Present Medals in Portland Thursday

Field colors of the 147th field artillery will be formally decorated with the croix de guerre, awarded by the French government for distinguished battle service, at an impressive event of parade, muster and review of all Oregon national guard troops located in Multnomah next Thursday night. This was announced Sunday by Brigadier General George A. White, adjutant general of Oregon. The decoration of the regimental colors will be conferred upon Battery A, Oregon's oldest military organization which served through five battles with the 147th field artillery. The national emblem carried by the 147th throughout the war was bestowed upon the two Oregon batteries when the war ended and was brought to this state by Captain James S. Gay, now in command of Battery A and who commanded the Oregon battery in France. The crois de guerre and the five silver battle rings awarded by the government and which will be attached to the battery guidon, will be formally presented by General White, who went overseas as an officer in the brigade to which Battery A belonged and who also was a part of the same command on the Mexican border. The ceremonies will open at the Thursday night, and a number of state and city officials, members of the legislature and the public at large have been invited to attend. Battery A will be brought before the entire command stationed in Portland, according to arrangements completed by the board of officers of Multnomah county. All troops will be in light field equipment and will parade in steel heimets and with bayonets fixed.
