director liked his work and saw promise of future excellence.

In addition to the fact that "A Rogue's Romance," which will be shown at the Bligh Theatre today, tomorrow and Thursday is of the type that has made French fiction extremely popular in America, the cast contains two of the most popular male stars of today, Rudolph Valentino and Rudolph Valentino. The former has climbed to popularity through years of hard work and clever performances. He won the title of the most popular male star in several contests and his films are greeted with enthusiasm by picture lovers throughout the country.

Rudolph Valentino leaped into popularity almost overnight. Aside from his ability as an actor he has won an enviable reputation as a dancer. Perhaps the best known and most popular of those performed by Valentino is an Apache dance.

Emmett King, playing a minor but important role in "Human Hearts," the attraction tomorrow at the Oregon Theatre, was the creator of the same role in the original stage play of Hal Reid's which ruled on the American stage for a decade. House Peters is the star, King Baggot the director, and Russell Simpson, George Hackathorne, Mary Phillips, Edith Hallor, Snitz Edwards, Gertrude Claire and Ramsey Wallace are among the supporting players.

There is romance a-plenty in "Man's Law and God's," which is to be presented commencing tomorrow at the Liberty Theatre, and in which Jack Livingstone and Ethel Shannon are featured. The story is one primarily of a courtship by proxy, started as a pastime by a lonesome old bachelor miner without knowledge or consent of the young man whose personality he assumes, which, becoming the one big serious thing in the life of the girl concerned, later brings to its fulfillment another romance started thirty years previously.

The Hickman Bessey Stock Co. opens their fifth week at the Bligh Theatre this evening with "The Girl of the Flying X," a typical western three-act comedy drama. They will present this show for three evenings giving one show each night following the regular program of pictures.

If you don't understand why wealthy sons are apt to be wild you may after seeing "Rose of the Sea," Anita Stewart's latest picture which is coming to the Liberty Theatre. The narrative goes to show that it is not so much willful abandon as the mischievous influence of life without occupation of set purpose that drives young heirs to Broadway. In the case of "Rose of the Sea," the lesson is supplementary to a story that contains dramatic action and tense heart appeal.

"John Smith," starring Eugene O'Brien, which comes to the Liberty Theatre for two days beginning Friday tells the truth about prisons and prison reform. "John Smith" has been "sent up" for something that he never did. But circumstances have forced him to keep his lips sealed. He makes a model prisoner, and is released on parole.

PROCTOR IS HEARD HERE

World-Known Sculptor Entertains Art Lovers at Public Library

Knowing the life of the western pioneer, the hardships which of necessity he had to endure, A. Phinister Proctor, internationally known sculptor, created the figure of "The Pioneer" which is at the University of Oregon campus and the statue representing the "Circuit Rider" which will rest on the state house grounds after next April.

Born and reared in Denver "where they shot a man every morning for breakfast," Mr. Proctor said he knew the hardships which the circuit rider faced and had tried to put into his statue all the characteristics which he felt these men had.

Humor Pleases Hearers
Mr. Proctor spoke last night before a group of Salem men and women at the city library entertaining with his dry humor, giving them side lights on his friendship with "T. R." as he affectionately spoke of Theodor Roosevelt, whose statue, done by Mr. Proctor, was unveiled in Portland Saturday.

Mr. Proctor spoke last night under the sponsorship of the Salem Arts League. Rev. Ward Willis Long introduced the speaker who introduced his own talk by saying that "a good talker he thought must be a poor sculptor." His audience knowing his fame as an artist seemed agreed that he was an exception to his own rule since his talk was entertaining and much enjoyed by the small group present.

Own Life sketched
Personal sketches of his own life as it touched his art and his friends, personal recollections of his life in the west, all helped to make his talk delightfully entertaining.

