BLIGH
Robt. Warwick in "Told in the Hills," and vaudeville.

GRAND
Norma Talmadge in "Smile" through.

Despite the fact that most of the dramatic action of "Nice People"

William de Mille's latest Paramount picture occurs in and about an Old New England farmhouse, the producer has adhered to his long established rule of filming every possible scene in the studio.

To achieve these results it was necessary to build a complete farm house in the studio. This elaborate set includes both the interior and exterior of the house, an extensive yard, fence and roadway.

A notable all-star cast headed by Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel and Julia Faye was selected by Mr. de Mille for this production. "Nice People" will be the feature at the OREGON Theatre today.

Rudolph Valentino in "Blood and Sand" his first Paramount picture starring vehicle which will be the feature at the OREGON theatre tonight, portrays a Spanish "ace", a bull-fighter who has risen to the same popularity in his profession as that enjoyed by "Babe" Ruth, Eddie Rickenbacker, Jimmie Murphy and Charles Paddock in theirs.

As "Juan Gallardo", an idol of Spain, Mr. Valentino is called endearingly by the bull-ring crowds, "Espada", or "spade", that being the type of ace considered particularly lucky in Andalusia.

The screen has rendered a great service in picturing Marah Ellis Ryan's immortal novel, "Told in the Hills," which, with Robert Warwick in the leading role, came to the BLIGH theatre last night.

It is a thrilling story of love and sacrifice. Against a magnificent background of high mountains and canyons, a splendid cast of players enacts the story.

The list of players in "Paid Back" the all star Universal attraction at the BLIGH theatre next Sunday-Monday reads a bit like the blue book itself. First there's Gladys Brockwell, for several years one of the biggest stars in the field; then there's Mahlon Hamilton, courtly leading man of many successes, Stuart Holmes, villain de luxe, Arthur Stewart Hull, a versatile player, Edna Murphy, Kate Price, Lillian West and Wilfred Lucas. The director of these famous players was Irving Cummings, formerly quite well known actor himself.

The best comedy, high or low, consists in surprise situations and sly digs at the foibles common to most humans. Harold Lloyd aims high, and hits the bull's eye with just these factors. Quin Martin, critic for the New York World said, "if a comparison is to be made of the funny business on our screen in the last year, honors must go to Mr. Lloyd."

Mr. Martin had not then seen "Grandma's Boy." This newest comedy of Harold Lloyd's for Associated Exhibitors is in five parts, and is said to be so far ahead of his past comedy successes and ahead of anything ever seen in the way of screen comedy that it sets a high standard mark that it will be difficult to equal.

"Grandma's Boy," like all Lloyd comedies, was produced by Hal Roach, from a story by Roach, Sam Taylor and Ejan Havre. Fred Newmeyer, responsible for the direction of most of the Lloyd's, directed it. The cast includes Mildred Davis, Anna Townsend, Dick Sutherland and others. It comes to the LIBERTY theatre tomorrow.

LOCAL PLANT IS EXPANDING

Oregon Wood Products Company Installs New Machinery to Increase Output

The Oregon Wood Products company in West Salem started up its new 75-h. p. steam engine Wednesday, and the whole plant is working as smooth as a new dollar in a candy store.

The company has been using electric power, with individual motors for each separate machine. But with so much factory waste, that costs money to buy and costs heavily to get rid of, the company figures that a steam plant of its own would save the expense of electric current and of waste disposal, and practically do their work for nothing. Blowers are being mounted and shavings go automatically to the furnace. The machinery has been re-located so that it is all driven from one main shaft, 90 feet in length. By re-routing their products they are able to save much labor that has heretofore been lost by unnecessary handling.

One important addition is that of a saw that will handle logs up to 24 inches in diameter. The company expects to buy commercial logs, and be able to get out its own material, cutting it to any length desired, instead of having to take its supplies arbitrarily from other mills. Hardwood logs of 14 inches diameter can be handled as well as the soft wood. The company plans to branch out steadily into other wood products, until it has an all-year line that will keep the wheels turning all through the season. Hardwood handles will be one of the important lines, as soon as the plant is fully ready for this class of products.

OLCOTT NAMES TROPHY BOARD

Relics from European Battlefields to Be Distributed About State

Governor Olcott today announced that he has appointed George A. White, adjutant general of Oregon; George B. Wilbur, department commander of the American Legion of the state, and Paul B.
