PLANE SERVICE ELEVEN DAILY

Frequent Airline Trips Now Made Between London and Continent

LONDON, Nov. 1. — The London-Berlin airway, the first section of which—that between London and Holland — was opened recently, completes an aerial service of eleven planes leaving London daily for the Continent. The popularity of the airways among tourists during the past summer has led to plans for routes to be opened in the spring which will connect London by air with all of the principal points within a radius of 500 miles.

These plans included daily trips to Scotland, Deauville, Denmark, Ireland and Luxembourg. It is proposed also to keep several planes for special trips, a feature of travelling which has proved popular with American tourists. The cost of these journeys is about four pence (eight cents) a mile.

The new London-Berlin route is being operated by an English company, and a double service will be run in each direction from Rotterdam daily until the route is completed. The trip will take two and a half hours, and will be made for $4, or little more than 3 1/2 a mile. The second stage of the journey will be opened about October 30, when the route will be from London to Hamburg and Berlin.

At the present time five planes are making eight trips daily between London and Paris, carrying a average of three persons on each trip. The routes to Rotterdam, Brussels and Antwerp are constantly filled in advance and carry a full capacity of freight.

British Federation of Confectioners, who are seeking to have the confection trade of the clubs stopped as being an unfair form of trading.

Many of these clubs deal direct with the manufacturers and get better terms and prices than the shopkeepers," said an official of the confectioners' association. "They are not confined to the factories and mills, but in Yorkshire and Lancashire churches and Sunday schools, now have these clubs, and their effect on the retail trade is very serious. The total amount of money taken in by the clubs is said to be enormous, and it is not uncommon for girls earning two and three pounds a week to spend on an average of ten shillings or more for candy alone."

ALSACE-LORRAINE WANTS AUTONOMY

Neutrality Also Moving Spirit Behind Preparations Now Under Way

KOLMAR, Alsace, Nov. 1. — Autonomy and neutrality for Alsace-Lorraine is the moving spirit behind preparations which are being made for an international conference to be held here this fall. It is expected that a number of delegates will come from America, especially Alsatians living there. Friends of the movement are to be invited also from Switzerland, England, Denmark, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Holland, Spain and other countries.

At a recent meeting in Kolmar of persons interested in the project, it was unanimously decided that the proposition for autonomy and neutrality should be placed before the League of Nations. The consensus was, however, that support should first be assured in such lands as the United States and England, and in countries which were neutral during the world war.

Speakers at the assembly, particularly those coming from agricultural districts, voiced opposition to the French administration. They cautioned at the same time against "signing for the Prussian spiked helmet."

LABOR LEADERS ARE ELATED

Stubborn Campaign for Seats in House of Commons Made in England

LONDON, Nov. 1. — The English Labor party will place more than 450 candidates for the House of Commons in the field at the next general elections, as compared with 361 candidates at the 1918 election, according to plans of the party leaders which have just been announced.

The Labor leaders are elated over their successes in the last election and the increased number of votes which were forthcoming in many of the country districts of England. Some additional strength has been shown by Labor candidates in the by-elections held in various constituencies.

since 1918, notably in city districts. Preparations Elaborate. Preparations for the forthcoming election have been elaborated and practically every district in the country has already been organized. In this organizing work the Labor federations and unions have been allowed a free hand, and it is largely on their efforts and strength that the structure of the campaign battles has been built.

The National Association of Labor Agents has been training agents throughout the country and hundreds of volunteer workers are qualifying for agency work. There are at the present time at least 2,400 local parties of one kind or another, and more than 800 women's sections in connection with these parties. The individual membership of the Labor party, in addition to the affiliated unions and societies, includes 80,000 women.

Of the 75 Labor members in the House of Commons, 71 will seek re-election, and candidates have been chosen to contest the remaining four seats. Ten women are numbered among the Labor candidates.

As soon as the election is announced the leaders will start an extensive campaign to include speeches, meetings and demonstrations in the cause of Labor.
