"Under Two Flags," the film version of Ouida's immortal tale of undying love, which held the stage of the world for many years in a dramatized version of the great stories of all times through the superior medium of the screen. It comes to Salem soon.

Priscilla Dean, the star, is directed by Tod Browning, the same combination responsible for "The Virgin of Stamboul."

Supporting Miss Dean are such stellar artists as James Kirkwood, John Davidson, Ethel Grey Terry, Stuart Holmes, Fred Cavens, W. H. Bainbridge, Burton Law and Bobby Mack.

Even "Foolish Wives" had scarcely better sets and scenic effects. The gamut of Algerian architecture is run, from narrow alleys to barracks and boudoirs of Oriental Splendor.

The eminent physician, Dr. von Saubourg, was having the time of his life at the mansion of the father of the Sick-Little-Well-Girl. His yearly fee sounded like the German war debt, and the doctor was making sure that it would not stop. Dark rooms, medicines, sanitariums and absolute quiet were included in his prescriptions—that is, until the arrival of Dr. Jack.

When that young man with the winning smile was brought to the household by the family lawyer, things began to happen so fast that the eminent physician thought he was caught in the combination of a tornado and a three-ringed circus. Dr. Jack had sunshine methods. He also built air-castles around himself and the Girl. Instead of a thermometer he placed a stick of peppermint candy in the Girl's mouth. He fell in love with his patient and whooped it up for all he was worth—in fact, things became so lively that the older doctor left the house with the seat of his pants missing. And the Girl became Dr. Jack's patient for the rest of her life. At the Grand Theatre.

itudes of champions and antagonists of the modern flapper, Tom Mix, now at the Liberty theatre in "Do and Dare," comes to light with this expression.

"I think the flapper is a great institution. She is the bread and butter of more than half of the American writers. Without the flapper to assail or uphold, many writers would be back to the lathe and the shaving strop. And look at the jokesmiths. They've used the mother-in-law and prohibition gags till they are frayed at the edges. What would they do if the flapper didn't exist? So you see the subject at hand is not an evil but a necessity."

defeat which they claimed the Bahama rum fleet had met at the hands of the dry navy, pointed as proof of the fact that the west side court, which usually boasts many drunks on Christmas day, had no offenders before it. Police assigned to watch restaurants and cabarets reported they had seen no liquor law violations along the great white way.

CHRISTMAS afternoon at four o'clock in the chapel of Waller hall, Miss Lida Fake became the bride of E. T. Brown. Both are members of the faculty of Willamette university, and Dr. Carl Gregg Doney, president of Willamette, officiated at the marriage service.

The bride was gowned in a charming frock of white satin and canton crepe trimmed with lace of exquisite daintiness. Her long veil was caught with real orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet.

The bride was attended by a group of younger college women. Miss Nell Fake, Miss Genevieve Phillips, Miss Grace Brainard and Miss Louise Schrieber. They Marie Patton carried the ring. She wore a pretty pink frock.

Miss Kathleen LaRout sang "At Dawning," before the service, and Prof. T. S. Roberts played Mendelssohn's wedding march. Following the service an informal reception was held, and later the happy pair left for California. They will return early in the new year and take up their residence at 475 North Capitol street.

Mrs. Brown is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fake and is a graduate of Milwaukee-Downer college. Mr. Brown is a graduate of the University of Washington and a member of Willamette university faculty.

A group of women from the Woman's club chorus went to the Old People's home Friday night to sing carols for the residents there. Those going out included: Mrs. Harry M. Styles, Mrs. J. E. Hutcheson, Miss Angela McCullough, Mrs. W. E. Anderson, Miss Eva Ferree, Mrs. V. E. Kuhn and Miss Joy Turner, accompanist.

Saturday evening another group visited the Marion hotel, the Elks club rooms, the Spa and the Gray Belle and 12 private homes where shut-ins and invalids live. Those going out at this time were Mrs. C. E. Gilbertson, Mrs. E. V. McMeachan, Mrs. T. H. Galloway, Mrs. A. J. Rahn, Mrs. Merle Rosecrans and Mrs. W. E. Anderson.

Sunday evening a quartet visited the hospitals. Miss Dorothy Pearce played the accompaniments for the group. They were Miss Marie Schwab, Miss Nellie Schwab, Dan Landenberg and Harry Pearson.

Walter A. Barseh of Oakland, Cal., is a guest for the holidays at the home of Mrs. John A. Carson.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Carson spent the holidays with Mrs. Carson's parents in Roseburg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Anderson spent Christmas in Portland as guests of Mrs. Anderson's mother and sister.

Mrs. J. Jacobs of West Salem was hostess Wednesday evening for a birthday party honoring her son, James B. Jr., and Harry Creacy. Those present were Della Douglass, Helen Sands, Lucy Needham, Alice Creacy, Frances Hunt, Fern Miller, Waneta and Bernice Wood, Claudine Gerth and Dessa Jacobs; James Jacobs, Harry, Claud and Len Creacy, Harold and Edward Watzling, Charles eNedham, Floyd Moore, Robert Miles, Leslie Smith, James Byers and Homer Phillips.

Miss Beatrice Wolte was married yesterday to Howard Kauff at the parsonage of the Center Street Methodist church. Both are of Mill City. Rev. G. S. Roderoff officiated. They will make their home in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carson spent Christmas with Mrs. Carson's family in Marquim.
