Cars Hit
 James Hunt, 710 South Thirtieth street while driving east on the Eola road struck a hack driven by U. Z. Blaser. The hack was reported slightly damaged. G. E. Riggs of Albany, as he was driving south near the fair grounds, reported that he struck a car standing near the curb, damaging the fenders.

Rehearing Asked—Two brothers, contractors, have filed in the supreme court a petition for rehearing of the case of Twohy brothers against the Ochoco irrigation district. Twohy Brothers sued to recover in excess of $100,000 on a contract for construction work on the project and lost in both the lower and the supreme courts.

Insurance Demanded—Less than three months after he had taken out a $7000 insurance policy on his merchandise stock and fixtures, his store burned down, according to the complaint filed against the National Reserve Insurance company by James Rowland in the circuit court yesterday. He seeks payment on his insurance policy which he alleges the insurance company refuses to pay. The insurance policy was taken out October 28, 1921, and in January, 1922, fire destroyed the building and merchandise. The insurance company, according to the complaint, disclaims liability on the policy.

Certification Asked—The Central Oregon Irrigation district has applied to the state irrigation securities commission for the certification of $180,000 bonds, and has submitted copies Warren Construction company and the Continental Pipe company for construction work on the project aggregating a cost of about $130,000. The project embraces about 45,000 acres in Deschutes county, nearly all of which is under irrigation. Funds derived from the sale of the bonds are to be used for reconstruction of the main flume from the Deschutes river. The project was originally a Carey act project, but was taken over about a year ago by a district organized for the purpose. No interest guarantee is asked with the certification of the bonds.

Brief Is Filed—Defendant's brief was filed in the supreme court yesterday in the case of the state against A. J. Weston, who was convicted in Deschutes county of the murder of Robert Krug, but whose conviction and sentence to life imprisonment were overturned by the supreme court in a reversing opinion written by Justice George M. Brown, but which remanded the case. In the second trial Weston was again convicted, and has again appealed to the supreme court.

Legal Blanks—Get them at The Statesman office. Catalog on application.—Adv.

Fight Is Renewed—The Klamath county court-house fight is again in the state supreme court with transcript and record on appeal filed yesterday in the cases of Klamath county against the Klamath Development company, and Frank Ward against Klamath county. The former case turns on title to the land on which the so-called Hot Springs courthouse was built. The building was not held to be the official county building, and the Klamath Development company, which had donated the grounds, now wants to regain title to the land.

Tank Is Repaired—There will be no women's classes in swimming at the "Y" today. The tank started a leak a few days ago, and it was being repaired over Christmas day and Tuesday, but it will not be quite ready for service for today's regular classes. However, it should be in commission again for Thursday's regular use.

Hawaiian Music, Singing—Dancing at the Elk's entertainment, Grand theater, New Year's eve. Reserve seats Saturday.—Adv.

Dr. Clay Visits Here—Dr. Harry Clay, a former resident of Salem, now living in San Francisco, is visiting friends here this week. He left Salem to go overseas with the American army, and after returning to the States he located at San Francisco, where he has a fine practice.

A Classified Ad—Will bring you a buyer.—Adv.

Company to Reveal—Company F of the Oregon National guard will meet for a New Year's dinner next Monday night. The dinner will be followed by a tournament of events, including wall scaling, equipment races, with drills and a basketball game. No drill was held Monday night and a meeting last night was devoted to perfecting plans for the program New Year's night.

DR. POLING TO BE PASTOR HERE

Prominent Known Clergyman to Have Charge of Evangelical Church

Rev. C. C. Poling, until recently associated with an Evangelical church in Johnstown, Pa., and who was until 10 years ago a member of the Oregon conference of the Evangelical church, will arrive in Salem within a few days to become pastor of the Cottage Street Evangelical church.

Dr. Poling is a brother of Rev. D. V. Poling, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Albany, and was for more than 30 years prominent in church and educational work in Oregon before going east. He was at one time president of Dallas college and after leaving Oregon was president of the college maintained by the Evangelical church at Le Mars, Iowa.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Poling are good speakers. It is hoped that through the efforts of Dr. Poling a union of the Salem Evangelical churches may be accomplished.

Dr. and Mrs. Poling, who will arrive here within a few days, have been visiting with their son, Rev. Dan A. Poling, who is spending the winter with his family in Arizona. Dr. Poling will preach at the Cottage Street Evangelical church Sunday morning.

The local church has been without a pastor for five months.

DANCING parties during the coming week will feature the social affairs to a marked extent. The alumni and students of the Oregon Agricultural college will frolic at the Elite hall Saturday evening.

The Catholic Daughters of America will give a dancing party Thursday evening in McCornack hall. This, too, will be somewhat in the nature of a New Year's party.

Miss Olga Brucher, an Oregon Agricultural college student from the east, will be the house guest of Mrs. Lewis Griffith this week. Miss Brucher spent Christmas in Corvallis.

