Mrs. E. P. Murphy, formerly a resident of Salem, is a guest of Mrs. W. P. Lord. Mrs. Murphy who lives now in Portland, was prominent in social and church circles when she lived in Salem and many attentions are being paid her while she is a guest in town. She has been a guest at a number of affairs during the last week.

Tickets which were purchased will be returned or they will be good for the November appearance of the poet in Salem.

Salem Arts League and Williamette university are sponsoring the appearance of Mr. Lindsay in Salem.

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER 152
WHAT MOTHER GRAHAM DEMANDED OF MADGE.
"I put down my sewing as Mother Graham left the room, gazed down at my little son, who had tired of his spoils, and was looking around, evidently, for something else to do.
"Come to mother, sweetheart," said coaxingly.
He scrambled to his feet with alacrity, toddled over toward me, and when I had drawn him up into my arms he put his own tiny ones around my neck in the most wonderful embrace a woman can know.
"Ma-ma-no-ky—" he said decidedly and disapprovingly.
I surreptitiously wiped my eyes, turned a smiling sunny face to his anxious one.
"Mother's not crying, sweetheart."
"All wite. Tell ba-bee-tory," he demanded, his own face breaking out into smiles, and his tender little body wriggling expectantly into a comfortable position.
"Which story sweetheart?"
"An-er-little-pig-puff-puff-puff—" he began.

The South Salem Friends Missionary society will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. J. R. Pemberton, 1455 South Commercial.

To see an aged maiden lady primping before the glass to simulate youth and pep is about as useless a proceeding as removing the speedometer from an automobile after a long drive. Both have traveled far.

We don't know but that we should favor the second marriage of the ex-kaiser if his wife manages to keep him at home—Exchange.

MONUMENT TO FIELD.

A monument dedicated to Eugene Field, one of the greatest of American lyric poets, was dedicated in Lincoln Park, Chicago. The monument represents a bronze angel brooding over two sleeping children as she sprinkles the sand of dreams over them.

factually banished my introspective mood.

That she was both uneasy and angry I know by her first words. No matter against whom her anger may be directed she appears to find me the most convenient scapegoat for her mood.

"What are you spolling that great baby for?" she demanded crossly. "You'll get him so he'll want to be rocked all the time. Put him down and listen to me. I've got something I want you to do."

But I am so used to her little ways that I made no move to obey her, simply shifting Junior to my other arm so that I could look directly at her.

"I can listen better this way," I said serenely. "What is it you want done?"

"Do you mean to—" she began stormily, but Junior lifted up his head and delivered a baby ultimatum.

Mother Graham's Ultimatum.
"Danma kyoss," he whispered. "Ba-bee ky—Dan-ma kyoss!"
She was on her knees beside him in an instant, glorying in her chains.
"Grandma's precious baby," she crooned. "Was she bad to him? Grandma not be cross any more."
"All wite," Junior accorded her the accolade. "Big tss."
He hugged her rapturously, but then—I could not help a little unworthy thrill of triumph, he turned his face to me and cuddled closer into my arms.

"Ba-bee go sleep now," he announced, and his grandmother and I smiled involuntarily at each other across his little huddled figure.

"I know I'm an old fool over that youngster, but I can't help it," she said as a sort of half-apology for her hastiness then she added earnestly:
"Margaret you'll simply have to take Richard in hand and demand what he means by all those letters to the real estate firms. When I got back he had cleared away everything, so there was nothing for me to see save a pile of sealed letters. And when I asked him what he meant by all that nonsense, he laughed, and said he was qualifying for a course in stenography and typing if the illustrating profession should fall—you know how idiotic he can be—and is."

JURY PROBES IN CRONKHITE CASE

Effort Made to Ascertain if Funds Were Used to Frustrate Justice

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The federal grand jury was reported today to have dropped its John Doe investigation to determine whether funds had been collected here from wealthy friends of Robert Rosenbluth, former army captain, to be used in frustrating his indictment in Tacoma, Wash., for the murder of Major Alexander P. Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in 1918.

The testimony of witnesses, it was said, did not support the charges but indicated that the money raised was to obtain counsel for his defense.

Removal proceedings in the case are scheduled to be brought before United States Commissioner Hitchcock tomorrow.

GODDESS OF BUTTS CONSIDERED LUCKY

Thirteen Wabash College Students Will Invoke Success on Team

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 25.—Thirteen Wabash college students at one minute before midnight Friday night will gather in a room in this city, turn out the lights, bar the door, each light a cigarette, kneel, bow five times to "the Goddess of butts" take several puffs, put the cigarettes into the jar, cover it and silently wait for the court house clock to strike 12.

When the last stroke sounds the 13 men will give five yells for Old Wabash and hope for a continuation of success to the little giant football team which meets Butler college at Indianapolis Saturday.

This superstitious proceeding resulted here before Purdue-Wabash football game last year. It was held before the Depauw grid game, the two Depauw basketball games and the final Purdue basketball game last year.

And it has yet to fail.

PROHI LAW MUST WAIT

Decision from United States Supreme Court Expected Early in Winter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(By The Associated Press)—Enforcement of the national prohibition law with respect to foreign shipping within American territorial waters will wait a final interpretation of that section of the statute by the supreme court, it was indicated today by administration officials.

This interpretation is expected by government officers late next month or in December.

Decision Sent Brandies
The executive department to withhold enforcement of the law as construed by Attorney General Daugherty in his opinion of October 6, was formally communicated today to Associate Justice Brandies of the supreme court who subsequently refused to grant various steamship lines a stay against the enforcement of Federal Judge Hand's decision at New York, dismissing their application for permanent injunction restraining federal agents from applying the Volstead act.

Justice Brandies, who was sitting in chambers, was understood to have agreed with counsel for the government and the steamship lines that the decision to withhold enforcement had removed any necessity for legal stay through a writ of supersedeas which had been requested by the lines and acquiesced in by department of justice. The decision as to enforcement was incorporated in a formal order issued by Secretary Mellon to customs officers and prohibition agents which was drafted after Mr. Mellon had conferred at length with Attorney General Daugherty.

Counsel for the steamship companies in their petition to Justice Brandies contended that enforcement of the Daugherty decision would cause irreparable damage to their business and would lead to diplomatic difficulties.
