Eggs Are Lower—Housekeepers who have been holding up their hands in horror at the high price of eggs, which ran up to 53 cents a dozen only a few weeks ago, will join in hailing the happy New Year that brought the announcement of "Only 40 cents a dozen for strictly fresh eggs." Now, that the moulting season is over for most of the birds raised last year, the egg business has picked up amazingly in quantity, and it is expected that the day of the high-priced egg is now a goner until next November.

MILL RESUMES ITS OPERATIONS
The Spaulding mill is expected to reopen for work this morning after a week's lay-off for repairs and improvements. One of the new things is a "Dutch oven" reflector to help economize the heat in the boiler room. It will make the fuel more efficient and make the boiler room work better. Other minor overhauls and repairs have been made throughout the plant, that will carry it through the busy spring run.

The lumber business has held up remarkably well, and there is indication of it being even better within the next 30 or 60 days than it is just now. The local demand is good, especially out through the country. More country houses are being built at this time than have been under construction at any time for at least two years. The Salem demand, while probably not quite as heavy as it was at this time a year ago, is still remarkably good, and it helps materially in keeping the mills busy. The eastern demand is picking up, with the promise of growing much better as spring opens. All the mills of the valley, it is understood, are planning to increase their reserve stock of manufactured lumber, in anticipation of the demand that they look for within the next few weeks, or months at the very latest.

Much Corn Whiskey Found Hidden in Slope Mine
HARRISBURG, Ill., Jan. 1.—The source of Saline county's supply of "white mule" was discovered today when Sheriff Small and his deputies penetrated far back into the workings of the Heato slope mine.

Led by a state mine inspector, the sheriff's posse donned boots and miners' lamps and explored miles of tunnels, drifts, galleries, rooms and headings until they found four large stills and two barrels of the white corn whiskey.

BERRY MEN ARE WORKING

Personal Work With Independent Growers Forwards Organization Plan

Committee negotiations are the only items of progress in the work of the Loganberry Growers' association, that met last week to formulate plans for making the loganberry business profitable to the grower.

The executive committee that first met last Wednesday, met in some way every day for the rest of the week, and the members are still working along individual lines, getting ready for their final report. No date has been set or even approximated for the completion of their labor, with consultation, by-laws, contracts, and all the working plans for the permanent organization.

Personal Work Done
The latest development, however, is that they are working directly with the independent packers and buyers, on some form of understanding that will assure to the growers a living price for all the fruit that the market will handle at all. It is understood that the negotiations with the packers are proceeding with flattering success, the packers being almost anxious to keep the growers alive as the growers themselves are to live. This new and logical slant of the price-fixing program is believed to assure that the loganberry growers will this year be able to count on at least a fair price.

Speculation Undesirable
Some of the most thoughtful growers have looked on it as a calamity that there should ever be such wild prices paid as those that started the 1920 season, when some berries brought up to 12 cents a pound, and the fever of the financial fire almost burned the business patient to death. Stabilizing influences like the Oregon Growers' aim to restrain all such speculative prices, that are usually more disastrous to the business than any price failure. It is believed that by the cooperation of the packers and the growers, a steady market at rational price can be established, and the logans can be sold year after year to a trade that learns to appreciate the berry itself, as well as a standard price that keeps the buyer always buying and using.

said. "The too free manner and careless, immodest dress, the elegant, slangy language, the cigarette smoking and wine drinking the betting and gambling that are as meat and drink to many, if not to the majority of girls—all are signs of the times. We dare not leave them unchallenged. Some of the evils could be rectified by legislation; some only by example and teaching. Women's place still begins in the home, and there we must look for the remedy."

Mrs. Forsythe said that she looked forward to the time when the legislature would give the people an opportunity of expressing their opinion on the liquor question, "and when our intelligent men and women would study the question of prohibition with unbiased minds."

The convention voted to ask the federal government to introduce legislation in Australia which would give married women the right to retain their British nationality on marriage with an alien. Other recommendations urged that Australian representatives should endeavor to have legislation of this kind made uniform throughout the empire.

"The secretary said that many women did not realize that if they married a foreigner, they adopted the nationality of the husband and would have no claim upon an English consul abroad in the event of trouble.

"Henry Bergson says that brainworkers ought to be better paid. We are for Henri whatever he wants, stronger than horse-radish," says the paragraphist of the Los Angeles Times.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST
Writing it 1923?
It was a dull day for news, thinks a friend of the Bits for Breakfast man—
But there are no dull days for news. The wires of the Associated Press run 24 hours a day, every day in the year, with some 30 minute intermissions for meals and some 10 minute breathing spells at stated times. If it is not one thing, it is something else—the wires are always loaded.

Think of how much news there would be if all the newspapers and all the news agencies of the United States would for a season cut out all murders and divorces and blood and thunder dope generally, and
