vast timberlands. A mountain forest fire endangers all, and traps Ruth in her burning home from which any escape seems impossible.

In "The Woman He Loved," which comes to the Liberty theatre commencing Wednesday, many foreign-born citizens will find echoes of the life they fled from to come to the land of the free. The earlier episodes of this powerful drama produced by J. L. Frothingham, transpire in Russia—Russia of the czar, not the soviet; the Russia of oppression, of tyranny, of brutality and pain.

The long heralded production of "Sherlock Holmes," with John Barrymore in the title role, comes to the Oregon Theatre today with every promise of being one of the most interesting films unfolded so far this season. The production was directed by Albert Parker, director of Douglas Fairbanks' earlier successes, and several productions for Clara Kimball Young and Norma Talmadge.

A tremendous scene in "The Old Homestead," a Paramount picture at the Oregon tomorrow, is that showing Macao, China, and the great gambling palace where Rubeen during his wanderings comes in contact with his former friend Happy Jack, the tramp. The part of Rubeen is played by Harrison Ford and T. Roy Barnes is the tramp. Uncle Josh is played by Theodore Roberts.

Vivia Ogden, remembered as the malicious spinster in "Way Down East," who started things going against the heroine, plays much the same sort of spinster in "Timothy's Quest," by Kate Douglas Wiggin. Her costume is so true to what is seen in Maine today that when the picture was being filmed in that state the actress was accosted by passers-by who insisted she was one Abigail Trotwood and proceeded to gossip with her about the neighbors. At the Liberty.

Next Saturday and Sunday the Grand theatre will offer House Peters in "The Storm," his greatest success. This is also a return engagement. This film played Salem not so very long ago and this picture is also being returned at the request of the theatregoers. "The Storm" is a very sensational photoplay. It went over very big the last time here. Two other stars support Peters in this picture, Matt Moore and Virginia Valli.

The Hickman Bessey Stock Co. will be seen again tonight in a new four act comedy drama entitled "The Circus Girl" at the Bligh theatre. This show will be presented for three nights. On Thanksgiving day this company will play a special matinee and two shows in the evening.

The great waterfall scenes in the William Duncan production, "The Silent Vow," which will be shown at the Bligh theatre today, provides one of the greatest

PAIN GONE! RUB SORE, RHEUMATIC ACHING JOINTS

Stop "dosing" rheumatism. It's pain only. St. Jacobs Oil will stop any pain, and not one rheumatism case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating St. Jacobs Oil right on the tender spot, and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. St. Jacobs Oil is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints, and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest St. Jacobs Oil from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.—Adv.

thrills in a spectacular and thrilling picture.

The story provides that a series of blasts which have been set by fish poachers shall, in the end, prove their undoing. The giant explosions follow one another down the river and each explosion brings to the surface countless fish which the poachers gather in boxes and take ashore. At the climax the giant explosions, following one another down the river, in actual pursuit of the flying canoes of the poachers come to a mighty climax when men and canoe sweep over the falls.

In writing the book of "Now and Then," the latest fun-provoking vehicle which those inimitable comedians, Kolb and Dill are offering on their present tour, Aaron Hoffman spent much time and thought on the subject of novel and new scenic effects. The results of his efforts are seen in "Now and Then" and prove as appealing as anything ever devised for laugh-making purposes.

"Now and Then," which Kolb and Dill have styled a prohibition dramatic farce in three acts, comes to the Grand theatre on Tuesday, November 28. The production is brand new in its scenic investiture, in its quaint idea and in its comedy appeal.

There are many curious things in this life. It is all very well to learn something each day, but it is also well to forget a lot. Our "forgettery" is a mighty good thing to have around sometimes.

WILL TAKE OFF ALL EXCESS FAT

Do you know that there is a simple harmless, effective remedy for overeating that may be used safely and secretly, by any man or woman who is losing the aliveness of youth? There is, and it is none other than the tablet form of the new famous Marmola Prescription, known as Marmola Prescription Tablets. You can well expect to reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tireless exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a case, or you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich., on receipt of price.

 Mrs. Fulkerson in Charge.
 This morning's session opens at 9 o'clock, and the afternoon session, opening at 1:30, holds on until 4:45.
 County superintendent Mrs. Mary Fulkerson is in charge of the institute, and is greatly pleased with the showing made, the attendance, the program, the music, everything.

Today at 10:15 Dr. H. D. Sheldon will give an important address on "The New History and the Teacher," and at 4 o'clock Dr. Doney is to speak on "Half-Born Men." All the departmental features will be presented during the intervening time.

Everybody is free to attend.

EXHAUSTED FROM GRIPPE COUGH

La grippe coughs rack and tear the sufferer to a state of exhaustion. "Would get completely exhausted from violent grippé coughs," writes R. G. Collins, Barnegat, N. J. "Tried Foley's Honey and Tar and the cough ceased entirely." Urged by three generations for coughs, colds and croup, throat, chest and bronchial irritation, Foley's Honey and Tar has stood the test of time. Contains no opiates—ingredients printed on the wrapper. Largest selling cough medicine in the world. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Socolofsky Moves Into Association Building

Edwin Socolofsky, secretary of the Marion County Y. M. C. A., on Saturday moved his office from room 211, Oregon building, to Room 6, in the Salem Y. M. C. A., on North Commercial street.

