HAITI LEARNS WINKING ART

Native Riflemen Unable to Close One Eye Without Closing the Other

PORT AU PRINCE, Nov. 19.—

In preparation for the first national rifle match to be held in Haiti, the American officers of the Haitian gendarmerie are engaged in teaching their native riflemen how to wink. When rifle practice was taken up in earnest for the first time this year among the native troops, their instructors immediately were confronted with the practically universal failure of the gendarmes to close their left eye when sighting along the Springfield barrels. Experiments showed that they were unable to close one eye without closing the other, or to open one eye without opening the other. At first the expedient of putting a patch over the left eye, or tying a handkerchief across it, had to be resorted to. As this did not prove satisfactory, General Douglas C. MacDougal, chief of the gendarmerie, had a shot of national reputation in the United States, instructed his officers to teach the gendarmes the principles of winking.

Gold Watch Offered At the recent departmental shoots, held to select eight-man teams for the national match, the scores made by the leading gendarmes would have compared very creditably with that of the more experienced marines. The gendarmes are absorbed in their newly found skill, and the spirit of rivalry is so keen that President Borno has offered to the best individual shot a gold watch and an autographed letter of commendation. With that championship will go the unwritten title of the most expert winker in a country where winking has been a lost art until the last few weeks.

Case Not Held Guilty by Jury on Cruelty Charge

George W. Case, charged with cruelty to an animal, was acquitted by jury in the justice court yesterday, after less than ten minutes of deliberation. Case was accused of leading a cow from his automobile until it became exhausted and then dragging it into a ditch.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat, Also Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

Too much meat may form uric acid, which excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish, ache and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region; you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to help neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in correcting kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Case contended that the cow, which belonged to James Felers was trampling on his clover and that he was taking it home when it became stubborn and refused to go further. He stated that he left the cow in a ditch temporarily to seek necessary help and that while he was gone the cow was discovered by the owner. The evidence was not held sufficient to convict the defendant of cruelty.

Wrap Well, Mail Early Is Postal Admonition

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—"Wrap well mail early!" This now familiar Christmas slogan of the postoffice department already has started across. Expecting an extra heavy Christmas business this season, department officials are warning postmasters to lay their plans early. So well has the postoffice service been organized of late years that no new methods will be tried this year. Postmasters whose "patronage" is so large that greatly augmented working staffs are needed, have been directed to give first preference in employment to men with families, and those long out of a job. Christmas always costs Uncle Sam between four and five million dollars for extra clerks, carriers, transportation facilities and renting of extra quarters.

Bradstreet Report Says Building Shows Increase

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Building operations show increased activity for this season of the year, according to Bradstreet's report, issued today and based on returns from 181 cities. For October, building expenditures totaled $204,260,134 as against $197,626,498 in September, 1922, and $165,536,555 for October, 1921.

Only two groups of cities, western and southern show a decrease in building operations in October, 1922, as compared with the preceding month. All groups, however, show an increase in October, this year over building expenditures in October, 1921.

Pope Pius Condemned for Stand in MacSwiney Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—John F. Finerty, president of the American Association for the recognition of the Irish Republic, sent a cable message to Pope Pius at Rome tonight in reference to Miss Mary MacSwiney, who is a prisoner of the Irish Free State and on a hunger strike in a Dublin prison. The message said: "Liberty loving people throughout the world view with consternation and horror your permitting Irish clergy to refuse sacrament to Mary MacSwiney, thus outlawing to the whole world means of moral force and leaving no alternative except dependence solely on physical force."

Fishermen's Paradise Is Destroyed by Fire

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Anglers, guides and sportsmen generally, who are interested in conservation of the country's inland game fish supply are warned by the bureau of fisheries to take especial pains to prevent forest fires as these have been responsible for widespread destruction of fish. Streams that once teemed with trout now have not a single fish as the result of a forest fire, bureau officials say. They believe their destruction resulted from the increased alkalinity of the water, due to the leaching out of the ash left by the fire.

