Tunes Are Whistled in Winchester Sunday School

WINCHESTER, Ind., Nov. 18.—A stage habit that musical comedy stars employed to arouse enthusiasm among audiences has been adopted by the Sunday school of the First Presbyterian church of Winchester, whose superintendent now asks the pupils to whistle the tune of the last hymn as they leave the church.

Children just learning to lip their lessons and grown-ups of Bible class age all join in the whistling and the hymns selected to close the services have a catchy swing.

The Sunday school has an orchestra of bobbed haired girls playing stringed instruments.

Kerosene and Oil Almost Fatal to Fire Starter

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Nov. 16.—Kerosene and oil inadvertently used to ignite a kitchen fire at Jacob Walter's home at Touchet this morning resulted in Mrs. Walters being severely burned about the face, arms and hands. She was brought to a local hospital where chances for recovery are favorable. Her husband was burned about the hands in his attempt to extinguish the flames.

GRAVEL LOADED FROM NEW BINS

Southern Pacific Bunkers at Eola Completed and Are Now Being Used

Gravel is being loaded from the Southern Pacific gravel plant at Eola that has been in construction for the past several months. The gravel bins are built of the heaviest and most substantial construction that should be good for many years of service. The derricks spar is one of the finest sticks of timber anywhere in Oregon for many a day, and the whole equipment looks to be of the best. A steam donkey engine furnishes the power for the plant. The railroad siding is built directly to the bins, and the gravel is spouted down to the cars as wanted.

The operators are just getting used to the new outfit, and sometimes the hoist operator doesn't put on his brake in time. A couple of yards of gravel, pouring out over the cars and falling from a height of 50 feet, because the hoist didn't check it in time to dump in the bins as it was intended to do, makes a bombardment almost like a siege of Rheims. They are learning just where to begin shutting down the speed and the cars will fare a lot better.

The gravel goes out for S. P. track ballast and construction work wherever needed in quantities.

BOY PROBLEM IS DISCUSSED

Chester Lyon, Manager of Famous Boy Farm, Interests Club Members

Chester Lyon of Portland and Lebanon was the big roar at the Lions' club luncheon Friday noon. He talked of his work on his "Boy Farm" down at Lebanon, and with the boys and girls of Judge Kanzler's court of domestic relations at Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon, both college graduates, have a family of three of their own, but they have adopted all the millions of homeless boys of the country and are caring for all of them as fast as the days will allow them to get around. Mr. Lyon came from Chicago as a graduate of Knox college, Galesburg, Ill., and his wife was from the Oregon state normal at Monmouth. Both taught school for some years before the great vision came to them.

Money Well Used
Mr. Lyon had some money from his father's estate. They decided to invest it in boys, $30,000 worth and their 10-years boy story is as thrilling as a pirate adventure.

They bought a 20-acre farm near Lebanon for their "Boy Farm." It is not a commercialized charity; nobody being asked to contribute a penny, though they accept gifts where the donor will designate what he wants the money to go for. Ben Selling of Portland spent $500 this year in paying transportation for boys to go there and for blankets for them. Others who wish to specify their line of giving may do so; no money is taken on "general account." The boys are given individual tents, except where there are two brothers. These may tent together. The farm is open only through the summer, an intensively cultivated, developed farm, where the boys go for two weeks each, 300 boys having passed through its doors during 1922.

Cooperates With Court

Boys are taken between the ages of 9 and 15, though occasionally some are received even younger than 9 years. Especially the farm is run in connection with Judge Kanzler's court in Portland. Mr. Lyon has personally canvassed 15,000 homes in Portland, getting acquainted with the boys and their problems. Most of the boys he receives are from poor or disordered homes, where there is separation, divorce, illness or quarreling among the parents. Few can pay their own way. The fame of the Boy Farm has grown, however, so that this year they refused $8000 in fees from wealthy parents from all over the United States who wanted them to take pay for their unruly lads. But Mr. and Mrs. Lyon have refused to consider even devoting one-half their farm and their abilities to pay guests, feeling that those who can pay can find other schools and teachers, while the underprivileged boys from Judge Kanzler's court can't go anywhere else except to hell, if this school isn't open for them.

