

CAPTAIN AGAIN UNDER ARREST

Rosenbluth's Bail Fixed at $40,000; Will Be Removed to Tacoma

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Federal Judge Learned Hand late today fixed bail of $40,000 for Captain Robert Rosenbluth who was arrested here on a warrant for his removal to Tacoma, Wash., to face an indictment charging him with complicity with Roland W. Pothier of Providence, R. I., in the playing on October 25, 1918, of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite at Camp Lewis, Wash.

ent indictment warranted heavier bail than $25,000 fixed when Rosenbluth was first arrested in 1921.

Week's Stay Granted

Rosenbluth surrendered to the authorities today and was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock. The commissioner granted a stay of one week in the proceedings for his removal to Tacoma for trial on the indictment returned in the federal court there on October 13. He declared, however, that he had no authority to fix bail in a murder case and sent the matter before Judge Hand.

Jonah J. Goldstein, Rosenbluth's counsel, said he would fight removal proceedings and would ask for a writ of habeas corpus if his fight were unavailing. The complaint on which Rosenbluth was arrested, charged him with having willfully and maliciously assaulted Major Cronkhite and with having commanded Pothier to kill him.

First Evidence Meagre

The original case against the two men was dropped when Attorney General Daugherty after investigation of the evidence, declared it was insufficient to warrant prosecutions.

In prepared statements issued today by Rosenbluth and his counsel, it was declared that "this unwarranted indictment is an effort to remove the case as part of the impeachment proceedings instituted against Attorney General Daugherty and to block a congressional inquiry as requested by the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

Rosenbluth Asks Inquiry

Rosenbluth explained that Attorney General Daugherty, after ordering him released after his first arrest had declared that he had no jurisdiction and had ordered the case transferred to legal authorities of the state of Washington who, Rosenbluth said "threw out the case."

Rosenbluth then tried, his statement continued, to get the attorney general to investigate the charges and appealed to congress for an inquiry and to the Veterans of Foreign Wars for aid.

Other Charges Made

While these steps were in progress, Rosenbluth said, Attorney General Daugherty took hold of the original charge and ordered that an indictment be prepared. Rosenbluth also charged that there had been irregularities in the calling of witnesses in the Tacoma proceedings which led to the indictment.

hite and with having commanded Pothier to kill him.

POTHIER ARRESTED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 19.—Roland R. Pothier, former army sergeant, arrested in Central Falls this afternoon on a first degree murder charge in connection with the killing of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite at Camp Lewis, Wash., October 25, 1918, was committed to jail late today without bond and tomorrow will be brought before Federal Judge Arthur L. Brown, on removal proceedings.

An offense of murder is ballable under federal procedure and counsel for Pothier is expected to ask Judge Brown to fix bail for the prisoner's release here, pending trial in Tacoma, Judge Brown, if he does fix bail, is expected to make the amount of surety so high that it will be impossible for the defendant to obtain bond. In default of bail before the court, Pothier would be immediately sent to Tacoma.

WOMEN'S AUTO SCHOOL PLANNED

Local Vocational Institution to Teach Fair as Well As Stern Sex

"Why don't you start an auto school for women, both as drivers and as car owners who would appreciate the chance to learn some of the scientific facts about cars? It would be a good act of citizenship and a public benefit."

This was the substance of the advice of State Director E. E. Elliott of the state board for vocational education to the Salem School of Automotive Engineering that is now operating under federal supervision. That, too, is precisely what the school had already planned to do, and the keen judgment of the director was met by plans already pretty well matured.

The Salem school is to open such a department in the very near future, if there is a sufficient demand for it. The present school quarters on South Liberty street will have to be somewhat renovated, however. A new floor is to be laid, more work benches installed, and the place is to be fitted up for attractive as well as efficient service. Either day or night classes can be arranged for if there are enough applicants to make it feasible. All the field repairs, such as changing tires, repairing tubes and tires, adjusting the carburetor, changing spark plugs and practically all minor road adjustments, will be treated, as well as enough electrical service to start many a car that is now stranded between stations.

The new school opened a week ago Monday and now has an enrollment of 30 men, for both day night classes.

of sciences at Washington these things will be a regular part of the interesting exhibits open to the public.

Near Lincoln Memorial

It is hoped to have the building completed by the fall of 1923. It will be located near the recently dedicated Lincoln Memorial and will be three stories high. The first floor will be given over to public and museum purposes, where many scientific facts will be demonstrated. The two upper floors will be devoted to offices. The main demonstration feature will be under a dome in the central lobby, where the sun-spot phenomena will be demonstrated.

A coelostat telescope mounted in the dome, will form a large image of the sun on the white surface of a circular table in the middle of the room. Here visitors will see the spots on the sun's disc, changing in number and form, from day to day and moving across the disc as the sun revolves on its axis.

Pendulum is Indicator

Foucault's experiment demonstration will be embodied in a 60-foot pendulum swinging in a wide arc. The swinging pendulum will mark an invariable direction in space, and as the earth revolves beneath it, rotation will be plainly shown by the steady change in
