Ballots Delivered—
The ballots for the election next Tuesday are being delivered out over the county. Some of them go by truck, a whole truck-load being carried out to some central station, and then radiated out from there to outlying precincts. There are 74 precincts, and a considerable number of them have already been supplied. The rest are going out as fast as they can be delivered.

Barricade Removed—
Tuesday afternoon the ban and the barricade were removed from

State street, and the State street and Twelfth street cars now run west clear to the bitter end of the road, west of Commercial. The street has been closed for almost two weeks, this last time, waiting for the concrete to be poured and to set properly after repairing. The improvement is going to be a notable boon to the busy State street, where the commuters have almost worn out the English language in saying things about the cars that wouldn't run clear through. The new street, however, looks to be worth the waiting for.

Mill Wood—

Larkin Bound Over—
Fred J. Larkin, accused of grand larceny from the Valiton store, was on Tuesday bound over to the grand jury, after a hearing in Justice Unruh's court. The bail was fixed at $750 on a surety or personal bond, or $500 cash. As the bail had not been secured, up to last night, Larkin was remanded to the county jail to await his hearing.

Local Wizards Training—
Cooke Patton and Frank Wagar are to open their winter series of legerdemain and magic at the Salem Indian school Friday night, Nov. 10. The program is for everybody who cares to attend, not being confined to students alone. They go to Airline on the next night, and have a number of dates booked for other points in the valley. The two Salem artists have an interesting program that will mystify the most sophisticated audience, and prove that their hands are quicker than the audience's eyes. They have been preparing for a number of weeks, getting up a varied program that will please and astonish at every turn, and not follow one line long enough to become tiresome.

Food Inspectors Here—
E. L. Melton and L. S. Leech, deputy dairy and food inspectors were Salem visitors Tuesday night on official business. They have just returned from a two months trip to Klamath Falls, Medford, Marshfield, and practically the whole of southwestern Oregon looking after weights, sanitary conditions, measures, and other matters of their department. They report that the fines turned in to the state treasury during the past 10 months by the three deputies, W. B. Duncan of Salem being the third, amount to more than $10,000, and that the expenses taxed against offenders took care of a good one-third of the total expenses of the deputies in getting the prosecutions.

Mr. Sefton was unable to work last night. The name of the driver of the automobile was not ascertained.

dramatic art, and an actor of international reputation. He presents a large number of the great characters of the Bible—King Saul, David the shepherd boy and later himself the King, Goliath the giant of Gath, Jonathan the faithful friend, and other of the great ones of the times. The story is said to be a triumph of expression. It gives to every part the touch of the master, instead of being merely one star and all the others mere satellites. The play promises to make a great hit for the Odd Fellows lodge, that is bringing Mr. Beers here to exemplify the lodge work and charging only the expenses of the presentation.

where it has been for the past two years. The meeting is for all growers who care for their business to prosper. A number of the originators of the movement, in the Liberty district south of Salem, are planning to attend and give their assistance to the new district organization.

Talks On School Bill—
Ray McDougall, representing the Scottish Rite Masons of the state is to speak Thursday night at the armory on the school bill that is to be voted on at the election next Tuesday. The lecture is free. Mr. McDougall spoke at Silverton Saturday night. He was at McMinnville one night last week and again Sunday to discuss the Judge Lowell anti-bill arguments. He has spoken in a number of places in the state, and the reports credit him with being one of the best speakers, on any political subject, who has visited the state in years. He is a Presbyterian minister, and a nationally prominent educator, from Washington City.

Lot Buyers to Meet—
All buyers of lots in the new Highway addition, on North Capitol street are urged to attend the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce hall tonight at 8 o'clock. Receipts are to be issued for all payments made on the lots, and the new owners will be given a chance to have something to say in public about how the new public improvement can be best handled. Out of the 34 lots that were platted in the property, two-thirds or a little better have already changed hands or are definitely spoken for. The deeds cannot be made until the last lot is sold, as there is no profit in the sales, and there isn't money to take up the property options until the last lot is paid for. The prices, however, are said to be tempting for anyone who wants to make an investment and at the same time perform a real public service—to do good and be paid for it, as it were.
