeared to be clearing, more trouble can be expected when wage contracts are renewed next April, unless the executive is provided with adequate authority.

Men Want To Work

He declared that "except for coal from non-union districts the country is at the mercy of the United Mine Workers," and detailed how settlement of the present strike had been delayed for many weeks although evidence had come to the White House that in many localities the workmen were "anxious to return to their jobs."

Arrangements for the president's appearance before congress which twice had been postponed to await developments in the conference of rail executives and union chiefs in session at New York were completed only an hour before he went to the capitol and during the morning his manuscript underwent a last revision after a session of the cabinet. It is understood that although the New York meeting was not mentioned in the address, the decision to go to the capitol without further delay was reached after it had become apparent no final agreement ending the strike would be possible for several days.

Passion Play Lecture Scheduled Sunday Night

An illustrated lecture on the Oberammergau Passion play will be given Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the First Methodist-Episcopal church by Dr. J. M. Wilkinson of Toronto. Dr. Wilkinson witnessed the pageant in 1910 and spent five days at the home of Anton Lang, who played the role of the Christ. While visiting with Lang, he met all the principals of the production and learned the story of the play from them.

Dr. Wilkinson is said to have delivered the lecture to crowded houses ore than a hundred times throughout Canada and the United States. He has been invited to co-operate in the producing of the first American interpretation of the drama of passion and love which will be given in Los Angeles during the next year.

At the conclusion of his lectures, Dr. Wilkinson exhibits what is said to be the only true likeness of Jesus Christ as He appeared on earth. The generally accepted figure of Christ was originally made by Hoffman, a German artist and sculptor, who is said to have used his wife as his model for the work.

No admission will be charged at the lecture.
