

PAUL WALLACE TALKS TO CLUB

Member of Orators Club Limbers up for Next Appearance in Class

When the chairman called on Paul Wallace to speak at the Kiwanis club luncheon Tuesday noon, he reported that "Taints" to call on a man who is just starting in on a course of oratory, and had only one of the sixteen lessons. A number of the Kiwanians around him grinned for they, too, are of the orators' club that is starting its work at the Y. M. C. A. public speaking class.

Mr. Wallace spoke on Good Fellowship, and wondered how Salem used to get along with none of the present clubs to teach better civic and personal responsibility and helpfulness.

He spoke mostly on the general subject of the Chamber of Commerce membership drive, and he said that maybe the canvassers ought to blame only themselves for lack of faith or enthusiasm if they failed to sell the idea to every one of their assignments. He thought the city ought to know the men who refuse to do their part in carrying the Chamber of Commerce and other civic loads, but who stealthily piled themselves on to the sled that others are pulling, and steal rides they have not earned. The Oratorical club picked a good prospect when it chose Wallace for a member.

Miss Kathleen LaRaut, with Miss Ruth Bedford as accompanist, sang "Calm as the Night," and later "The Owl," in a charming manner. Professor Roberts also played a striking piano number, "Album Leaf," by Grieg.

Vernon R. Churchill, advertising magnate from San Francisco, was introduced to speak on the business-making and stabilizing influence of advertising. He said that the reason that California had suffered less than other sections in the deflation period was that it had stabilized its farm marketing system so perfectly, and had developed so wide a market through advertising.

The club turned itself loose under Ed. Socolofsky's guidance, and sang practically all the worthwhile songs there are. They are training for a song Marathon. The club has a number of high class musicians and the singing is of a high and peppy order.

voltage circuit such as is used for distributing electricity from power houses to the customers must be extended from the residence of Dr. C. W. Beecher, whose place is at present the end of the low stilled along this road, but due voltage circuit just east of the fair grounds.

Mr. Walker and Mr. Dunnigan have called on practically all of the residents along the road for a distance of about three miles to a point about one mile east of the Little Pudding river bridge, and practically all of the people along the road signify their desire to have the lines extended and their willingness to participate in the expense provided the cost is not more than they feel justified in spending.

It is the hope of those who desire the service that a large number of subscribers will be obtained so that the cost per subscriber will be as low as possible, and thereby enable everyone to have service. The Portland Railway Light & Power company contributes towards the cost of the line in proportion to the number of subscribers, which reduces the balance to be paid by the persons desiring the service.

Only a few of the residents along the road who have been called on by Mr. Walker and Mr. Dunnigan have refused to participate and it is hoped by the other residents along the road that these few people who are holding out will soon signify their intention of cooperating with the rest of the residents to improve living conditions on their farms. As they already have telephone service and hard-surfaced pavement, the addition of the electric lights will help greatly to modernize their homes.

Oswego Residents Want Rails to Oregon City

Residents of Oswego have petitioned the public service commission to use its coercive authority upon the Southern Pacific company to compel the construction of a common carrier railway from Oswego to Willamette, to make a direct railway connection with Oregon City.

The petition states that at present when Oswego residents want to go to the county seat it is necessary for them to go seven miles out of the way to Portland and then 15 miles to Oregon City, necessitating a day's time for the trip, while if the direct connection were made it would be a ride of 15 minutes.

It is averred that in 1910 the Portland Railway, Light & Power company procured right of way from Oswego to Willamette for the alleged purpose of constructing a road, that the right of way was immediately transferred to the Portland, Eugene & Eastern road and later to the Southern Pacific, which is the present owner of the right of way.

Run of Silversides Largest Ever Known

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 25.—One of the largest, if not the largest runs of silverside salmon in the history of the state is in progress along the Oregon coast, according to R. E. Clanton, superintendent of hatcheries of the state fish commission. Huge catches are being made by trollers off the mouths of coast streams, he said, and several canneries on the Columbia river are in operation as a result.

POLICE CLOCKS HARD TO CHEAT

Speedometers Are Tested Every Month by Experts in Portland

Speeders who start to question the police records when they are charged with fast driving in Salem—do not as a rule get very far with the court.

A man recently hailed before the court for speeding, proclaimed his faith in his own speedometer, which he "knew" was accurate, though he had never had it tested. When the court began to approach the point of accusing his dial-plate of being a liar or at least a misrepresenter of facts, the prisoner countered with the assertion that if his was wrong, maybe the police record was a fraud also.

The judge called for the police proof. It came up from the police desk, in the shape of a sheet of certificates from the Stewart Products company at Portland, factory agents for the speedometers. They have been having the Salem police motorcycle and Ford speedometers tested every month for a long time. The machines are sent there for examination and a rigorous test, and for whatever correction might be found necessary. They are accurate, in every sense of the word, and there is no going back on them.

In a recent Salem dispute as to the rate of speed at which a car was moving, a test showed that at 15 miles an hour there was an error of four miles on the dial, it showing 19 instead of the official 15 and at 25 miles according to the officially tested machine, the other machine showed a six-mile error.