The Daughters of Veterans will hold an anniversary celebration this evening. The occasion marks the 37th anniversary of the founding of the organization which was originally sponsored by President and Mrs. William McKinley.

The local tent of the organization was installed four years ago. Groups are functioning now in Marshfield, Astoria, Salem, with two in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hopkins spent the week-end in Portland as guests of Mrs. Hopkins' parents.

Mr. and Mrs. George Haltemhoff of The Dalles are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Haltemhoff formerly lived in Salem.

Miss Ruth Barnes, a junior at the University of Washington, is spending the holidays at her home in Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lawrence of Corvallis are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clifford.

Miss Helen Rose, who is a teacher in the Warrenton schools, is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rose.

The holiday dance sponsored by the Salem O. A. C. club will be given Saturday evening in the Elite hall. Alumni, former students and those students home for the Christmas holidays will be included in the guest list.

While an annual dance for Salem High school students is sponsored by the local group of alumni of the college, that affair will be held later this year and only a few outside guests will be included because of the limited room and the large number of alumni.

holidays in Corvallis will be guests in Salem for the occasion and will attend the dance. The committee in charge of the dance is composed of Mrs. G. W. Chambers, Mrs. Lewis Griffith, Miss Vivian Hargrove, Leo Spitzbart, Albert T. Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Shinn and their two children spent the Christmas week-end with Mrs. Shinn's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Kerr in Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stiffler entertained with a Christmas dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bunting, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erickson, Mrs. J. Stiffler, J. Coats and Edwin and Victor Erickson.

Dr. and Mrs. Carl E. Miller and daughter Abrikail, are visiting friends in Olympia, Wash., and will not return to Salem until after New Year.

C. A. Harwood Brings Suit Against Railroad

A station which hid the railroad track from the public eye and an engine which failed to blow its whistle at the proper time are responsible for $23,311 worth of damage to a truck owned by C. A. Harwood, according to a complaint filed in the circuit court yesterday by Harwood against the Southern Pacific railroad company.

Harwood alleges that because an oncoming train failed to blow its whistle on September 6, 1922, and because the station hid the track from the eye of motor vehicle drivers the Southern Pacific train milled up his truck to the extent of $23,311. In addition Harwood asks $220 for time lost while the truck was in the repair shop. He values the time of the truck and himself at $20 a day.

Railway Association to Have Agricultural Head

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—In an endeavor to keep more intimately in touch with the transportation needs of agricultural producers, the car service division of the American Railway association announced tonight it had designated an agricultural representative to serve with its organization. Elmer Knutson of St. Cloud, Minn., has been selected for the post. The service division, the statement said, will seek to bring about better cooperation between agricultural shippers and railroads under the new arrangement.

RHOTEN IS HOME FROM LONG TOUR

Salem Man Says Middle Staters Would Come Here If They Could Get Away

"They would be coming to Oregon if they could get away," is the statement of E. A. Rhoten of the Pacific Homestead who returned just in time for Christmas from a long tour in the middle states.

"The middle states corn farmer was the worst hit man of all America in the deflation process following the war," said Mr. Rhoten. "Many farms changed hands, once, twice, several times, on the boom prices of the war. Incredible prices were paid for farm lands, and the old owners figured as well as the new buyers figured that they were fixed for life. Then when the bottom fell out of farming the farms on which the new buyers had paid only a part and couldn't pay the rest, came back to the original owners who had already spent their first payments and many of them had incurred heavy obligations depending on these notes. It broke all the buyers, as well as the original owners. They are having the worst times in some of these corn districts of all sections in the country."

Mr. Rhoten visited 15 states and traveled 5500 miles. He attended the national stock show at Chicago after visiting his old home in Iowa, and on the way home stopped at Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake, and several other places. While in Iowa he exhibited a number of stereopticon slides of Oregon subjects that created a profound impression among the "home folks." These pictures were shown several times to interested audiences.

Mr. Rhoten was out of Salem all through the Willamette university endowment drive, but tendered his $100 subscription to "Captain" Bohrnstedt on his return to the city. The University is that much over its original estimate, by his coming.

New Piano is Needed
 By Salvation Army

The Salvation army is in need of a piano to replace the 21-year-old organ which is good now only for a relic of the old days, according to Captain Holbrook. The old organ is one which the comrades solicited funds to buy more than a quarter of a century ago and was once a respectable organ but "those days are gone forever."

"I am sure that there are folks in Salem who have perhaps an old piano which no longer fits their needs and which they would be willing to give the headquarters of the Salvation army," Captain Holbrook said yesterday.

"The only musical instrument which we have now is an old street organ which Mrs. Holbrook and I used for street services in the past. It is inadequate for the needs of headquarters. I sincerely hope that some good hearted Salem friend will find it possible to give us a piano which is really needed in our work."

The difference between a girl's silly giggle and her silver laughter is in your own age.
