THE WITCHERY of the bright autumn days has lent a decided zest to social affairs during the last weeks. With Thanksgiving less than two weeks distant and the gay holiday time only four weeks later, social affairs are beginning to center around winter and holiday interests.

The usual round of bazaars and holiday sales will occupy the attention of society women during the coming weeks. The organ concert this week is of special interest to Salem music lovers since it is seldom that such an artist as Dupre is rated to be, visits the coast.

"When winter comes to Main street in the warm homes behind the lighted window panes people will be reading and wishing for something good to read." So says Grant Overton of his new book, "When Winter Comes to Main Street," which, while he frankly admits it is an advertisement of Doran Books, is none the less an interesting advertisement, and gives, as all advertisements do, much valuable information.

All who read have a desire to know something of the personality of the authors of their favorite books and this Mr. Overton gives in his latest book. The intimate things which the reader would like to know about his favorite author, how he or she writes, and the little personal things one likes to know are told by Mr. Overton in this book. "When Winter Comes to Main Street" It is now in the Salem library.
