CAMPAIGN IS MAKING GOOD

Willamette Forward Movement Gaining on $1,250,000 Objective

When a committee of the Willamette Forward movement, the $1,250,000 endowment campaign, called on one of the men who had been backing the university as a public asset, he told them he had not decided just what he would do; he would talk it over with his son. The son was born in Oregon, and he knows Oregon like a book; one of the best chapters being what he knows of Willamette university. Here's about what the son said:

Insurance Policy Given—"Well, dad, I've been so sure that it's a great and good cause, that several years ago I took out an insurance policy for $5,000, payable to the university, and I've been keeping up the premiums as my gift to the school. They're going to have $5,000 in cash in a very few years and it will not have cost me very much either. Say, dad, it's a great investment, and I wouldn't do without it for a farm. Now you could do—let's see, it would cost you about—"

Precisely what it would cost dad, doesn't matter; that's his business.

But dad is mighty proud of his son, who has seen a vision of his dollars living down through all the ages, in the form of a strong, clean school where the boys and girls of other generations shall set their real inspiration towards a better, more unselfish citizenship.

Campaign Going Well—The campaign is progressing satisfactorily, though the personal work among the possible patrons of the fund is still mostly to be done within the next few weeks. One interesting little incident occurred in a southern Oregon town. Two of the university representatives had held a public meeting, and one old couple had sent up their names, asking to be called upon at their home. They were found to be living on a poor little place, where their crop had failed, and where sickness had made sad inroads on the family finances. But the mother was a college graduate and her husband had a vision of what their children and grandchildren should have had in the way of school.

Small Gift Counts—"We haven't very much they said, but we've simply got to do something. We'll sign up for $50, and we'll pay it next year, sure!"

The agents at first refused to take their pledge, but the old people insisted on it, and it stands to do its part.

Miss Pola Negri, the film star, who is now at work in Hollywood, can boast of three names—Pola Negri, Countess Appollonia Dombach and Appollonia Chalupex, the last named her maiden name. Play 'em on your ukelele.

U. CAMPAIGN IS INDORSED

Rotary Club, Without Dissent, Boosts Willamette Forward Movement

The Salem Rotary club yesterday went on record unanimously endorsing the forward movement campaign of Willamette university as being an important movement for Salem that every member of the club and also every business man in Salem should get behind. The motion was made by C. P. Bishop and was passed without dissent.

Patterson Main Speaker—J. L. Patterson was the speaker of the day. He was scheduled to talk on cooperative marketing, but chose as his subject the relation between the farmers and Salem business men. He pleaded for closer cooperation between city people and the farmers, declaring that no Salem resident should desire to buy as cheaply as possible from the farmer, but on the other hand should want to see every farmer market his produce at a living price, that it would be money in Salem's pockets to help make the farmers prosperous by providing a better market for their produce; that if they wanted to buy things cheap, do it on articles that are shipped in, and not on those produced here. He declared that some produce raised by the farmers near Salem is sold by them for less than is paid by the same buyers for similar merchandise shipped in from a distance.

Fruit Situation Cited—He referred to the fruit situation in Salem and deplored the fact that only 25 per cent of the peck's canned in Salem are grown in the Salem territory.

He also made the statement that the value of the fruits and vegetables packed in Salem is greater than all of the output of Oregon, yet the Oregon legislature had during the past four years appropriated a quarter of a million of dollars to help the salmon industry, and nothing to help the fruit growers and packers.

Dealers to Have Innings—A feeling was expressed by some dealers present that Mr. Patterson's comparisons were unfair to them, and Chairman Paul B. Wallace of the program committee announced that the dealers would be given a day in the near future to come back at Mr. Patterson and present their side of the case.

ASTHMA VICKS VAPOR

There had not been liquidated as freely as the industrials, proved more vulnerable today, non-dividend paying stocks being especially weak in the afternoon reaction. Investment issues also fell under the weight of the selling movement.

Outside new developments were largely favorable. These included reports showing the steel industry to be operating at 50 per cent of capacity. Steel shares offered a little better resistance although United States Steel common broke below 103 and then rallied to 103 3/8 for a net loss of 7-8.

Call money held steady at five per cent throughout the day. Time money loans were made at five per cent for all maturities, only a limited amount being available for lending purposes. Commercial paper trading was moderately active with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges opened easier and then rallied, demand sterling getting up to 449 1/2 and French francs to 7.29. Canadian exchange sold at a slight discount for the first time since the latter part of September.

The Greatest Tragedy
A man who quit school for a small job told us his story, ending "I wish I had the power to talk to every boy and girl in this great country of ours. I would point to my self and say, 'Here you see a human wreck, the greatest tragedy of life.' And I would show these boys and girls the difference between the lot of men and women who acquire their educations at the right time, and those who trust to luck to see them through life." Select a practical course of study. Follow it faithfully and you will have every chance to escape the Greatest Tragedy.

WHEAT SETBACK FELT YESTERDAY

Unexpected Decline in Liverpool Quotations Apparent Cause of Drop

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Wheat underwent a decided setback in price today, owing largely to an unexpected decline in Liverpool quotations as well as New York stock market weakness and disquieting reports about British unemployment conditions. The close was unsettled, 1 to 1 7/8 cent net lower, with May 1.16 5/8 to 1.16 3/4 and July 1.08 1/8 to 1.08 1/8. Corn lost 7-8 to 1-8 and oats 3-8 to 1-2 cent. In provisions, the outcome varied from five cents decline to a rise of 2 1/2 cents.

Weakness developed at the outset in wheat because Liverpool advances showed that the market there was antagonistic to an advancing tendency which values displayed yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. Bearish reports about the domestic winter crop outlook counted further as a weight on the market. Nevertheless, rallies gained considerable impetus in the middle of the session as a result of predictions which were circulated that comprehensive plans soon would be announced for United States government assistance in disposing of surplus food products abroad.

Heavy selling in the last half hour, though, carried the wheat market rapidly downward again and the close was at almost the bottom figures of the day. It was during the final dealings that New York stock market weakness had most effect here as a depressing factor and that uneasiness regarding labor troubles in England led to increased selling.

Corn and oats followed the lead of wheat. Reports from Omaha suggested that western demand for corn had become less urgent.

Provisions were inclined to ease in line with hog values.

NEW CORPORATIONS

Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the Petroleum Products company of Portland, capitalized at $30,000. The incorporators are George I. Steele, John J. Miller and A. J. Dwyer.

LIQUIDATION OF STOCK IS ACTIVE

Speculators for Decline Again Ride on Top of New York Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Speculators for the decline again rode on the top of today's stock market, bringing about more extensive liquidation of stock and hammering prices down 1 to 5 points. Trading was again largely in the hands of professionals but some of the selling came from disillusioned small operators and investors who had bought recently in the belief that a turn for the better was imminent.