Live Fish Transported Over Long Distances

TOKIO, Nov. 19.—A method of transporting live fish long distances has been discovered by Dr. Chiyomatai Ishikawa, professor of the Tokio Imperial university, by infusing a quantity of oxygen in the water of boxes doubly lined with zinc in order to prevent any leakage. The method proved successful and will be again tried with "ayu," a kind of trout which it hitherto has been believed impossible to transport alive. It is very important for the Japanese people to obtain fresh fish, one of the national dishes being raw fish.

ISLAND TO BE VISITED AGAIN

Desolate Stretch in Indian Ocean to Be Explored by French

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Kerguelon Land, or Desolation Island, in the Indian ocean half way between South Africa and Australia, is soon to have one of its infrequent visits from the white men.

Trip Opposed A French expedition now is being organized for a six months' stay, bent on making the biggest possible killing of sea elephants and sea leopards, two types of large seals found in those waters. Opposition to the trip has developed among humanitarians and scientists, for the sea elephant in particular faces extinction. The last expedition in 1908 killed 2,249 sea elephants in ten days' work, and brought back 150 tons of valuable oil.

French Flag Found Kerguelon Land has a curious history. Captain Cook, the British navigator, while cruising in the Antarctic sea suddenly came upon this dreary island, covered with moss and unproductive, although long thought to be underlaid with coal beds. He landed and was about to take possession of it in the name of his king when he found a French flag flying, raised by De Kerguelon shortly before, probably about 1772. The British sailor swallowed his disappointment and in his log-book recorded only that he had landed on "Desolation Island," ignoring the Frenchman's visit.