The county Y and the Salem local have no direct connection, say as both are affiliated with the international organization. The Salem unit covers only the Salem field, while the other takes in all the rest of the county, working through the high schools and other out-of-town units where they have not sufficient strength to carry a big organization of their own. But Secretary Socolofsky is able to depend upon the Salem executives to help look after his work while he is away from his office, and both units will work together in the most amicable way.

Anybody interested in the county Y work outside of Salem can now get him or one of the other Salem executives who will answer for him, at phone 225.

IMPRESSIVE WAS ROWLAND FUNERAL

Old Friends and Neighbors Tenderly Lay Good Woman to Her Final Rest

The funeral of the late Mrs. L. L. Rowland was held at the Rigdon parlors at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, attended by a large number of old Salem residents who had known and loved Mrs. Rowland when she was a resident in Salem. Rev. J. J. Evans, pastor of the First Christian church, conducted the impressive services there and at the grave side in the City View cemetery, where the body was tenderly laid by the side of that of her husband, Dr. L. L. Rowland, who died several years ago. The pallbearers were Dan J. Fry, Dr. Mark Skiff, A. N. Moores, Milton L. Meyers, Dr. R. E. Lee Steiner and R. J. Hendricks, all friends and neighbors of Mrs. Rowland in the days when she lived and loved and served in Salem in the old days.

Jay C. Smith, who was the husband of the only living child of Dr. and Mrs. Rowland at the time of their marriage, in 1886, accompanied the body from San Francisco and was present at the funeral. Mrs. Smith, who was Levia Rowland, passed on a few years ago. Three grandchildren, Beessie, Wanda and Rowland Smith survive. Wanda and Rowland are at the late home of their grandmother, in Oakland, Cal., Rowland being a student of the Berkeley high school and Miss Wanda being employed in a large stationery house in San Francisco.

Mrs. Rowland was ill only a few days. She had contracted a cold while working with plants in her garden at Oakland; took to her bed only on Sunday, Nov. 19, and breathed her last on Wednesday night last, Nov. 22, 1922, peacefully and cheerfully and without pain. She sang the old plantation songs almost up to the last, she having been a native of Alabama, born in Marion in that state. Her maiden name was Emma Jane Sanders. She was 83 on the first of last May.

Dr. Levi Lindsay Rowland was a native of Tennessee, born in 1831. He came to Oregon with his parents in 1844, settling in Yamhill county. He returned east and attended Bethany college in Virginia, graduating in 1856. Taught school in Polk county and was elected superintendent of schools for that county. There he organized the first teachers' institute ever held in Oregon; and was one of the organizing members of the first state institute, held in Salem Feb. 12, 1862. He subsequently served as president of Christian college—now the state normal school, at Monmouth. He moved to Salem in 1870, practiced medicine here and was a professor in the medical department of Willamette university. In 1874 he was elected state superintendent of public instruction, the first Republican elected to that position, and the only Republican candidate on the state ticket being elected that year. His opponent, on the Democratic ticket, was E. J. Dawne. In 1891 Dr. Rowland was chosen superintendent of the Oregon asylum for the insane, and served throughout the insanity. After retiring from that position he spent most of the time on his farm near Scotts Mills, till his death.

Dr. and Mrs. Rowland were married in 1859. During all the years of his active life she was his loved helpmeet. Five children were born to them; one, a son, was drowned. Three died in a diphtheria epidemic. Only Levia, who became Mrs. Jay C. Smith, was left. Mr. Smith is now employed in the famous Olympic club, in San Francisco, one of the largest in the United States or the world, having over 5,000 members. He is in the accounting department. He started on his return trip on the Southern Pacific night train early Sunday morning.

believes that poems ought to be really music. He is a stout, blue-eyed, light haired person who might be a Viking or a canny Scot or something else, but apart from this, he sing-songs his verse in a manner altogether unique. He says that as a child, almost to the little skirts days, he used to make up verses, and sing-song them to himself. One could actually see him as he told the story, with an audience of a barnyard rooster and perhaps a calf, chanting away like a troubadour and ragged holes in his trousers and a hungry belt around his waist.

The Lindsay voice is a real musical instrument. He plays tunes, and paints pictures of innocent babies and lovely women and giant men—and of clean, strong souls that lead the nations, either with or without arms in their hands.

His Lincoln poems were of an almost magic splendor in their atmosphere. Lindsay was a boy in Springfield, Ill., where Lincoln used to live. He interprets the Lincoln of the clean heart and the exalted mind, as reams of books might fail to present him.

Mr. Lindsay said that a really good college yell ought to be given in a whisper. He didn't follow the usual newspaper definition that a good college yell is a loud noise with rhyme and meter. If the Willamette yellers expected to get a good "kick" out of the lecture, this was probably it.

The speaker emphasizes his verse with a little literary chorus or interlude between stanzas. It might be a "Yeo-ho-ho," and a bottle of R-r-rum," or a mere smile and eye somersault, but it's always there, like the "red mark" on a Spaulding bat. It he wanted to wear circus trousers or a fool's cap or a Roman steel helmet, he would see nothing wrong in it; why shouldn't a fellow do as he likes with himself and his clothes and his words? Poets are born, not made, and when they make one like Lindsay, the chances are against finding another like him in a year of Sundays. He lived up to the most flattering expectations, and he leaves a fine taste in the literary mouth of Salem.