Discipline Necessary
Much of this material was given during the address and in the form of questions and answers, at the Friday luncheon. Some of the other interesting points are here quoted:

"Discipline begins when a baby is born. The parent who does not realize this is sowing the seeds of trouble in the years to come.

"There are few bad boys or girls. Where there is trouble in the home it is almost always delinquent parents. But this is mostly because the parents don't know how to govern, to build the lives in their care.

"When the marriage vow is taken more seriously, divorce and the 'bad boy' and 'bad girl' problems will take care of themselves.

Parental Crime Cited

"One of the worst crimes a parent can commit is to teach the little child, 'If you don't behave the police 'll get you!' The police should be the big brothers of every child. So many parents make them ogres and monsters, and help to make the laws hateful that the police try to enforce.

"Of the 806 boys we have had in the past three years, only 12 have been Sunday school attendants. The parents of these boys have made a fearful mistake in the way they have allowed these 806 boys to drift hellward, without trying to steer them into a better, safer way.

"Boys respect firmness. When we take to them their own cases and ask them to judge themselves they are usually more severe than we would dare to be. They despise milkoppy leniency; too many courts, moved by parental tears that are not tears of repentance and determination to be more helpful in the future, turn their boy proteges loose to prey on others whom they can corrupt. A boy habitually brought up for correction that he knows he deserves, and spinelessly turned loose, is being made into a potential criminal.

"Reform" Schools Decried
"A state spotted with 'institutions' to reform boys and girls is a state that has confessedly failed of its most sacred duty—building up a citizenship ideal that makes homes of love for these children.

"We have 300 boys on our waiting list for the two-weeks' summer stay of the Boy Farm. The Portland Lions have contributed loyally to maintaining the institution. The Elks of Albany and Lebanon have given splendid support.

"Do you know that the average age of the inmates of the American penitentiaries is 19 years? We've let our boys get out of our homes and our personal influences, and the penitentiaries are the result.

"It is not a 'test,' but a temptation, to leave money around for the children to get. It is inviting deception and crime."

Feeble-Minded Problem
Mr. Lyon was asked a question about the feeble-minded boys and girls.

"That is one of the most tragic things that we have to consider," he replied. "I brought a boy, an underprivileged but almost normal lad, down to the feeble-minded school. This school is a necessity, and it is well run; but it is especially to care for the hopelessly defective, not the normal youth that haven't had a chance. I took the lad around with me to see the place, and the tell there was in his face as he said, 'For God's sake, is that where I'm going to be?' will never go out of my sight. Some state provision for the out-of-luck, underprivileged children, to give them a fair start in life, is imperative."

Work Is Benediction
Mr. Lyon is a dead-in-earnest, wholesome speaker, who fairly burns with enthusiasm for his subject, and the work that he and his gifted wife are doing is a benediction to the state and the world.

Miss Pauline Findley gave a humorous reading, "My Aunt Kate," that brought down the house. Her hero was just about as such a lovable little rascal as the Lyons get at their farm, that get into court not for being "bad," but for their misfortune in having thoughtless parents.

Illness of Juror Delays Fate of Walla Walla Man

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Nov. 17.—The fate of John Mackay, charged with murdering Jack Thomas during an alleged drunken brawl last September continues to hang in the balance, due to the absence of one of the jurors, temporarily excused on account of his wife's illness. It is now more than 24 hours since the case was given to the jury. Deliberations are expected to be started anew this evening on the juryman's return.

Two Killed and One Hurt In Fatal Auto Accident

TILLAMOOK, Ore., Nov. 16.—William McKinley and Charles Poole were killed early today when the automobile they were in went off the grade at the bridge at Beaver. Eric Goulstrom was also in the car at the time and all three men were pinned under the machine. Goulstrom managed to extricate himself and went for help. When he returned the other two men were dead.