Two of his statues are in Denver. For one of these, "The Buckaroo," one "Slim" from Pendleton posed. No sooner was the artist finished with "Slim's" services than Slim took up his residence in Salem, because, as the artist explained, Sheriff Til Taylor had need for him in his business for some time since Slim had sold a bucking horse belonging to a rancher. Sheriff Taylor had bided his time until the artist was through with Slim as a model.

Roosevelt Family Helps
Mr. Proctor said the Roosevelt family gave him every form of assistance possible and came often to the studio while the statue was taking shape. Mrs. Roosevelt gave him two suits of clothes worn by Colonel Roosevelt while on his campaign in Cuba. In one of these, Mr. Proctor found the rabbit's foot which was given to the Rough Rider before he went to Cuba by a friendly darkey. Colonel Roosevelt carried this luck piece throughout the war and delighted to tell of the narrow escapes he had encountered and how the rabbit's foot saved him.

Hanley Bust Decides Coe Dr. Henry Waldo Coe, who presided the statue of the Rough

Rider to Portland, came to Mr. Proctor's studio in New York just before going to Europe. Dr. Coe said he wanted to talk it over with Mr. Proctor but would wait until he returned from Europe to give him the commission. On his way to the artist's room he saw a bust of "Bill" Hanley, prominent eastern Oregon rancher and friend of Mr. Proctor. Dr. Coe immediately gave the order for the statue of Roosevelt because he said "If Proctor can do 'Bill' Hanley that good he can do 'T. R.'"

Reverence Is Factor
Asked who had posed for the "Circuit Rider," which R. A. Booth commissioned Mr. Proctor to make, the artist said that he had gathered photographs of representative circuit riders, and had used a man as a model who had the physical characteristics which he felt were needed. He then finished the face from his own ideal of what such a man would be. He spoke of the fact that the rider is reading his Bible as the horse jogs along with the reins loose. He spoke in particular of the fact that the rider's hat was off, to give a feeling of reverence, the artist said.

Mr. Proctor gave a short description of just how a large statue is made in the studio from the first tiny model to the finishing of the work in bronze. To illustrate he told how he worked on the figure of "T. R."

A movie was made of Mr. Proctor while he was working on the statue which showed "just how it was done."

Statue Ready in Spring
Mr. and Mrs. Proctor are now on their way to California and guests last night of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Clifford. Mr. Proctor said that he expected that the statue, "The Circuit Rider" would be ready to unveil on the state house grounds in April or May of next year. This will be the third of his works to be located in Oregon. Besides the "Rough Rider" in Portland he executed the "Pioneer" which is on the University of Oregon campus.

Official Thinks Prisoners Should Pay for Jail Cell

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The present prison system ruins more than it helps men, Charles Booth of California, president of the Prison Reform Association said today in an address before the Episcopal Clergymen's Round Table here.

The basic wrong for which men are jailed, he said, "is taking something and giving nothing in return. By our system of clogging men in penitentiaries and giving them free board and lodging for a few years we are simply confirming them in their lives of stealing."

Mr. Booth suggested that the men be compelled to pay for their board and lodging and at the same time support their wives and children and give something to the state besides.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

Ashland business men have announced their intention to get behind the organization and make it about a year ago and for many months has stood at the foot of the list of national guard companies in point of drill attendance.

ANNOUNCING THE SALE OF OUR OPTICAL DEPARTMENT

For some time it has been apparent that we had to secure more space to properly conduct our ever increasing jewelry business.

This has forced us to dispose of our optical department and entirely discontinue all optical work.

We were reluctant to do this for a long time, as we did not wish to embarrass our many friends and esteemed patrons.

But when it was made possible for us to transfer our entire optical department to the BOW OPTICAL CO., at 325 State street, we felt we were turning it over to a very responsible and reliable group group of vision specialists.

We therefore have no hesitancy in recommending to our former optical patrons to go to the BOW OPTICAL CO. for any optical service they might require. We have transferred to them all copies of prescriptions and records from our files.

Now that we have finished remodeling and with the additional space just acquired we are able to offer the people of Salem a very high type of jewelry service.