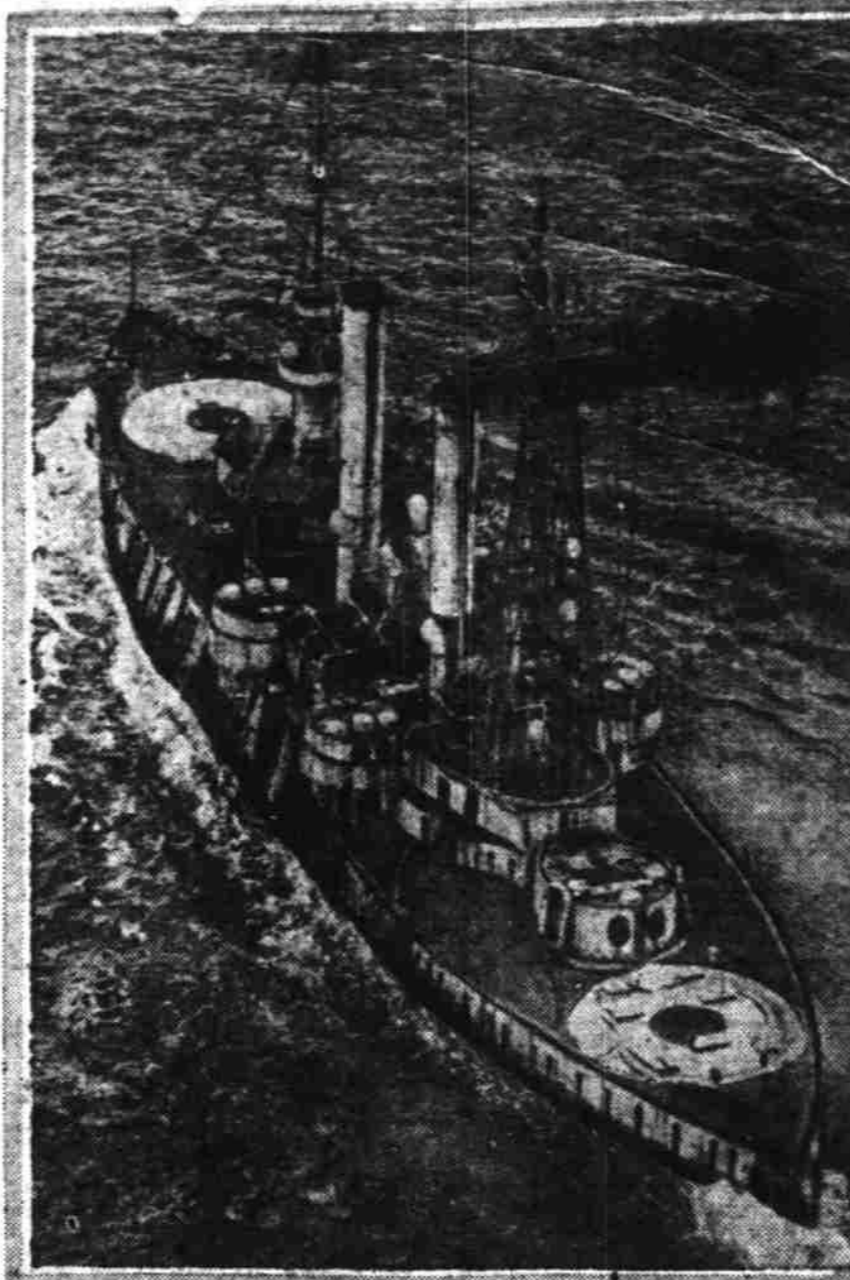

Island Identified Years later an inquiry reached the French naval office, asking for information about the island of Kerguelon. The naval department searched its records, high and low, but found nothing. The question was referred to the British admiralty with a request for an answer, which came in a few days. The island was identified by the British as the one registered on French charts as Desolation Island. American whalers visited the island early in the 18th century for old blubber stations with cauldrons marked "New London" were found there in 1825.

ENGLISH STUDENTS SAID EXTRAVAGANT

Local Shopkeepers Blamed for Allowing Students Too Much Credit

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Much criticism has been directed against the faculties of Cambridge and Oxford, as being responsible for the extravagant life led by many of the undergraduates of the universities. The subject gained wide publicity recently when a student committed suicide because of financial difficulties. Dr. Farnell, vice chancellor of Oxford university, in his address at the opening of the fall semester, said he had to admit that complaints, occasionally lodged against undergraduates of extravagant living, were not altogether without foundation. He blamed the local shopkeepers for giving students credit, and urged that students be limited in the amount of money allowed them. Dr. Farnell pointed out that the days of "Pendennis," when undergraduates were allowed to have parties in their rooms and to be without restrictions out of school hours, had gradually come to an end, and he said that nowadays cases of drinking among students were almost unknown.

NATIONAL GRANGE AGAINST 5 MERGER

Legal Representative Declares Combining for Efficiency All Rot

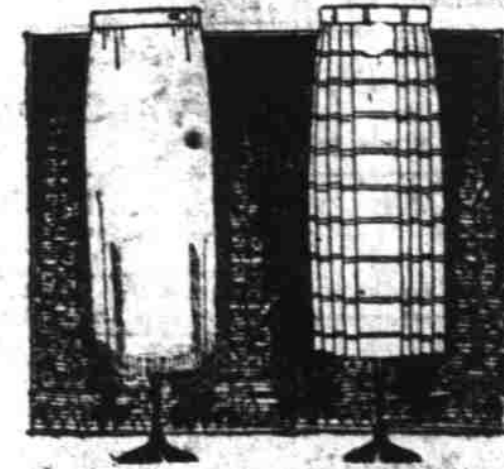

WICHITA, Kas., Nov. 16.—Opposition of the national grange to the proposed merger of the Armour and Morris Packing companies was voiced here tonight by T. C. Atkeson, Washington, D. C., legal representative of the National Grange and member of the executive committee.

"Our general attitude throughout the history of the grange has been one of opposition to monopoly in any form. We believe that as there is an increase in monopoly, there must be a likewise increase in government control or ownership. For the more the people give up protective competition the more they are giving up their only means of protection." Mr. Atkeson said: "Merging for greater efficiency and to give the common people better prices is all rot," he declared.

Mr. Atkeson made his report before the session of the work done during the past year by the national office in Washington. He felt that the interests of agriculture had received much consideration and that the farmers had been fortunate in the matter of the tariff.
